TRIED REMEDY FOR THE GRIP.

One Hundred Years Old.

On Thursday, November 11th, was celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the North British and Mercantile.

The largest corporation in the world, writing fire insurance, is the N. B. & M. It has assets of over one hundred and sixty million dollars. The conflagrations of the United States alone have cost it eight millions, while its assets in the United States are in excess of seven millions.

The Company had its origin in the North British of Edinburgh, founded November 11, 1809, to write fire insurance only, adding a life department in 1823. In 1862 it was amalgamated with the Mercantile of London, with a general court of directors. Offices are maintained in both London and Edinburgh, the former having special charge of the foreign connection of the Company. Beside branch offices all over Great Britain, the Company has branches in the United States, Canada, Australia, South Africa, India, Ceylon, Argentine, Austria and Germany.

J. W. Astle is the agent for this section of the province for the above company.

Fashions and Fads.

Penkin messaline is the name given to a particularly alluring silk striped chifon cloth that is favorite for blouses.

The fashion of zibeline as a dress fabric has become a fad.

Sumptuous wraps for the afternoon as well as for the evening are made with wide, loose sleeves, and many have the burnous drapery.

Scarfs of white pongee are novel and attractive. They are finished with a buttonhole edge and have more or less elaborate handwork as well.

Two rich materials, tapestry and fur, are to be found on some lovely little turbans and the effect is beautiful.

We are getting the coiffure of heavy braids wound around the hat and the slightly parted filled hair in front.

Challs are back again in lovely designs which offer dainty colored relief from the ever-present plain white shirt waist.

As trimming on daytime dresses and evening robes, beads are used with great success.
They are seen in all colors.

Muoreen is coming into favor again as a material for undershirts. It is found in a variety of colors and wears exceedingly well.

Heavy mosquito sleeves are in vogue.

There is a fad for amber hair ornaments.

Already the Moynage style is on the wane.

Laes is much in vogue for blouses and gowns.

Draperies are high in favor for formal gowns.

Jet cigarettes appear on some of the smart turbans.

Dark sepia is the most stylish shade of suede footwear.

Mandarin is the name given to a yellowish tan. White Corinth is an extremely faded shade of old rose.

Beads and braids combine to make some of the new and unusual cabochons on hats and gowns. They are to be had in a variety of colors.

Of Cures for Colds.

Their name is literally legion, for hardly a drug can be mentioned, hardly a substance discovered, which is capable of either being swallowed or inhaled that has not been recommended as a cough remedy. Eighteenths of all colds are mild infections, which run their course until the body has time to produce an antitoxin or antibody to stop their further progress. As this process in reasonably healthy individuals is usually carried out in from four to six days, anything which happens to be given in that time stands a fair chance of getting a reputation as a cure. The only sure cure for colds and coughs is to avoid the infections and the foul air of illventilated rooms and buildings in which they breed; to keep the body toned up to fighting pitch, by cold baths and an abundance of fresh air, especially in the bedroom; and if the infection does get a foothold, to assist Nature in her fight against it by rest in the open air, and promoting elimination through the skin, bowels and kidneys. In fine, don't tinker with symptoms; look for the cause and remove it.

Don't try to lock the stable door after the horse is stolen, but train your horse to bite strangers, attack is the best defense. Keep your body at good fighting weight, and you can defy disease. Sunlight, food, fresh air and exercise are the only cure-alls known.
Don't worry about disease and what to take when you are sick, but work for health.— Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in Woman's Home Companion.

Lower Greenfield.

Edward Caldwell left for Plaster Rock last Tuesday where he intends working in the woods.

There was an oyster stew and a dance at L. Hovey's, January 18th. But on account of the rain there was not a very large crowd.

Mrs. C. H. Kilpatrick and daughter, Jennie, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. Scot McCain.

After our recent heavy rains there is but little snow left on the roads, so they are very icy.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Kinney and little daughter, Gladys, called on Mrs. A. Kinney one evening last week.

Mrs. I. Shannon who has been ill for about three weeks with a severe cold is not much improved in health.

Mrs. A. C. Caldwell is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. Crane of Bath.

Miss Annie Kilpatrick left last week in company with her sister, Mrs. H. H. Mc-Cain, for Vancouver, B. C.

Shiloh's Cure quickly stops coughs, cures colds, heals the throat and lungs. 25 cents.

Why Dickens Wrote "Christmas Carol."

(From London Truth.)

I noticed a statement in one of the papers last week that Dickens wrote his "Christmas Carol" with the express object of reviving the popular interest in the Christmas season and its festivities. This is a pleasing fiction which had often been previously met with.
The fact is that Dickens wrote the "Chris-mas Carol" in the autumn of 1843 because he was short of money and in great need of £1,000. The most candid chapter in Forster's "Life" is the one (in the second volume) which relates the tale of Dickens' disappointment and despair when he received the "Carol" accounts, for instead of the £1000 he "had set his heart and soul upon," the sum due to him was only £230. Dickens wrote: My rare bills unpaid, are so terrific that all the energy and determination I can possibly exert will be required to me before I go abroad." Dickens cleared £726 by the "Christmas Carol" on a sale of 15,000 copies.

What a Singer Should Eat and Drink.

(By Enrico Caruso.)

"With regard to a 'singing' diet," says Caruso in his "Reminiscences." "I incline toward the simpler and more nourishing kinds of food, though my tastes are broad in the matter. Still, on the nights when I sing, except perhaps, for a sandwich and a glass of my native Chianti, for which I have always retained a fondness, I take nothing until after the performance, when I have a modest supper of anything which I happen to fancy, and which I have proved has no ill-effects on me. But really experience has taught me that it is by no means easy to lay down any hard and fast rule with regard to the commissariat department, as this must always be to a great extent a matter of personal taste. Besides, common sense should soon teach the singer what particular diet is suitable to his own individual constitution, and then, obviously, he has only to adhere to that regime.

"As far as smoking is concerned, although in moderation I find that the practice is not injurious to me, yet all young singers I would warn against it. Still, many great singers have been most inveterate smokers.
Mario, for instance, was an inordinate smoker, and, apparently, it did him no harm, for he smoked from twenty-five to thirty ordinary-sized cigars a day, and in Italy where real Havana cigars are rarely obtainable, he frequently smoked as many as a hundred Cavours a day."
