Bill's Pat Definition.

(Boston Herald.)

Patrick Jones, New York's superintendent of school supplies, was talking at a dinner about corporal punishment.

"Corporal punishment in our schools is no more," he said, "and that is a good thing. Undoubtedly, though, many a boy showed wonderful luck."

"I remember a boy named Bill. Bill, brave fellow, was doing miserably one day in a geometry recitation."

"Now, sir," said the school master savagely, "for the last time, what is the square of the hypotenuse of a right angled triangle equivalent to?"

"It's equivalent to a lickin' fer me, sir. There's the club," said Bill.

You Can Test the Kidneys

Then let Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills prove their power to Cure.

Let urine stand for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time there are deposits of a brick dust variety, or if the water becomes smoky and cloudy you may be sure the kidneys are deranged.

Another very marked symptom of kidney disease is pain in the small of the back.

The letter quoted below tells how these symptoms were overcome and kidney disease cured by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Because of their direct and combined action on both liver and bowels these pills cure the most complicated cases.

Capt. W. Smith, a veteran in the Crimean war, living at Revelstoke, B. C., writes:—"I can testify that for years I was a sufferer from chronic kidney disease, which was the verdict after the doctor examined me and analyzed my urine. As his medicine did me no good I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was benefited so much that I kept on taking them until I can say that I am perfectly cured, which the doctor certifies."

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Rats.

(The New York Times.)

A captain of an ocean liner tells the following story:

Coming from the old country was a very nervous old lady who complained that she was sure there was a rat in her stateroom.

"Keep it there, mandam," said the captain.

"But do you like rats?" asked she.

"I've got a nest in my cabin," retorted the brusque seaman, "and I never disturb them. When they leave the ship I do."

"Why, you must be superstitious," urged the dame.

"N, no, am," wound up the captain. I'm not, but the rats are."

How Stonewall Jackson Died.

Of the accidents of the Civil War period, perhaps the most striking was the death of Stonewall Jackson at Chancellorsville. With the consent of Lee, Jackson with thirty thousand men on May 2 made a rapid, stealthy, flanking marching of fifteen miles around the Union right in order to attack the corps under Howard. At six in the evening, while Howard's men were resting, preparing supper, or playing cards, all unconscious of danger, a sudden rush into camp of deer, rabbits, and other wild animals apprised them of the coming enemy. They seized their arms and attempted to form in battle line, but before they succeeded the Confederates were upon them. In an hour the corps was cut to pieces and almost annihilated, the survivors fleeing like madmen. As night fell the corps of Sickles and the cavalry of Pleasanton planted themselves in the way of the onrushing Confederates and checked their advance.

It was then that Jackson, with a portion of his staff, rode forward in advance of his own lines to make a reconnaissance. His party were mistaken for a force of Federal cavalry, and received a volley from the Confederate line of battle which dismounted several of them. Jackson, thus far unhurt, turned into a wood on the left; but he had not gone far before a Confederate brigade, kneeling on one knee, as though to receive cavalry, discharged at a distance of only about twenty yards a volley that killed, wounded, or dismounted, all the remainder of the staff but two, and severely wounded Jackson.

The wounded man's horse ran off with him in the direction of the enemy, and the rider suffered a severe blow in the face from a low hanging limb. The horse was caught, however, by an aide, Jackson was lifted from the saddle, and after great trouble was taken to a hospital in the rear. There his left arm was amputated, and he was later removed to the home of a Mr. Chandler, near Guinea's Depot. Incipient pneumonia set in, and on Sunday, May 10, to the sorrow of all Confederates, he died.

Thus, through accident, the Confederacy lost its great military genius. Upon receiving news of his being wounded, but before his death, Lee wrote to him, "Could I have directed events, I should have chosen, for the good of the country, to have been disabled in your stead." That the South would have triumphed if Jackson had survived is too much to assert; but unquestionably the history of the later campaigns would have been much different. Of the outcome of Chancellorsville itself Jackson said before his death, "If I had not been wounded, or had had one more hour of daylight I should have cut off the enemy from the road to United States Ford; we should then have had them entirely surrounded and they would have been obliged to surrender or cut their way out."

A Plea for Daily Kindness.

The daily evils that make life hard are not the great sorrows but the infinity of irritating trifles, the unnecessary injustice, the man-made wrongs of life. Such are the cruel temper that upsets a household for a day and leaves a trail of enervating sadness and protest; the unreasonable selfishness that overrides the rights of others like a car of Juggernaut. There is a bitterness of unforgiving condemnation that listens to no reasons, explanations, or motives, that believes because it has seen, that credits the senses and accepts circumstantial evidence as final. Then two that love may walk alone down the valley of darkness and separation, heart hungry for the treasure that has been thrown away.

Man is said to have been made in the image of his Creator. Some men seem to be trying to remove the labels and other identifying brands. If we are men, with the dignity of our powers and privileges and possibilities, let us live like men. Life is not something to be lived through, it is to be lived up to—in all its highest meanings and messages. There was in the army of Alexander the Great a soldier, who, although he bore the very name of the great conqueror, was in his heart a coward. Cowardice in any soldier of that mighty army was the worst of all crimes; yet for this man to be a coward was shame unspeakable. And Alexander in great anger commanded the craven: "Either give up my name or follow my example." Living up to our possibilities means living up to our name—anything less means failure.

If for a single week in any city each individual were to say each morning: "To-day no one in the world shall have even one second darkened by any act of mine," and live it, that city would be transformed and glorified. It would, after all, mean only negative goodness, the avoidance of evil, not real, aggressive, positive, high-keyed living at our best, but the burden of life would be lifted, and in an atmosphere warm with the radiant glow of love and brotherhood we could almost hear the faint rustle of the angels' wings, the angels of peace ushering in the millennium.—From the February Circle Magazine.

We confess that we are always a little suspicious of the man who says he takes a cold bath every morning of the year.—[Topeka Capital.

Jim Parks's Store.

You know Jim Parks? He used to farm Out Hopkins Corner way. Well, he got tired planting corn, And cutting oats and hay. It was too hard and dull a life— He said he could make more To move to town and open up A little grocery store.

The opening up was easy done, And things just peared to swim. You work a farm, but keep a store—! It seemed like fun to Jim. His trade? Well, he had more or less— 'Twas hardly ever more— But times would better in the fall, And—he liked keeping store.

One day last week I called around, And found him dreadful blue; He'd kept the store all right, but kept The things inside it, too. "The business suits me lots of ways, But tell me how," said Jim. "A man can keep on keeping store When it will not keep him!" —Woman's Home Companion for January.

ECZEMA OF THE SCALP.

Zam-Buk Cures a Boy who Suffered for Three Years.

Now and again mothers find that sores or ulcers on the heads of children refuse to heal, despite all ordinary treatment. Then is the time to prove Zam-Buk's healing power. For three long years the son of Mrs. Grummitt, of 114, Morse Street, Toronto, had eczema of the scalp. She says:—"It broke out behind his ears, and was so painful he was unable to sleep at night. I used almost every ointment known, and called in the doctor, but all of no avail. A friend recommended me to try Zam-Buk, and I procured a supply. After using three boxes, my little boy was completely cured."

Another case which mothers will read with interest occurred recently in Winnipeg. Mrs. C. Keep, of 592, Alexander Avenue, Winnipeg, says:—"A year ago my little girl contracted eczema of the scalp, and notwithstanding all I did the sores spread until the child's scalp was completely covered. I took her to the hospital, but none of the lotions and ointments applied had any effect on the disease. By degrees the child's hair came out, until she was quite bald. We were at this stage strongly advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. From first commencing with this wonderful balm the child got relief from the itching and pain. The sores were quickly banished, and in a remarkably short space of time the child was cured. The hair soon grew again, and is now quite long and in a healthy condition."

All who have care of children should know that Zam-Buk is particularly adapted, because of its purity, to the tender skin of children. It cures with equal dispatch ringworm, blood-poisoning, ulcers, cold-cracks, chapped hands, frost-bite, piles, bad leg, etc. Used as an embrocation it eases the pain of sprains, and cures rheumatism, sciatica, and neuralgia. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box; or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.
