DELICATE SURGERY.

New Invention Enables Interior of Lung to Be Seen.

By the use of a newly invented miniature searchlight telescope passed down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes of a patient who had swallowed a shawl pin one of the surgeons of King's hospital was recently able to see the pin, to remove it with forceps and to save the life of the patient, who was apparently beyond human aid.

The instrument, called a bronchoscope, resembles a small bent telescope fitted with lenses at different angles and has a tiny electric light which can be passed deep into the lung. The day after the pin was swallowed an X ray examination showed its position beneath the sixth rib, about an inch to the right of the breastbone. The patient was chloroformed, and then a 20 per cent solution of cocaine was sprayed over the larynx and windpipe. The telescope tube was then passed through the mouth and larynx down the windpipe. Peering down the tube, the surgeon finally located the pin, fixed head downward in one of the branches of the windpipe at a distance of thirteen inches from the mouth.

A pair of very fine forceps on the end of a long flexible wire passed down the hollow telescope tube was then made to grasp the pin, and the pin, forceps and telescope were withdrawn together. Within a few hours the patient was able to return to her home none the worse for an accident which before the invention of the lung telescope would almost inevitably have proved fatal.

Bertillon Collecting Hair

M. Bertillon, well known for his finger print system of identification for criminals, is collecting samples of hair from all over the world. He believes he has hit on a new method which will make still easier the identification of any one sought by the police.

Every nation, says M. Bertillon, has a different way of expressing a definite shade of hair, the Swedes, for instance, calling chestnut what the French describe as blond. All samples are classed and graduated minutely according to shade in a large catalogue, and every shade will have a special name which M. Bertillon hopes will be adopted as an international standard.

not only keeps cold out, but conserves body-warmth; body-fat serves the same purpose, it enables us to resist unsettled elements and serves as the great source of our body-heat. Greater body-warmth means richer blood, more fat, not obesity but fat which the body consumes for warmth, vitality, resistance-power—as a furnace consumes coal for heat—Scott's Emulsion does this. A teaspoonful after each meal makes body-warmth—healthy, active blood—sharpens the appetite and makes all good food do good. It drives out and keeps out colds by raising endurance-power and creating strength. Reject substitutes for SCOTT'S. Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ontario 12-61
