COOKING YOUNG CHICKENS

Open carefully down the back, clean and wipe out with damp cloth; lay open side down in a frying pan; add a little water; cover tightly; place on top of stove, cook until tender on that side; turn, season the cooked side with salt and bits of butter, and a suspicion of cayenne; cook until tender all through, adding a little more water if necessary, although it is better to let the water cook away toward the last, then pour in a little good cream; boil up and serve at once.

FRIED RICE

Pick over and wash one-half of a cupful of rice, put in a double boiler with one pint of milk and one-half a teaspoonful of sal.
Stir once or twice as the rice begins to swell and cook slowly until all the liquid is absorbed. Turn into a buttered dish or bowl and set away until cold. Cut in half-inch slices, dust with flour and fry in butter or sweet drippings.

MAKE YOUR OWN PERFUME

Now is the time to make perfume, says The New York World.
This is just as easily made at home as jam, and the home-made product bears about the same relation to that bought in the stores.

Any highly-scented flowers will yield up their perfume. They must be picked when fully matured and early in the morning. They should be thoroughly dried by placing them on frames of wire netting and swinging them till the air has driven away all traces of dew.
Then they should be picked to pieces; bruising the petals as little as possible and discarding all bits of stalk or foliage.

The other materials needed are large, wide-mouthed glass jars, cotton batting, a little salt and pure olive oil—no other oil will do. The wadding is cut into circular layers that will easily fit the inside of the jars.

It is soaked thoroughly in the olive oil. A thin layer of salt is sprinkled on the bottom of a glass jar; a layer of the petals is placed upon this, and then a layer of the oil-soaked cotton; then another layer of salt, a layer of petals and more cotton, and so on until the jar is full, when the contents are slightly pressed down. The jar must at once be tightly closed, that

That Bald Spot

Don't let that bald spot grow!
Go to your druggist at once and get a bottle of Parisian Sage and if that don't check the falling hair, and cause new hair to grow, nothing will.

Dandruff is the cause of baldness; dandruff germs cause dandruff. Parisian Sage kills the germs; eradicates dandruff, stops falling hair and itching scalp. We will refund your money, if it fails to do this in two weeks.
Parisian Sage will cause the hair to grow, if the hair root be not dead. It causes the hair to grow thicker, more luxuriant, and puts new life into it.

The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package of Parisian Sage. It is sold for 50c by all druggists or sent postpaid by The Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., on receipt of price. Sold and guaranteed by E. W. Mair no air may reach its contents. A screw top with rubber ring such as is used on preserving jars answers very well. If a cork be used this must be covered with grease-proof paper.

When all the jars are full they should be placed in a warm spot.
If this be where the sun will shine on them, so much the better. The more sunlight they get the finer will be the perfume. They must be left for at least ten days or two weeks. Then the oil is drained off, pressing the cotton with a spoon and pouring the oil through a piece of fine muslin. This oil will be found to be highly perfumed. It should be stored away in tightly-stoppered bottles and kept for several weeks before opening.

The oil may be mixed with alcohol in proportion of about one part of oil to three or four parts of the spirit.

How The White Bear Forages

The great white paw of the bear, with its six-inch claws, slashed through the icy air five inches behind a shadow, says London Answers. But five inches is a lot where such folk are concerned and the shadow went on unhurt, to pull up after a bit on an ice hummock, and mock the bear from afar. It was an Arctic fox.

But the bear did not say anything at all. He was sniffing in a crevice among the ice where the shadow had sprung from and presently he crooked in his huge paw and hooked out a seabird of some sort, frozen hard.
This the bear ate slowly—it splintered in his vast jaws like almond rock—and afterwards hooked out and consumed three more. The others he could not reach, for there were many, this representing the winter store of the Arctic fox, who had stalked and captured the birds before they went south in the autumn.

At length the bear went on, shambling, always shambling, in his out at heels way, directly away from land.
Here and there in the expanse of frozen nothingness were holes—round holes—and you could see the cold gleam of green salt water way down beneath. They were blowholes of the seals. From time to time our bear would stop at one of these holes and sniff; but each time he went on again. No seal at home there!

At last at one hole he crouche flat and waited, still as the frozen world around him, almost invisible.
For perhaps a minute or two he waited—or it may have been three—when came a splash in the hole, a snort, and up bobbed the round, dripping head and the beautiful, soft eyes of a seal.

Up and back went the bears great paw, and—Come a report in the silence like the report of a rifle. Followed another, and yet others, and followed that crackings and roaring thunderings of iceberg turning over bodily—rendings and crashings.
Then the night paled, and a shaft of light shot up in the south.

But the bear did not wait to see these things. He was racing for the

THE ENERGY FOOD

The Vim and Vitality One Gets
From Oats

There is something in oats which creates spirit and energy. No other grain can bring results like them. Everyone knows what oats do for horses. They have the same effect on man.

An extract of oats is employed as a tonic.
A diet of oats multiplies one's vitality.
That's why energetic men—men of vim and spirit—are said to "feel their oats."

In Quaker Oats the finest oats—Canadian grown—are subjected to 62 siftings. Just the rich, plump grains are used. There is only ten pounds of Quaker Oats in a bushel.

These grains have the maximum of richness and energy. They are also the most delicious. To eat Quaker Oats once a day for a month will show to the limit what tonic effects, what bubbling vitality one can get from oatmeal. One never knows how good oat food is, or what it can do, until he tries Quaker Oats.

His chamber in the silent halls of Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at Like one that wraps the drapery of his

About him, and lies down to pleasant
