Cream Separators

—AT—

MacDougall's

Auction and Commission Store

I would like to ask the farmers a question—Why should I buy a Cream Separator from MacDougall—because he has had eight years' experience and knows something about the mechanism and make-up of a Cream Separator. If you buy a Separator from me I am here to look after your wants. It is my intention to make the Separator a special line and will keep on hand other extra parts for any machine that I handle. I claim that I can sell on a smaller commission than the man who has to travel and pay expenses for himself and horse. Be sure and see me before purchasing and I will save you dollars. Come in and look over the different makes.

Test of Oil Proves Successful.

New York, May 25—First of American steamships to use oil as fuel in the passenger service on the Atlantic coast, the Yale, the triple turbine engine vessel of the Metropolitan line, running between this port and Boston, has just had a test run. The test in all ways was pronounced a success.

Although the fastest merchant vessel flying the American flag, with a speed of twenty-four and three-eighths knot, there was no attempt to force the Yale boilers. The speed varied from seventeen to twenty-two knot. Six men were in the fire-rooms where formerly there were forty-eight stokers and coal passers.

Under the guidance of Robert McGregor, superintendent and consulting engineer of the company, a visit to the fire rooms was made. The absence of noise was noted. The thirty-six Lasso burners, designed by F. V. Lasso, a contemporary of Ericsson and who is now seven-fifty years old, and who was on board, roared incessantly as each belched forth its seven-foot sheet of white flame. There was no dust, and the air was clean as that on the decks above.

The steamship was run under about 8,000 horse power instead of 11,000 as used on her regular runs. It was announced that all that was seen on board the Yale was duplicated on board the Harvard, which is a twin of the Yale. The two vessels on Monday next will inaugurate an "all the way by water" service between this city and Boston.

Twain's Health Rules.

Now that Mark Twain is dead there is a pathetic interest in the fun he poked at himself on the occasion of the celebration of his seventieth birthday. At that time he gave a humorous account of his health rules:

"I have achieved my seventy years in the usual way—by sticking strictly to a scheme of my life which would kill anybody else. It sounds like an exaggeration, but that is really the common rule for obtaining old age. We have no permanent habits until we are forty. Then they begin to harden, presently they petrify, then business begins. Since forty I have been regular about going to bed and getting up—and that is one of the main things. I have made it a rule to go to bed when there wasn't anybody left to sit up with, and I have made it a rule to get up when I had to. This has resulted in an unswerving regularity of irregularity.

"In the matter of that I have been persistently strict in sticking to the things which don't agree with me until one or the other of us got the best of it. Until lately I got the best of it myself. But last Spring I stopped frolicking with mince pie after midnight; up to then I had always believed it wasn't loaded. For thirty years I have taken coffee and bread at eight in the morning, and no bite nor sup till 7.30 in the evening.

"I have made it a rule never to smoke more than one cigar at a time. I have no other restriction as regards smoking. I do not know just when I began to smoke. I only know that it was in my father's lifetime and that it was discreet. He passed from this life early in 1847, when I was a shade passed 11; ever since then I have smoked publicly. As an example to others, and not that I care for moderation myself, it has always been my rule never to smoke when asleep and never to refrain when awake.

"As for drinking I have no rule about that. When the others drink I like to help; otherwise I remain dry, by habit and preference. This dryness does not hurt me, but it could easily hurt you, because you are different. You let it alone.

"I have never taken any exercise, except sleeping and resting, and I never intend to take any. Exercise is loathsome. And it cannot be any benefit when you are tired; I was always tired.

"I have lived a severely moral life. But it would be a mistake for other people to try it, or for me to recommend it. Very few succeed. You have to have a perfectly colossal stock of mortals and you cannot get them on a margin; you have to have the whole thing, and put them in your box. Morals are an acquirement—like music, like a foreign language, like piety, poker, paralysis—no man is born with them, I wasn't myself, I started poor."

Character of Great Britain's New King.

(New York Tribune.)

London, May 21.—Public interest is abruptly shifted from the old to the new reign. King George has displayed energy and capacity in conducting the imposing pageant and in welcoming his royal guests and speeding them on the return to their own capitals. While he lacks his father's passion for the niceties of etiquette, he can hardly fail to be keenly interested in the new business of reigning. Monarchs invariably find it a fascinating occupation, especially when it has the charm of novelty. King George has already

Cold in the Head

What's the Sense in Sneezing and Sniffing, Dosing with Purgatives, or Eothering with Atomizers?

"Catarrhazone"

A Convenient Inhaler Treatment is the Proper Remedy to Cure Quickly and Pleasantly.

Sensible people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease itself.

To cure a cold in about five minutes' time use Catarrhazone. It is aromatic, delightful to inhale, clean, and very simple to use.

C. B. College, of Clarence street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhazone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhazone cures every time."

To carry a Catarrhazone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh, or any lung or throat trouble. It keeps these diseases away, and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with hard rubber pocket Inhaler, costs $1. Small size 50 cents. Druggists, or the Catarrhazone Company, Kingston, Ont.

learned that it is an arduous business, involving unremitting patience and labor.

A multiplicity of minor changes is requisite when a reign opens. One decree in council follows another, liturgies and collects are altered without reference to historic rites, convocations are amended, a prayer book is licensed, new oaths are required, the sovereigns of the mint and the postage stamps of the realm require fresh dies and plates, and many important details of public business are altered. To these are added the responsibility of laying the foundation for a new civil list—always the same arduous undertaking—and the duty of regulating the regency as a safeguard against the sovereign's premature death. These matters must be speedily broached in council, but are not controversial.

The date of the veto resolutions is the burning question in party politics. It cannot be deferred except by the consent of Mr Balfour and Premier Asquith and the abrogation of John Redmond's absolute veto on legislation which he dislikes. The militant unionists are anxious to create the impressions that King Edward was hounded out of life by radical partisanship, that King George is an old-fashioned Tory and new-fangled Imperial and tariff reformer, and that loyalty will be the supreme issue in the next canvass.

These hotspurs would like to have it so, but they are dragging the sovereign into the deepest waters of current politics when they talk in this excited way. The King has not been an offensive partisan while heir to the throne, and he will naturally become impartial and neutral as a constitutional sovereign. His inexperience entitles him to plead for delay in relation to the vexatious question of guarantees. A truce could easily be arranged between Premier Asquith and Mr Balfour as a favor to the sovereign were it not for coronation year. The unionists naturally object to two years' lease of power for the radicals.

King Edward had his own circle of intimate friends who were leaders in the social life during his reign. King George is likely to accept them especially as he has never headed a rival coterie of his own. The same smart set will continue to influence society, although its idolized leader has gone.

King George, after the period of mourning is over, is likely to become a patron of the turf, as his father was, and also of yachting, for which he has a marked taste. When the coronation is over he will make the rounds of the great country houses and race courses, as his father was accustomed to do and the richest and most ambitious people in society will swarm about him wherever he goes. A style has been set for conducting the business of reigning and supplying social atmosphere, and everything will go on as before.

HER WEIGHT INCREASED FROM 100 TO 140 POUNDS.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES, MAIN BUILDING FOR PATIENTS.

A national institution that accepts patients from all parts of Canada. Here is one of hundreds of letters being received daily:—

John D. McNaughton, New Liskeard, Ont.: A young man not belonging here, and suffering from, it is believed, consumption, is being kept by one of the hotels here. He has no means and has been refused admission to our hospital. The conditions where he is offer him no chance. Could he be admitted to your Free Hospital for Consumptives? If not, could you inform me where he can be sent, and what steps are necessary to secure prompt admittance?

NOT A SINGLE PATIENT HAS EVER BEEN REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL BECAUSE OF HIS OR HER INABILITY TO PAY.

Since the hospital was opened in April, 1902, one thousand five hundred and twenty-four patients have been treated in this one institution, representing people from every province in the Dominion. For the week ending November 20th, 1909, one hundred and twenty-five patients were in residence. Ninety-six of these are not paying a copper for their maintenance—absolutely free. The other twenty-nine paid from $2.00 to $4.90 a week. No one pays more than $4.90.

Suitable cases are admitted promptly on completion of application papers.

A GRATEFUL PATIENT

Norah P. Canham: Enclosed you will find receipt for my ticket from Gravenhurst, hoping that you will be able to oblige me with the fare. I was at your Sanatorium ten months, and I was sent away from there as an apparent cure. I am now working in the city, and I am feeling fine. I was most thankful for the care I got from the doctors and staff, and I must say that I spent the time of my life while I was there.
