uncultured type of redskin who thrives today. War and the Jibaro are synonymous. No other Indian tribe in history has so determinedly and successfully resisted efforts to conquer it as this tribe of the Jibaro. Today the Jibaro, 15,000 strong, rule supreme over the vast forest regions of Eucador between the Santiago and Pataso rivers and southward to the Amazon. It is one of the most picturesque and primitive of all surviving tribes of redskins. Once when partly subjugated to Spanish rule they were goaded to rebellion by enforced labor in the mines of their taskmasters and marched 20,000 strong into the stronghold of their enemy and in one night completely annihilated the 12,000 inhabitants. As an example of their savagery they killed the governor by pouring molten gold down his throat in order that he "might have his fill of gold." Joid." Like tactics are still pursued, and the Jibaro is little molested. War is their normal condition, their favorite weapons being the lance, the javelin and the blow gun with poisoned arrows, which have served them with deadly efficiency. Little is known of their religious or mythological beliefs. There are about 1,400 Jibaros who are Christians, but few of these are of the full blooded type and are scorned by the moority of the tribe. The first man to the bat in the ninth got a single, the next a two bagger, and by the time they had stopped hitting me we had lost the game 4 to 2. "I was very much down in the mouth over the defeat after I had the game practically won, and George Davis, then manager of the Giants, noticed it. "'Never mind, Mattyr he said; "it was worth it. The game ought to teach you not to pitch your head off when you don't need to.' "It did," concludes Mr. Mathewson. "I have never forgotten that lesson."

London, Aug. 20.---Gen. William Booth, Commander-in-Chief of the Salvation Army, whose health has been failing ever since he was operated on in May last for the removal of a cataract in his left eye, is rapidly becoming weaker. According to the bulletin issued this morning by the physician in attendance:

"General Booth's condition gives rise to increased anxiety."

Many of the General's relatives and high officials of the Salvation Army are

Did you ever notice that the wheels of a locomotive engine are beveled? The reason for this is that in rounding a curve the outer rail is, of course, a little longer than the inner one. The difference is very little, but it would be enough to make an engine "skid" unless it were reckoned for. In the beveled wheel the higher part, with its greater circumference, is forced against the outer rail by the very tendency of the engine to drive straight ahead, and with the other wheel the smaller circumference rests on the rail, thus overcoming the difference in the lengths of the lines.

"An Old Pelice Trick."

Defending a man charged at West Ham with drunkenness, a solicitor said: "It's a very old trick for two policemen when taking a man to the station to walk out of step. The result is that the prisoner lurches from one side to the other, and he is supposed to be unable to walk without assistance."- London Standard.

JAMMED ON AN ICEBERG.

One of the Most Curious Arctic Experisnces on Record.

"This is the most remarkable escape from imminent danger in the whole annals of arctic adventure," said Sir Clements Markham, the explorer, in describing a thrilling incident to illustrate a lecture on icebergs before the Royal Societies club.

"It concerned," he said, "their steam tender, the Intrepid, commanded by Lieutenant J. B. Caton. A vast floe drove her against a berg with a frightful crash. Destruction seemed certain when the little vessel was seen to rise to the pressure. She was forced forty feet up the side of the iceberg, masses of ice from the floating floe running ten feet above the bulwark, then the piled up mass from the floe sank down, leaving the ship suspended on the side of the berg, her only supports to keep her stationary in this dangerous position being two small wedge pieces, one at the stern post and the other at the bow. She was in imminent danger of falling over on her broadside from that height

"The boats had been got out, but they were smashed to pieces by the ice. Three times the ice floes pressed against the berg, and, with the boats gone, the loss of the ship would have entailed that of all on board. Suddenly the pressure eased off, and the Intrepid was launched into the sea from her lofty position without injury. Lieutenant Caton and others had walked under her keel while she was thus suspended on the side of the iceberg."-London Chronicle.

He Was Very Economical.

James Tyson, the richest man Australla ever produced, although lord of £5,000,000, remained a simple bushman to his last day. A shabby suit of cheap ready made clothes was his. only wear, and a boot lace formed the guard of a silver watch which, as a young man, he had bought for a sovereign. He ate the same fare as his own laborers, and it was his boast that he had never entered a theater or tasted intoxicants of any kind; that he had never and soap-to preferred sand-nor worn a white shirt or a glove.
