At the 20th Anniversary of Knox Presbyterian church, in Belmont, Ont., a concert was given in which Mrs. A. H. M. Hay was one of the performers. In speaking of her the "Times" has the following to say: "The star of the evening, however, was Mrs. A. H. M. Hay, of this village, who made her first public appearance here in the role of a reader. Every selection given by Mrs. Hay was new and striking, and commanded the attention of the entire audience. She is the possessor of a full, rich voice which is perfectly trained, and although she did not speak loud, every tone was heard in all parts of the building, clear and distinct. She received an encore every time she appeared."
