DOCTORS FAILED.
RESTORED BY PERUNA.

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna.

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me.

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it.

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me.

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment.

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

Jacksonville.

Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Turner with Miss Clara and Miss Ethel, spent two days with friends in Debec last week.

Miss Turner left on Monday evening for Sussex to resume her studies as Domestic Science teacher.

Mr. Ernest Harper left on Monday evening for Truro to continue his studies in the school there.

All of the Normal students have returned to Fredericton and the teachers to their schools in out-lying districts making the place much quieter. Among those who have gone are Misses Eda Stipp, Ruth Harper and Fay Plummer.

On Friday evening last a number of young and old people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chipman Tilley for a pleasant time; the true reason for their gathering was made clearer however, when, after a half hour social chat, Miss Alice Tilley was called upon to accept from the congregation of the Methodist church a handsome music cabinet as a token of regard and in appreciation of her faithful services as organist for nearly five years. Rev. E. C. Turner pastor of the church made the presentation.

The week of prayer is being observed by holding union services in the Methodist and Baptist churches here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ansley Alterton gave a very enjoyable time to the young people of the different members of their family on New Year's night.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hannah entertained a few guests on Saturday evening.

Fun in the Civil Service.

Two example of the way in which the clerks in the Home office, London, used to amuse themselves forty years ago, are recounted by Sir Robert Anderson, K. C., in an article in January Busy Man's. They would seem to indicate that life in the civil service in England is by no means a continuous round of drudgery and hard work.

"Making hay in a man's room," says Sir Robert, "was one of the stock amusements. On coming back from luncheon one day I found every movable article of every kind which my room contained piled up on my table, and Lord Granville's Private Secretary—Mr. (afterwards Sir Robert) Meade—standing in the middle of the floor surveying the pyramid. He had called on some important Foreign Office business. This was too much for me. I told no tale, but I represented to the Chief that I found it very inconvenient to be upstairs, and a room on the main floor was again assigned to me."

Again he relates, "on my arrival one morning I found a note from Sir James Ferguson's Secretary—his intimates called him "Creepers"—announcing that at 3 o'clock precisely an old hat, lately the property of the Chief Clerk, would be kicked off from the end of the corridor, and requesting the favor of my presence. When Big Ben struck three I heard "Creepers" cheery voice ring out, 'All on sides: Play.' We all turned out, and game began. On emerging from an unusually hot "scrimmage," I became conscious of the presence of a stranger at my side, a timid little Frenchman, who meekly inquired, 'Is dis de office for de naturalization? It was!'"

Stains.
(Theodosia Garrison.)

The three ghosts on the lonesome road
Spoke each to one another;
"Whence came that stain about your mouth
No lifted hand may cover?"

"From eating of forbidden fruit,
Brother, my brother."

The three ghosts on the sunless road
Spoke each to one another,
"Whence came that red burn on your foot,
No dust or ash may cover?"

"I stamped a neighbor's hearth-flame out,
Brother, my brother."

The three ghosts on the windless road
Spoke each to one another,
"Whence came that blood upon your hand,
No other hand may cover?"

"From breaking of a woman's heart,
Brother, my brother."

"Yet on the earth clean men we walked,
Glutton and Thief and Laver;"

"White flesh and fair it hid our stains,
That no man might discover.

"Naked the soul goes up to God,
Brother, my brother."

The Sons of Time.
(Christian Burke.)

Time's youngest child, the blue-eyed, new-born Year,
Woke in the darkness of mid-winter drear;
Saw the wide plains and cities vast where'er
Men woke and slept 'mid toil and want and sin;
And pausing where the Old Year made his bed,
'I care not for this world of yours,' he said,
'I pray you, Father, of your kindly grace,
Carry it onward yet a twelve-month's space.'

But he made answer, 'Nay, not so, my Son,
Yours is the work that I must leave undone,
Already is your shadow o'er it cast,
Mine mingles with the irrevocable Past;
Then he went forth—a wan, death-stricken man,
While the boy wept, and thus the year began.

Poultry Notes.

Barley is a fine feed for chickens as the grain contains a large percentage of ash and assists in bone and egg making.

Corn is a useful feed for hens, but should be used sparingly, and it is better at night as a means of supplying warmth to the body of the poultry.

Millet has special advantages in poultry feeding, as it induces scratching. The millet should of course, be thrown in direct from the mow, leaving the hens to scratch out the seed for themselves.

Leaves and heads of clover from the bottom of the mow, or at the end of a feed chute, will make capital feed for hens. The clover may be fed either day or made part of a mash.

Cabbage is one of the best vegetable foods for hens in winter. The cabbage is not only succulent, but contains a large amount of ash and protein. A cool cellar with the cabbage on shelves, or hung from the joists will be found the best place to keep the vegetables stored.

When Skirts are Long.

There is confusion in the minds of many concerning skirts. There is so much talk about smart gowns being five inches from the floor for evening and nearly six inches for morning, that women wonder if there is any hour in which the long, graceful skirt is worn.

The strict decree of fashion is this: Skirts five or six inches from the ground for street-wear, skirts that sweep over the floor in a round train for the afternoon, and skirts five inches from the floor for the evening.

That is the decree! Every one does not have to abide by it, but numbers of women will accept it in part, if not in whole. They may not have every evening gown made short, or every afternoon frock made long, but they will assuredly have one of each kind to show that they know what is being done in the world of fashion.

"It's a good plan to lay something by for a rainy day," observed the Wise Guy. "Yes, but don't invest all your money in umbrellas!" cautioned the Simple Mug.
