

SPRING TIME IS CHURN TIME

There is no churn on the market that has so many satisfied users as the DAISY.

The barrel of the DAISY is made of seasoned oak, will not chip or break, keeps sweet and clean, runs on steel ball-bearings, fitted with cream breakers and easily detachable. The frame is steel, securely braced, and has combination and foot drive.

The DAISY CHURN is sold only by Household Suggestions.

Oiled paper is easily made at home. Brush sheets of papers with boiled oil and hang in the air to dry.

Add a little lemon juice to rice when boiling, for it makes the rice white and keeps the grains well separated.

When washing new black stockings add a handful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar to every two gallons of water.

The walls of outhouses and sculleries should be limewashed every spring. Lime destroys all insect life and purifies every thing.

To turn a hem on table linen, take out the needle of your sewing machine, and run the linen through the narrowest hemmer.

The fungus in your cellar will probably disappear if you stand boxes of lime in it. The lime absorbs the damp which is life to the fungus.

The extract of the mint is obtained by placing the mint leaves, carefully washed, in stew pan of cold water and allowing them to boil a few minutes. Strain and cool.

Old potatoes are greatly improved by being soaked overnight or for several hours before being peeled. Change the water once or twice during the time.

When ironing starched clothes, if the iron is dipped quickly into cold water each time when taken from the stove the starch will never stick, and the clothes iron smooth and quickly.

A very good substitute for glue can be made by rubbing a piece of cold boiled potato on paper until it is of the right consistency, when it will be found to be equal to strong glue or cement.

Second only to the beautiful promises of the Bible is the hold which the great hymns of the church have on the hearts of Christians. It is not surprising that a storm of protest has arisen within one of the leading Protestant bodies because those in charge of completing a new hymnal propose to omit Bishop Heber's misquotable hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." The charge that it "emphasizes nature rather than revealed religion" is not serious enough to avert the hearts of the faithful from it.—The Youth's Companion.

A TWENTIETH CENTURY LULLABY.

Father's in his monoplane, sailing round the moon,
Mother, in the taxicab won't be home till noon;
Brother's in his motor boat on the silent sea
Rock, wee motor cradle, in the nursery.
See the Silver Dream Balloon, down the Milky Way,
Floating through the starry drift to bear you far away?
Aeronauts with poppies crowned at the helm
I see—
Rock wee motor cradle in the nursery!

"Maria," demanded Mr Dorkins, "what has become of my pipe?"
"The last time I saw your old pipe, John Henry," said Mrs Dorkins, "it was moving in the direction of the sky."
"Do you mean to tell me that you threw it?"
"No, I never touched it. Heaven forbid! It seemed to be moving of its own accord."
"Where was it?"
"You seemed to be hanging on to it with all your might with your teeth."—Chicago Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for a list of testimonials. Address F. J. When using raisins for spice cake, try boiling the fruit for twenty minutes, and substitute the liquor in which they are cooked for part of the milk or molasses. The result will be most satisfactory.

Over the Alps by Aeroplane

George Chavez, a Peruvian aviator, achieved the before unattempted feat of crossing the Alps from Switzerland to Italy by aeroplane September 23, but was fatally injured in his descent. He rose in his monoplane from the vicinity of Brigue, Switzerland, to a height of more than 8,000 feet, passed over the region of the Simplon Pass, and descended at Domodossola, Italy. He was within 15 feet of the ground, after a swift descent, when his monoplane was overturned by a gust of wind, and he was crushed under it. Both legs were broken and he suffered other injuries, which caused his death.—The Youth's Companion.

How Do You Fight

(Elizabeth M Forler.)

Did you tackle that trouble that came your way

With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With craven soul and fearful?
O, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it,
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only, how did you take it!

You are beaten to Earth? Well, what of that?

Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat.
But to lie there—that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye!
It isn't the fact that you're hit that counts.
It's how did you fight—and why?
And though you be done to death, what then?

If you battled the best you could.
If you played your part in the world of men
Why, the critics will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts
But only, how did you die!

Her Second Best;

Quakers believe in a sober garb, but they are by no means without that quality which would be termed vanity in "the world's people." Aunt Peace Lawton had this quality to marked degree.

One day a strolling photographer asked permission to take a picture of the Lawton family, sitting on their velvet lawn. Mr Lawton gave the permission, but his remarks were not approved of by Aunt Peace. When it became evident that her gentle remonstrance had no effect Aunt Peace said no more, but at the moment the photographer said "Ready!" and exposed the film. Aunt Peace lifted her spotless handkerchief, spread it a snowy square in both hands, hiding her face and head completely.

"Why, Aunt Peace, what made you do that?" asked her nephew reproachfully, when he had permission from the photographer to speak.

"William," said the old lady, calmly, "if thee thinks that I propose to be put in a picture with my second best cap on, and my handkerchief sadly in need of an iron, thee is greatly mistaken."

So large and steady a stream of people has come from Sweden to this country for the past generation that those who remain at home are disturbed. A national society for the discouragement of emigration is working actively to check the tide. Officials of this organization are now touring the United States, studying conditions and seeking a way to offset the great advantage and opportunities offered here. Scandinavians are among the most desirable immigrants received by this country. Sweden is not to be blamed for desiring to lose such sons and daughters, but the lure of America will no doubt continue to be too strong for them to resist.—The Youth's Companion.

Emergency Puffs.

(Woman's Home Companion.)

For a dessert try Emergency Puffs: Drain canned peaches from their syrup and cut the fruit in quarters. Mix and sift one cupful of bread-flour, one half teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of baking-powder (level measurements.) Moisten to a soft dough with milk. Butter individual molds and drop a spoonful of the mixture in each, place a piece of peach in each and cover the peach with another spoonful of dough. Steam ten minutes and serve at once. Notice that a large quantity of baking-powder is used in this recipe, two tablespoonfuls, not two teaspoonfuls. Remove the puffs from the molds and serve with peach-sauce: To drained syrup add one third of a cupful of sugar and a few grains of salt. Bring to the boiling point and let simmer until the syrup is thick.

Britain is still as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land for all exiles, whether king or peasant. Manuel of Portugal may sleep soundly beneath the guns of Gibraltar.—Toronto Globe.

The Republic of Portugal

According to recent cable despatches from Lisbon, the Republic of Portugal has been formally declared and a de facto Government has been successfully established. All the ordinary administrative functions of the state have either been continued without interruption or been resumed after discontinuance. There has been no serious or protracted interference with the administration of justice, the collection of revenue, or the payment of official salaries. This means that to the mass of the people the change which has taken place is one of form only, and not one of substance. It is a case of "the King is gone; long live the Republic." The stream of national life has been ruffled on the surface, but its flow has been steadily and continuously onward.

It may be taken for granted that the British Minister at Lisbon has watched the progress of events from day to day with the utmost assiduity, the most profound intelligence, and the strictest impartiality. He certainly cannot be suspected any more than the British Government itself of prejudice against the Royal dynasty of Portugal. A Princess of Braganza was the Queen of Charles II, and for more than two centuries there has been an intimate and practically continuous alliance between the two nations. When Sir Francis Villiers, therefore, informs the British Foreign Office that the new Portuguese Government is receiving general support, that there is no prospect of success for a counter movement, and that tranquility prevails everywhere, it may safely be assumed that the change of government is already an accomplished fact. Official recognition of the new regime by all civilized nations will speedily follow, and the new Republic will then be left unmolested to justify its existence.

The situation has suddenly become extremely interesting for the Vatican states men. The fact that the new Portuguese Government has promptly expelled the religious orders goes to show that the masses of the Portuguese people are believed to be hostile to their continued residence in Portugal. As in France, the question has probably become an economic rather than a religious one, the workmen refusing to be forced into industrial competition with rivals who are exempt from ordinary municipal burdens. The expulsion of the religious orders from Portugal can hardly fail to affect the political situation in Spain. Compared with the Government program of reform in France and Portugal, respectively, the Spanish Government's proposals are quite conservative, and as the situation appears just now one may reasonably expect the Vatican to lose no time in making its peace with the Spanish Government on the best terms obtainable. To waste time might easily precipitate civil war in Spain.—Toronto Globe.

Has Your Neighborhood A Rural Telephone System?

No? Then we want to send you our book on "How to Build Rural Telephone Lines," for some day either yourself, or someone else is going to start a Co-Operative Telephone Company in your neighborhood and you owe it to yourself to be posted on THE FARMER'S 'PHONE

The book tells all about how to organize and construct a Rural Telephone System. It gives you the details that you and your neighbors would like to know. It contains just the right information on how to get a community-owned telephone system going and how to keep it going.

It also tells about the No. 1217 type Telephone Set, the most perfect telephone instrument ever made by any manufacturer. This book is the last word on Telephone Set construction.
