CURRENT EVENTS

The congregation of Carr's Lane Congregational Church, Birmingham, England, has chosen by an overwhelming majority, the Rev George McLuckie as successor to Dr John H Jowett, who accepted the call of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York. Women for the first time shared in the election.

The first of the great state functions associated with the coronation of King George V was witnessed on June 10 at Windsor Castle, where the Prince of Wales was invested with the insignia of the Order of the Garter. The elaborate ceremonial, dating from the institution of the order, 560 years ago, was conducted in the throne room. King George and Queen Mary, with the knights of the order, attended robed and wearing the full insignia of the order. The King buckled the blue velvet garter upon the left leg of the youthful knight. The ceremony was private, but the boys from Eton, the civic authorities of Windsor, and a few privileged persons, were permitted to view the procession.

Russian women have just secured two victories. Qualified women under the new elementary education act are placed on the same footing as men as far as rank and salary are concerned and are also eligible to become head mistresses of boys' schools. An order of the Ministry of the Interior just issued gives them the second victory. It allows a married woman a passport separate from her husband's if she satisfies a justice of the peace that her husband is cruel or does not support her.

The Italian parliamentary commission has reported favorably on the proposed law establishing a steamship line between Italy and Canada which was presented to the Chamber of Deputies a few days ago. Canada offers a contribution and a State subsidy upon the condition that fast ships of a certain tonnage be put in operation and that certain Canadian ports be included in the itinerary. It is hoped that the line will be inaugurated before 1912.

The Tokio newspaper 'Asahi' printed recently a circumstantial report to the effect that Japan is about to establish a naval base at Bonins, in Futami Bay, which would afford a sheltered anchorage for ten battleships. The Admiralty now denies this report and says it is the idea of the Government that Dreadnoughts should have no bases.

The Birkbeck bank in High Holborn, London, which withstood a run last fall caused by rumors that the institution was in trouble has suspended payment. The directors estimate the deficiency at $1,875,000, but the actuaries think that $3,750,000 will be nearer the mark. The total liabilities of the bank are over $43,000,000.

The Imperial Conference, now in session in London, has resolved to continue the policy adopted in 1907 to encourage systematically emigrants from Great Britain to go to some of the British dominions rather than to a foreign country. According to Mr John Burn's statistics, the number of emigrants in 1906 was 194,671, of whom 54 percent, went to the overseas dominions. In 1910 the number of emigrants was 233,944, of whom 68 percent went to the dominions. The first four months of 1911 show a big increase, and if it be maintained it is figured that more than 300,000 emigrants will depart from Great Britain within the year.

Mr Lloyd George, in a great speech at Birmingham, gave a lucid exposition of his national insurance scheme, dealing with the subject in a conciliatory spirit and inviting the cooperation of all parties in a beneficent scheme of social reform. This attempt to obtain support from the Unionists is timely, for the country doctors are in revolt against him, and the friendly societies will prove unmanageable unless the two main parties unite in constructive work. The insurance scheme, even with unemployment kept in abeyance will be enormously costly for the taxpayers. The talk about the creation of puppet peers has ended and the ultimate passage of the Parliament bill is believed a forgone conclusion.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts while paying a visit to the White House on Monday said: Reciprocity will go through the Senate all right. Whether the Root amendment goes through is not so material. Even if it does not, the agreement will be just as effective. Mr Lodge said he had abandoned his idea of offering an amendment for the protection of fishermen in his State.

The trouble in Morocco is becoming more complicated owing to Spain having decided to occupy the El-Araish territory. France has asked Spain clearly to explain the occupation by Spanish troops of new Moroccan territory, and to define exactly whether she proposes permanently to remain in that region. Meanwhile, effective measures have already been carried out to insure sufficient reinforcements for the French army in Morocco, to enable communications from Fez to be maintained in security and to chastise rebellious tribesmen. The French policy of strict and loyal observance of the terms of the Algeiras agreement, it is hoped, will prevent an international reopening of the Morocco question.

Reports from Lisbon state that Realists are preparing to cross the Portuguese frontier. Troops are being reinforced on the northern and southern frontiers and the Portuguese minister of war declares that invaders will be annihilated.

Earthquake shocks more or less severe were felt on June 7th and 8th in widely separated regions, from the Caspian Sea to California and Mexico. In Mexico City the shock was the most severe felt for ten years, causing immense damage. Many public buildings were wrecked by the earth tremor, which lasted for six minutes, besides loss of life. At the artillery barracks at San Cosme, where the sleeping quarters of the soldiers caved in there were sixty deaths, and more than thirty men were taken to the hospital suffering from serious injuries. In other parts of the city many were killed and injured by flying debris as the houses fell in. Those who were killed were in some cases watchmen who were still on duty and who were caught many under falling walls. There are many children among the dead. The dead are believed to number a hundred and sixty.—World Wide

THE CROSS SQUIRREL.

Once there was a squirrel that did not like its home, and he used to scold and find fault with everything. Its papa squirrel had long grey whiskers, and so was wise—besides which he would shake his whiskers quickly. He said to the squirrel, My dear, as you do not like your home, there are three sensible things you could do—

Leave it, or change it, or suit yourself to it.

Any one of these would help you in your trouble.

But the little squirrel said, Oh, I do not want to do any of those; I had rather sit on the branch of a tree and scold.

Well, said the papa squirrel, if you must do that, whenever you want to scold, just go on a branch and scold away at some one you do not know.

The little squirrel blushed so much that he became a red squirrel, and you will notice that to this day red squirrels do just that thing—Selected.

A DAILY THOUGHT

To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars; to be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness and to fear nothing except cowardice; to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts; to covet nothing that is your neighbors except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners; to think seldom of your enemies often of your friends and every day of Christ, and to spend as much time as you can with body and with Spirit, in Gods out of doors; these are little guide posts on the footpath to peace.

—Henry van Dyke.

HE DIDN'T GET OVER.

Arthur Balfour, the British ex premier, once in a great hurry to get to England from his post in Ireland, and, there being no regular steamer for some days, he proposed to cross over in a cattle boat. But in the man from whom he sought information he found a home ruler of most ardent views.

"Can I cross in tonight's boat?" asked Mr Balfour.

"No, ye can't, thin," said the Irishman.

"And why not?"

"Because 'tis a cattle boat."

"Never mind that. I'm not particular."

The home ruler gave a little laugh.

"No, Mr Balfour," he retorted; "I dare say ye're not, but the cattle are."

WHAT HAVE WE DONE TODAY?

We shall do so much in the years to come.

But what have we done today?

We shall give our gold in a princely sum;

But what did we give today?

We shall lift the heart and dry the tear.

We shall plant a hope in the place of fear,

We shall speak the words of love and cheer;

But what did we speak today?

We shall be so kind in the after while;

But what have we been today?

We shall bring each lonely life a smile;

But what have we brought today?

We shall give to truth a grander birth,

And to steadfast faith a deeper worth,

We shall feed the hungering souls of earth

But whom have we fed today?

We shall reap such joys in the by and by;

But what have we sown today?

We shall build us mansions in the sky;

But what have we built today?

'Tis sweet to dream of things to come,

But here and now do we our task?

Yes, this is the thing our souls must ask;

"What have we done today?"

Its Wonderful Power in Curing
Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses
Makes "Nerviline" Worth
Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion, and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop.—James E. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc."
