"THE WOLF"

WITH MR PAUL GILMORE AND A STRONG COMPANY, HAYDEN GIBSON, AUG 24.

The wind whispers through the pines. The snowshoes glide through the trackless forest; the click click of the ax is heard, as the surveyors make ready for the coming of the railroad. Into this scene, we drop a log cabin and inside the cabin we place characters, some good, some bad, some wise, some foolish. Jules Beauchien, big of heart and body, to whom woman is as the pure, white flowers of his beloved wilderness. William MacDonald, for whom woman is but a plaything; George Huntley, assistant to MacDonald, as light of heart as of foot; B'Atiste, in whose simple large soul, only two ideas can exist, love for Jules Beauchien, and hatred for the man who wronged Jules' sister. MacTavish, also a big character, slightly touched by the by the God of the wilderness with its solitude; and then MacTavish's daughter, Hilda, with the yellow hair of her Swedish mother, and a great love grown into her heart for the temperamental Jules.

And back of it all, shrill, loud and eager at the first, the call of the Wolf, until at last, it dies away, disappointed in the end of its prey, even as MacDonald the human "wolf," is disappointed also.

A big play, heart-grIPPING in its every incident, a play as big as the wilds it depicts—all done in the best of English, simple, grand and understandable, by the ablest of writers, "Eugene Walter."

Miss Mary Milmore returned on Friday night from a pleasant visit to St Andrews.

A Burtt Picnic

An interesting event took place on Thursday, August 18th, at the residence of Geo Burtt, at Jacksonville.

The homecoming of Herbert Burtt and family from Minneapolis suggested to some near relative that the present would be an appropriate opportunity for a "gathering of the clans."

Accordingly a picnic of a unique character was organized and carried through with admirable success.

The date itself was a happy arrangement. Following the beautiful days of the earlier part of the week, it was sufficiently late to a low most of those concerned to be free from the claims of the hayfield, while it was sufficiently near the dull weather of Friday and the rain of Thursday night to remove all remaining compunction from the mind of the few who had sacrificed the claims of business to those of a tenderer nature. At the same time, the weather conditions, though somewhat dull in no way interfered with the original arrangements, nor damped the ardor and enjoyment of the guests.

Seventy-two friends gathered and a stranger would have been utterly bewildered in undergoing the ordeal of introduction. No less than twenty-nine persons by the name of Burtt, and the whole of the rest of the company consisted of close relatives to the family of that name, with the exception of the local Baptist pastor and his wife and child, and a visiting clergyman, Rev D Hutchinson, D D, of Main St, St John.

Most of the interest centered around the extremes of the company there being three babies present under one year old, and three persons whose aggregate age amounted to 276 years. These are David Burtt, of Centerville, aged 82; Mrs Samuel Burtt of Jacksonville, aged 84 and Mrs Benjamin Burtt, of Jacksonville, aged 90.

Commencing to gather about 2 00 p m, the company spent a happy afternoon on the picnic grounds, playing quoits, rifle-firing swinging and other pleasant and simple recreations, which were not engaged in by the more aged section of the company.

After a little delay, owing to the showery weather, an excellent repast was laid upon the table in the orchard and partaken of with the appreciation of sharpened appetites.

After supper, Miss Nellie Burtt rendered two telling humorous recitations with evident power of elocution and gesture. Rev W H Johnson also recited, and Rev Dr Hutchinson delivered a short speech of congratulation and good wishes.

Mr and Mrs George Burtt and Mrs Albert Burtt, of Jacksonville, and Haddon Burtt of Woodstock, together with the innumerable company of Misses Burtt who came to the assistance, are all to be congratulated upon the highly successful event the happy issue of which was so largely due to their efforts.
