Peruna Secrets
You Should Know

Golden
Seal
Root.

Golden Seal, the root of the above plant, is a very useful medicine. Many people gather it in our rich woodlands during the summer. Few people know how valuable it is in dyspepsia, catarrh, and as a general tonic.

Many thousand pounds of this root are used each year in the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna. This fact explains why everybody uses Peruna for catarrh.

manac for 1910.

A Welcome Addition to Maritime Industries.

The enterprise and large business capacity of Mr T H Estabrooks has given him a commanding position in the tea trade of Canada, and made St. John the principal port of entry for Indian and Ceylon Teas in the Dominion. This success is especially remarkable because it has been won within a very few years. Persistent and judicious advertising has made Red Rose Tea a household word from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but the real basis of Mr. Estabrooks' success has been his unwavering adherence to his conviction that quality pays, and to his straightforward and generous business methods.
There is no man held in higher regard by the retail trade of Canada.

Having turned the eyes of Canada to St.
John for tea, Mr. Estabrooks has decided to enter the coffee trade, and with his established reputation and his far reaching business organization, backed by his keen business ability, success is assured.

This is not a sudden impulse, however.
For more than a year preparations on a large and comprehensive scale have been under way. A plant fashioned after the most scientific and commercially approved methods has been installed and is now in operation.
The coffee, instead of being ground, is now crushed between steel rollers, which turn it out in grains of uniform size. This is the most modern and approved method of preparing coffee for use.

The same day it is roasted, the coffee is crushed and put up in pound and half-pound doubly-sealed air tight tins.

Only one grade of coffee will be put on the market, and it will be a grade to appeal to particular people. With coffee, as with tea Mr. Estabrooks will adhere to the principal of quality goods.

Coffee blending, roasting and packing by new scientific methods, and on a large scale, will be a welcome industry in the Maritime Provinces, and for this reason as well as for his own sake, the trade will wish Mr. Estabrooks unbounded success in his new venture.
The new coffee will bear the name "Estabrooks Red Rose Coffee." The labels are very handsome, and in addition to directions for making, give a description of the new crushing process.

Liberty Silk in Fashion.

A debutante of this season will wear a great deal of liberty silk. This is the identical fabric we have had with us for years, out of which we have made scarfs and drapery, and even window curtains. It is London's famous material, but Paris produced it wholesale this year, and has sent it out in numerous kinds of evening frocks.

It is dyed in shaded tones, sometime running from a pale red to a flesh pink, or a deep violet to a blue amethyst. It is an admirable fabric for the overdressed gowns of to-day, as it does not add bulk to any figure, no matter how much is used.

Many of the dancing frocks of it have the modified washerwoman's tunic, cut longer than usual, below the knee, looped into a loose bow with ends at back, with a plaited flounce below it. And all the dancing gowns are from four to five inches short showing the entire ankle, the drapery of this liberty silk does not have its full value. It looks cut off, whereas last year's drapery was allowed such a long swing that it fell into graceful lines.

It is quite true that the early Autumn gowns for evening wear were long, and this gave rise to impression that the short frock of Paris would not be accepted; but Winter styles show the extra short skirt everywhere.

Debutantes are charmed over their double change of showing that they are grown-up, and have entire comfort in the evening by wearing short skirts. They can dance to the hearts content without being exhausted in the effort to hold up their skirts.

These five-inch-off-floor frocks are not restricted to young girls. Women of 50 wear them with so much placity as did their ancestors.

This is not a graceful fashion. There is nothing to recommend in it for any one over 20 year old, but the fashion designers have not been overzealous for three years in finding graceful fashions.

A Woman Suffrage Story.

"The woman suffrage movement has some humorous aspects," remarked Homer B.
Mason, the comedian who is featured with "A Stubborn Cinderella."

"It was brought out in an amusing fashion on the Lusitania when I was returning from a trip to England last summer," he continued.

"Just before we sailed, a woman came on board accompanied by her daughter. They were Americans returning to New York. I've seen a good many beautiful women but never so wonderfully beautiful as this one traveling with her mother. She was tall with fair hair, blue eyes and a creamy complexion.

"At dinner time all the men on the boat, it seems, were panting for introductions. She knew it, too, and she led them the most amusing dance I ever saw. I think she had a hundred of them in love with her at the same time. She couldn't move an inch without a dozen or so around her. She became the talk of the ship.

"I don't know what happened. It may have been that she was tired of their proposals. Anyhow, one day when there was a cluster around her she asked what they thought of the woman suffrage movement.

"Tommy rot," said one.

"A crowd of mad women," said another."

"Ugly old crones, looking for excitement," commented a third. And they characterized the women as 'senseless mortals,' 'pitiful objects' and the like.

The lady drew herself loftily aloft.

"I'm so glad you are candid," she said;
'You may be surprised to hear that I am a suffragette and that I marched in a procession around London.'

"There was a tableau. A cold shiver, cooling all their ardor, rang down the backs of the congregated men. One by one they melted away, but before they had quite disappeared the lady stood on a seat and shouted triumphantly: 'Votes for women.'

"And for the rest of the trip she received the cold shoulder, which provided a scene almost as comical as the first had been."

His Name on the Programme.

At a church school, once upon a time, when a concert was being held, the choir was on the programme to sing an anthem, and their place was designated by the single word "Anthem." The gentleman who was master of ceremonies, a high-toned pompous individual of the old school, when he came to that part of the programme, announced in a dignified way:

"Mr. Anthem will now favor us."—Judge.

Don't Borrow.

Every time a man borrows, when by the exercise of resolution, self-denial, determination, he could avoid assuming an obligation, he does two things which will not make for his betterment. He mortgages his future as well as wastes his present, and makes a rent in his character which must be repaired.

Borrowing is not conducive to self-reliance but is on the contrary a desecration of one's better self. In seeking aid from another we in fact say, "Support me to-day, I am not sufficient unto myself. I may be able to stand alone.

Before we take the first needless loan we have lowered our flag a trifle. The tendency henceforth is downward. "Who goes a borrowing goes a-sorrowing," says the old proverb. We have opened the door to the cuming wild man within us, and you may depend upon it, that he will not go out until he is chased out with a club.

Remedy for Chilblains.

This is given by an exchange as a remedy for chilblains: Take equal parts of white vinegar, spirits of turpentine and an egg, and stir or shake together in a bottle until thoroughly mixed. Then rub over the blain gently. If the skin is broken, make an ointment of one scruple of benzoate of zinc mixed with one ounce of fresh lard, and apply several times daily. A scraped turnip is claimed to be good.
