

Styles in Summer Frocks

"There is nothing monotonous about the summer frocks," says Grace Margaret Gould in Women's Home Companion for May. "One can have any number of new gowns this season and yet not have any two alike, and really it is their variety that has much to do with their pleasant charm. There are plain waists and trimmed waists; short sleeves and long sleeves, and skirts in so many different styles that it hardly seems possible that they were designed for the same season.

"The more simple type of dress, the peasant blouse, with the plain skirt gathered at the back, is quite the most modish model of the summer. These little dresses show the elbow-length sleeve cut in one with the bodice. The blouse has generally a round low neck finished with a frill. Many of the linen dresses will be made in this style, sometimes with the skirt perfectly plain and then again finished at the bottom with a band of linen hand embroidered in Russian colors, for instance. Pongee is another material which will be largely used specially in its natural shade for dresses of this type. These pongee dresses will look the most attractive with the embroidered band at the bottom, and the cuffs and frill worked in the same shade as the pongee, with the color-note, which is this season so extremely important, introduced in the belt and hat."

The Tenant's Toast.

The following story gives a good idea of the drinking style in England early in the last century. This was what the men of that day took for humor:

Two young English noblemen were paying a visit to Lord Panmure at Brechin Castle. One day he wrote a letter to Paulathie, a tenant of his, to come and dine with him, and at the same time he ordered him to bring a sum of money.

Paulathie was aware when he received the order that something was to be done and went prepared.

After dinner Lord Panmure gave the first toast, which was, "All hats in the fire or £20 on the table." Four hats were immediately in the fire.

One of the English noblemen gave the next toast, "All coats in the fire or £50 on the table." Four coats were committed to the flames.

The other English nobleman gave the next toast, "All boots in the fire or £100 on the table." The whole of the boots were committed to the flames.

Paulathie's toast came next, which was, "Two fore teeth in the fire or £200 on the table," and Paulathie pulled his teeth out and threw them into the fire.

The English noblemen looked amazed. They didn't know he had false teeth, and Paulathie went home without hat, coat or boots, but with £600 in his pocket. Lord Panmure thought much of his tenant after that.

Mr Ernest Hanson

Besides his parents, he is survived by a widow and one daughter, Faye, three brothers, Harry, Norton and Guy, of Woodstock. He was in the employ of Moores Bros. at Griswold, Me., as millwright for a number of years and was a most competent workman.

INVALUABLE TO EVERY FARMER

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion, and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop.—James E. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc."

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not something else. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Radiate Joy.

Always hold kindly thoughts, charitable, magnanimous, loving thoughts toward everybody; then you will not depress them and hinder them, but will scatter sunshine and gladness instead of sadness and shadow, help and encouragement instead of discouragement.

Be one of those who are always radiating success thoughts, scattering sunshine wherever they go. These are the helpers of the world, the lighteners of burdens, the people who ease the jolts of life and soothe the wounded and give solace to the discouraged.

Learn to radiate joy, not stingily, not meanly but generously. Fling out your gladness without reserve. Shed it in the home, on the street, on the car, in the store, everywhere, as the rose sheds its beauty and flings out its fragrance.

When the world learns that love thoughts heal—that they carry balm to wounds; that thoughts of harmony, of beauty, and of truth always uplift, beautify and ennoble; that the opposite carry, death, destruction and blight everywhere—it will learn the true secret of right living
