

SPRING TIME IS CHURN TIME

There is no churn on the market that has so many satisfied users as the DAISY.

The barrel of the DAISY is made of seasoned oak, will not chip or break, keeps sweet and clean, runs on steel ball-bearings, fitted with cream breakers and easily detachable. The frame is steel, securely braced, and has combin-hand and foot drive.

The DAISY CHURN is sold only by

As the result of a vote by architects and students of architecture in all parts of the country, the ten most beautiful buildings in the United States were recently named in the following order: National Capitol, Washington; Boston Public Library, Trinity Church, Boston; Congressional Library, Washington; Columbia University Library, Trinity Church, Madison Square Garden, St Patrick's Cathedral, all in New York; Biltmore House, Biltmore, North Carolina; New York City Hall. The vote which gave the National Capitol first place was practically unanimous. In the list are three churches, three libraries, two government buildings, one private residence and one amusement building. All the structures, except the churches, are of the style of the Renaissance and classic revival. Of the churches, Trinity, in Boston, is in the Romanesque style, and St Patrick's Cathedral and Trinity in New York are Gothic.—Youth's Companion.

A DAILY THOUGHT.

They say there is nothing which communitates itself so quickly amongst the members of a family as an expression of coldness or discontent on the face of one of its members. It is like the frost that chills us. This is not altogether true; there is something which is communicated with equal rapidity and greater force—I mean the smiling face, the beaming countenance, the happy heart.

"When Kunnel Rosefelt comes, does your reckon I could git him for gimme a job up in Washington?" said Brother Dickey.

"Old man," someone said, "do you think Roosevelt is President now?"

Oh, I well knows he ain't President, so ter speak, but ez he's runnin' de whole country, he orter have de givin' away of de jobs.—Atlanta Constitution.

Removing Mildew From Linen.

Its rather difficult to remove Mildew from linen, but the best way to treat it is to take equal parts of soft soap and powdered starch and half the quantity of table salt with as much lemon juice as well as convert the whole into a thick paste. Cover the mark with this mixture, and leave the linen exposed to the open air till the Mildew disappears.

"Why do you weep over the sorrows of people in whom you have no interest when you go to the theatre?" asked the man.
"I don't know," replied the woman.
"Why do you cheer wildly when a man with whom you are not acquainted slides to second base?"—Washington Star.

Reaching the People

A prominent real estate dealer in Toronto says that he gets better and quicker results from the Classified Want Ads. than from any other kind of publicity. He states that the results are out of proportion to the small expense involved.
There is a moral in that for you if you want to reach the people.

Polygamy is doomed in Utah. The Mormon Church has recently excommunicated a bishop who had married polygamously, and a patriarch, who had officiated at a polygamous wedding. Such discipline counts more against the practise than any number of paper edicts, or decrees, or proclamations.—Youth's Companion.

When Canada Leads.
Not in the least among the distinctions held by Canada is the lead given to all other countries in Christendom in the movement toward the reunion of the Church. Australia is first to follow Canada in a serious and hopeful effort for the organic union of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational denominations. Conditions there are not unlike conditions here. The same ecclesiastical divisions were imported from Britain and persisted in both countries, working the same waste and weakness. There as here the best men in all the Churches came to feel the burden and the shame of their outgrown sectarianism. They learned that truth is above all creeds, and that service to men is more obligatory than the maintenance of names and shibboleths. Experience proved to them that neither at home nor abroad can the Church do its great work of evangelization if its campaigns are marked by neglect here, overlapping there, and cross-purposes everywhere. They faced the situation with open eyes and honest hearts. As in Canada, so in Australia, the result is a union movement.
The Canadian situation is full of interest. A half dozen years ago the union movement was initiated. It was not a matter of official leaders or ecclesiastics. It arose out of the necessities of the case and the temper of the people. At its inauguration its most conspicuous advocate was the late Principal Caven. He and others have been taken from the forefront, but the movement goes on.

CHASE & SANBORN, MONTREAL.

At each seemingly critical time the logic of events—the increasing purpose of God—disproved the fears of its friends and overcame the conservatism of its opponents. Today the union in Canada of these three historic churches, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational, seems plainly inevitable. And this too, not because of any commanding personality or well planned campaign, but because it is the common-sense and Christian thing to do. Almost everybody has preferences and prejudices, but these gradually vanish in the presence of recognized Christian duty and in the face of a gigantic world service.

At the present time the approved documents are before the various courts and representative bodies of the churches. The question for their consideration and decision is as to the suitability of the proposed articles as a basis of union. To that question the intelligence and conscience of the Churches are directed by their supreme courts. And in this Canada leads the way, watched sympathetically, hopefully, by all other countries under the flag, by the United States and by Christian communities in all lands. It is a distinction worth while.—Toronto Globe.

The Portuguese Republic will have an opportunity to do some notable house-cleaning, and of all the 'unclean parts,' as the 'Tribune' expresses it, there is none where the world will watch the new broom at work with so much downright satisfaction as in the cellar where Portugal's African affairs have been rotting for four centuries. As long ago as 1829 Portugal promised to abolish slavery altogether, but during the next decade the slave traffic from her African coast had more than trebled, and when the American Confederacy declared against the traffic in 1861 the same coast was still the world's slave market. At the time when Portugal, at the Berlin Conference of 1885, promised with all the world, to abolish slavery, her African possessions were worked by slaves, and the same state of affairs existed when King Manuel fled from Lisbon the other day, and the green and red flag of the Republic was run up on what had been his palace. English travellers relate that in one of the native dialects of Portuguese West Africa the word 'okalunga' means four things: 'death,' 'the depths of the sea,' 'hell' and 'the islands.' 'The islands'—the only islands of which most of the natives have ever heard—are San Thome and Principe, two scraps of land in the Gulf of Guinea. San Thome is about thirty-five miles long and fifteen broad, and the equator runs across the rocks at its southern end. Principe, perhaps one-fourth as large, lies eighty miles to the north. In the 'wet' season they are flooded with rain; in the 'dry' season they are drenched with the mists that steam up from the tropic sea about them. In the fearful heat there the cocoa tree flourishes and men grow sick. Forty thousand slaves work on these islands to-day. The cocoa they produce is one-fifth of the world's whole supply, and of the slaves themselves one-third die every year. It is for the sake of the island planters that Portugal has encouraged slavery; and the way the slaves are procured and treated is so infamous, that it cannot be written down for the public to read. The Portuguese monarchy promised to wipe out this blot again and again, but failed. It remains to be seen whether the Republic will be more humane.—Montreal Witness.

Horrible Scenes at Forest Fires

The New York American, in describing some of the scenes in connection with the recent forest fires in Minnesota, says: "Hundreds of settlers and their families, on horseback, in waggon and on foot, fled through the woods of Northern Minnesota to the broad and deep Rainy River, which divides the United States and Canada. They crossed it at fords, by boats, by swimming, by any means to reach Canada and safety. "With them fled their cattle, and mingled with the cattle, and even surrounding the settlers themselves, raced hundreds of deer, caribou and moose. Along the Minnesota banks of the river the settlers, horses and cattle dropped, exhausted, side by side with wolves, bears and wildcats, without a thought of any danger except that from the flames. The terror of a common enemy left no thought of anything else. "At times there were scores of animals swimming across the river. Perhaps never in the history of this country has such a herd of wild animals passed before the eyes of human refugees, but not one of them was shot or even molested."

USES FOR KEROSENE

Nothing is so quickly efficacious as kerosene for softening children's or adults' shoes that have been wet and dried hard. This all powerful emollient must be very freely and generously applied, as kerosene is quickly absorbed by the leather.
Kerosene will soften paste blacking that has become too dry and hard, and will give to shoes an added lustre and brightness.
Kerosene is an excellent cleanser for enameled bath-tubs, sinks and kitchen utensils.

GREASE ON WALL PAPER.

Grease can be removed from wall paper with blotting paper and a hot iron. Put the blotting paper over the stain and press it with the iron. By this process the stain will be transferred to the blotting paper. Other stains may be removed from wall paper by rubbing them with a piece of bread a day old or with a piece of flannel dipped in dry oatmeal.

THE VARIETY OF PINE.

The teacher had been reading to the class about the great forests of America. "And now, boys," she announced afterwards, "which one of you can tell me the pine that has the longest needles? Up went a hand in the front row. "Well, Tommy?" The porcupine, ma'am."

DO YOU KNOW

that 90% of the telephones used by Canadian farmers have been manufactured by us? We are proud of this fact, for we think you will agree with us that it is a guarantee that our telephones give satisfaction to the farmer; it was to satisfy the farmer that we spent $10,000 in designing and developing our 1317 type Telephone Set, which contains the most up-to-date features of any telephone intended to meet the requirements of rural service.

"How to Build Rural Telephone Lines" is the title of a most interesting and instructive book which we have just published and which we will be pleased to send you FREE. It not only contains a full description of our telephones, but it also tells the complete story of the organization and construction of a Rural Telephone Company from the time the first post hole is dug until the last telephone is installed. With this book you have something definite to work on and can go among your neighbors and organize a community-owned system in your own locality. The book costs nothing—write and ask for Bulletin No. 940 and we will send it FREE.
