

INDIGESTION

Dyspepsia Means Slow Starvation.

By the testimony of actual cures—by the words of those who have proved the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, you can satisfy yourself that indigestion and dyspepsia are curable.

"Four years ago I got into a condition of low health—suffered all possible torture with acute indigestion, wind on the stomach, and dizzy headaches. The very smell of food often was sufficient to make me violently ill. Energy was gradually fading away. I no longer had any desire for work or for the company of other people, and was in the depths of despair. Worse martyrdom brain and body could not suffer, and live. I used so many remedies without success that I was in poor hopes of getting relief when I started on Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In a month I noticed a slight improvement, and kept right on using one pill every second night. In a month I was another man, looked ruddy, strong, hearty, and I felt as if I had been made anew. Four years have gone by, and I still rely on Dr. Hamilton's Pills and attribute to their power my present condition of robust health."

An Exception.

Herewith a belated story of the British elections, which is being sufficed with great glee on various members of the Board of Trade.

A certain Primrose dame, young and enthusiastic, tackled a withered old country-woman one morning to secure the husband's vote for the Unionist candidate.

"You know," she said winningly, "if we can only get Tariff Reform your husband will get much more work."

"Ah'm thinkin' not."

replied the wife.

"Oh, but he will! Everybody will!"

"Ah'm thinkin' not."

"But he will. There will be more factories and more money spent on the land and more work for everyone."

"D'ye understand what ma man works at?"

"O, it makes no difference, Tariff Reform means more work for everybody."

"Ah'm thinkin' not. Ma man, 'e's a grave digger, miss."

Frenzied Finance.

(From the Kansas City Journal)

Here is an incident that a Chanutman tells as having occurred in a certain Kansas town. He was in the ticket-office and watched the proceedings.

A man came up to the window and asked for a ticket to Kansas City inquiring the price.

"Two twenty-five," said the agent.

The man dug down into a well-worn pocket-book and fished out a bill. It was a bank-note for $2.00. It was also all the money he had.

"How soon does this train go?" he inquired.

"In fifteen minutes," replied the agent.

The man hurried away. Soon he was back with three silver dollars, with which he bought a ticket.

"Pardon my curiosity," said the ticket-seller "but how did you get that money? It isn't a loan, for I see you have disposed of the $2 bill."

"That's all right," said the man. "No I did not borrow. I went to a pawn-shop and soaked the bill for $2.50. Then as I started back here I met an old acquaintance, to whom I sold the pawn-ticket for $1.50. I then had $3 and he has the pawn ticket for which the two-dollar bill stands as security."

Triumph of Engineering.

(Youth's Companion)

One of the greatest triumphs in the history of engineering is the completion of the tunnel, or series of tunnels, through the Andes, which allows direct railway travel across South America to Buenos Ayres to Valparaiso. Hitherto, winter travels went by way of the Straits of Magellan, a rough sea voyage. The tunnel has been in progress of construction for many years, and twice the work has been abandoned in despair. A New York syndicate solved the problem at last, and it is announced that trains will be running early

RATHER STALE BREAD.

"What! a loaf of bread over 1,800 years old? Nonsense!" Well, my friend, there is no nonsense about it. You can see several of them in the Royal National Museum, at Naples, burned black like carbon, or charcoal. They were found in the ruins of Pompeii, a city that was buried by an eruption of hot, fiery ashes from Mount Vesuvius in the year 79. No one could eat this bread, although carbon is the element in our food that promotes heat in the body.

When indigestion prevails, your food does not nourish you and you have headaches, poor blood, constipation, dizziness, and other ills. Mother Seigel's Syrup, the sure herbal remedy cures all these ills. Mr. Burton Shortliffe, Central Grove, Digby Co., N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with indigestion for a long time and found relief as Mother Seigel's Syrup. For indigestion and all stomach troubles it is a grand remedy."

in the coming summer. There are three tunnels, with an aggregated length of eleven miles. The highest station on the line is about ten thousand five hundred feet above sea level. The third of the tunnels is described as screw-shaped and drops twenty-seven thousand feet. The total cost of the work is about twelve million dollars.

Making Waist Frills.

The girl who only cares for pick-up work should start embroidered frills for her summer shirtwaists. These may be done in colored lawn or nainsook or mull with embroidery in vivid tones.

Allow enough material for gathering the frill when finished. If it is to be knife plaited, two and a half times the length is necessary. A circular flounce must be stamped along line of shaping, but be not cut out to work, as it will pull.

The edge of these flounces may be hemmed and worked with satin stitch dots, coin or pin, in one or two tones; or they can be buttonholed in color and have three or five rows of chain stitching, the first an eight of an inch from point of scallop.

Measure liberally, better too much flouncing than not enough.

More quickly prepared than embroidered flouncing is that with a narrow band of color added to edge of a white strip. This should be cut an inch and a quarter wide to allow for seam. Turn in edges, double and baste to material which is placed within the hem. Stich on machine or brial stitch.

An easier method is to fold the half inch band on out side of ruffle like a facing and stitch down on right side. This is not so artistic as it shows but one colored edge.

Deep pink, blue or green hems on white are effective, but scarcely so new as the use of colored lawns marked with white or self-toned dots.

Several sets of such flounces may be worked at odd moments and will prove a saving to time and pocketbook when summer sewing begins.

As Priscilla Sees Things.

(Boston Advertiser)

This is a season of many shades, crepe weaves and iridescent effects, a season when fabrics in silk have their counterparts in cotton and wool, silks and cottons, and silk and wool. Take the single fabric known as crepe de chine. In its original state it was only of silk, but now it is manufactured in cotton, in silk and cotton, and in silk and wool. It is both embroidered and printed, and woven in two colors or iridescent.

And other materials have undergone the same metamorphosis. There are shedwater foulards, crepe, cashmere, iridescent, satin faced and silk and cotton foulards. A marvellous array, and not one of the family may be neglected, for each has its own claim to beauty.

It would be better, perhaps, to tag each fabric separately, so that she who wishes to purchase her spring costumes may have a full grasp of the situation and its possibilities and know, before settling out upon her shopping tour, exactly what she desires.

As the spring suit is usually the first consideration, the suitings, perhaps, should come first. Serges of all kinds are in demand, for they adapt themselves equally well to the Russian blouse and the much trimmed short coat. The serge of former years has now been augmented by the wide wale, the diagonal and wide wale diagonal, each of which speaks for itself.

There are the canvas serge, a near relation to the familiar panama, and hop-sacking, a German material of loose and rather rough weave. In chevrons, which are always desirable, there are diagonals and heavy, unevenly woven effects, and these are a good investment if the suit is to be worn in the mountains during the summer months or is intended to be worn until late in the autumn.

Fashions and Fads

Rain coats are worn several inches shorter than the skirt, no matter how short the skirt may be.

Large sailor hats, with more or less of a rolling, upturned brim, are shown in many styles.

With all the richness and beauty of the season's materials there is a fad for expensive simplicity.

Tiny velvet buttons are seen on some of the prettiest foulard gowns shown for spring wear.

A great deal of soutache braiding appears on the dressy broadcloth coats for children of from three to seven years.

It seems that the rabat is to have a rather successful season since it appears as a coat, dress and blouse decorations.

Some of the narrow colored edgings are exceedingly smart, used as trimmings on child fish gingham or wash frocks.

New hat braids are either coarse to extremity or of a very fine nature, such as Laghorn, Milan, hemp and hair.

Shallow yokes of net, lace or fine embroideries are a feature of many of the new dresses. Sleeves on the latest models are short. Spring styles show a strong Russian influence. We find Russian blouses in vogue, and Russian turbans worn with Russian mesh veils.

There are many attractive new handbags. Some of them are lined with suede, others with morie, while still others have no lining at all.

King Edward a Diplomat.

(From M A P)

There is not a Cabinet Minister who knows the movements of foreign nations half so intimately as Edward VII. There is not a Cabinet Minister who knows the desires of the British people half so intelligently as does His Majesty. King Edward is beyond all question the wisest Foreign Minister and the most intelligent Home Secretary in the world. The King's training as a diplomat was very carefully looked after by Queen Victoria, who saw that his memory was well trained and that he was thoroughly conversant with many foreign languages from the days of his youth. In his boyhood, on her instructions, the King was made to repeat to his tutor every night before going to bed the names of the people he had met during the day and the circumstances under which he had met them.

So long as one speaks of his sins with relish he would be lonesome without them.—Sel.

NERVOUS?

Do You Brood?
Have Morbid Fears?
Toss in Your Sleep?

Your Physical Condition Is Below Par and Must Be Built Up —Try Ferrozone.

All the vital activities of the body are quickened into new vigor by Ferrozone, which contains all the constituents necessary to make nerve strength.

Won't you try Ferrozone? Won't you give it a chance to win you back to health; it will do it, just as it did for Mrs. Creighton Zinck, of Palm street, Lunenburg, N.S., who says: "I want to give my experience with Ferrozone, because I believe it will be of assistance to thousands of women who need it badly. I was very thin, run down in flesh, and lacked color. My nerves were in a dreadful state. If anything fell I would jump and start. At night I would suddenly wake up, heart palpitating, and all keyed up. Ferrozone went right to work. It restored my poise and balance, gave me self-control, cured my nervousness. Ferrozone increased my appetite, and my weight came up so fast that I simply didn't need to use it any longer. Eight boxes cured me."

Why won't you use Ferrozone also, it certainly will do you good in many ways—sold by all druggists in 50c boxes, 6 for $2.50, by mail from The Catarhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.
