THE LITTLE LAD WHO HAD NO APPETITE

I once knew a little boy who refused to eat so many different kinds of food that I used to be afraid his digestion would get out of practice and forget how to work says a writer in the World Magazine. He never ate green vegetables, and what seemed very amazing to the other children, he did not care for apples.

He doesn't like apples, they said in such awe-stricken tones as they might have used if they had said. He has St Vitus dance or He has the measles For themselves, They were in the habit of going out in their own orchard and gathering their own red apples and eating their fill, and it seemed an act of disloyalty for any one to turn against their own cherished fruit.

Willie who never ate green vegetables and fruit of any sort was a delicate little fellow. He was pale and anaemic and full of old-wife notions about food that used to make the children laugh.

Moreover he always wanted the thing that wasn't there. If brown bread were on the table he was sure to ask for white. If gravy were put on his meat he sent his plate back and asked for another piece of meat without any gravy. If there was honey for lunch he asked for jam, and if there was jam he wanted maple syrup. Now Willie was a guest or he would never have been humored by the mother of the wholesome brood of children who loved red apples and ate with healthy appetites whatever was set before them.

I used to wonder how Willie happened to acquire so many eccentricities above food and whatever put it into his head to notice if his egg was too well done or his cocoa too hot or too cold. But I ceased to wonder when Willie's mother arrived. She was so solicitous about Willie's food and appetite as if he had been an aged invalid. She lamented the fact that he didn't like green vegetables and preferred to eat meat to anything else.

Isn't it too bad she would explain in the presence of Willie himself, my little boy wont touch spinach or snap beans or peas? Wont you take just a taste of this delicious spinach, just for mother dear? she would add in a beseeching tone to her abudrate son.

Is the cocoa the way you like it?
Im sure Cousin Julia wont mind sending it out to be heated if it has cooled too much.

Whatever Willie's mother suggested was wrong Willie always agreed to until he became very much like a crotchetty little old gentleman with chonic dyspepsia only he had not quite arrived at the dyspeptic period, but we all realized he was fast getting there His drinking water must always be boiled his soup strained his butter unsalted and he preferred white meat.
It kept everybody so busy remembering his tastes that the entire household breathed a sigh of relief when he and his fond mother took their departure.

That Willie is now a well grown and healthy lad he owes to the fact that his mother went abroad for a year and left him in charge of his Cousin Julia. She was very kind to him; he was a dear little fellow. But she simple forgot that he had any unusual tastes in the matter of food, and one day Willie discovered for himself that red apples were exceedingly luscious and juicy fruit. The children had a sneaking suspicion that he had never tasted them before.

The waitress was instructed to help him to vegetables without asking any question and nobody heard his vehement protestations because everybody was talking at once and when he surreptitiously smuggled a bit of spinach into his mouth nobody took the slightest notice.

Discovering after awhile that no importance attached to his likes and dislikes about food he forgot to keep up his tastes and being hungry from playing out of doors with other children, Willie gratified his appetite for the first time in his life

A SURE CURE.

[Bobcaygeon Independent]

An English physician recommends hanging by the hands, with feet clear of the ground, as a sure cure for hiccough. Mr. Smiff, the ancient gentleman who writes the leading articles for his great journal, recalls the fact that it is not so very long since it was a common practice to suspend people by the neck as a cure for various ills. It was considered a certain cure for any disposition to an irregular accumulation of sheep.

The "All-Russian Nobility" Congress on Tuesday adopted a resolution, demanding the unconditional expulsion of Jews from the Russian government service and from the military reserve. It demands also that they be prohibited from legal and legislative activity. The fact that they may change their faith is not to be considered.

THE BIG BAROMETER OF FAENZA.
(Harpers Weekly)

The big barometer at Faenza, Italy set up as a memorial to Torricelli, the inventor of the barometer, is thought to be the hugest of all such instruments.

The oil column in this barometer stands normally at about 37, feet and its fluctuations are read in feet instead of inches, as in the case with ordinary barometers.

At first it was proposed to use water as the liquid, in which case the column would have stood normally at about thirty-two feet, but this plan was abandoned, owing to the ease with which water evaporates. Glycerine was next tried, but the normal height of the column was only twenty-seven feet, and it was thought desirable to have it much higher. Finally olive oil was chosen and found to be quite satisfactory.

The olive oil barometer of Faenza will, no doubt, hold the record for size for a long time to come, when someone will employ a still lighter liquid than oil, in which case, of course, the height of the barometric column will be even greater.

It is said that Pascal the philosopher, was one of those investigators who have made use of unusual materials in the construction of barometers In a barometer of his devising, mixed wine and water served to fill the column. The first glycerine barometer was set up by Zophar Mills of New York, and a remarkable water barometer was installed in the tower of St Jacques, in Paris, in 1890, by M. Jau-bert.

A New England mother had come upon her eight year old son enjoying a feast whereof the components were jam, butter and bread

Son, said the mother dont you think it a bit extravagant to eat butter with that fine jam?

No, ma am, was the response Its economical; the same piece of bread does for both—Lippincotts

The official analysis of the home office of the British government now uses a microscope test to determine whether bloodstains are those of a human being. Hitherto evidence in trials has largely been based on the color of the stains.

The Chicago Examiner remarks the passing of the carriage, saying that the popularity of the limousine, the touring car and the runabout has forced to the wall some firms which dealt in high grade driving horses such as wealthy men used to plume themselves on possessing.

Lord Swaythling the London banker who recently died leaving $7,500, 000 or more, stipulated in his will that his children and their descendants must remain in the Jewish religion and must refrain from intermarry outside of it, or their bequests shall be come void.

An Idaho farmer tells his colleagues that they should plant nothing but college-bred wheat. By this he means wheat grown from seeds which are furnished by the agricultural colleges. The yield has been increased by college seeds from forty to sixty bushels an acre and the scientific study of the essentials of farming would be justified.

What appears to be the last hope of Abraham Ruef, political leader of San Francisco during the regime of Mayor Schmitz, of escaping his sentence of 14 years in San Quentin, was dissipated on Wednesday, when the State Supreme Court vacated its recent order granting Ruef a rehearing.
The prisoner was granted a seven day tray of execution of judgment to give him time in which to settle up his affairs before going to San Quentin penitentiary.

As the Coronation draws nearer, lumber rises in price in London, owing to the enormous quantity which will be required in the erection of stands, etc. At the present moment a small fleet of steamers is leaving Baltic ports loaded with beams, board and planks, for use in June.
