STONE & WELLINGTON,
TORONTO, ONT.

The Late Lt. Col. Vince.

his duties his well known methodical training. It is said by post office employees that when a letter or parcel was a little overweight, without consulting the sender, Colonel Vince would attach the necessary stamps, from his own funds, before letting the parcel leave the Woodstock office. In every walk of life, as barrister, militia man or business man, the same precision was a part of the prudent make-up of the deceased.

When the Public Utilities Commission was appointed by the local government last year, Colonel Vince was made chairman, and has presided to the satisfaction of the government and the remaining members of the board. He was a member of the Barristers Society and Woodstock Lodge F & A M, which he joined in 1879.

SURVIVING MEMBERS OF FAMILY

He is survived by a widow who is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nayers of Hartland, two daughters Mrs. Guy Fisher of Kalowna, B. C. and Lulu at home, and two sons, A. Nevills and E. Raban, also at home, also one half brother Geo. Anderson of Vancouver, B. C. and one half sister, Mrs. Charles Snow of Woodstock.

BARRISTERS EXPRESS REGRETS.

At a meeting held in the office of A. B. Connell, K. C., on Tuesday, the following resolutions were carried:—The barristers of the town of Woodstock herewith assembled this 26th day of November, A. D. 1912, wish to express their unfeigned sorrow at the death of D. McLeod Vince, Esquire, K. C., D. C. L., which occurred on the evening of Monday, the 25th inst.

During the many years in which Mr. Vince practised law in Woodstock his relations with other members of the bar were of the pleasantest, largely due to his own unflinching courtesy and kindness of heart.

His deep knowledge of the law in its various branches, the result of a profound and analytical study which was continuously followed, combined with his natural ability, and his habits of punctuality and conscientiousness, led to the acquisition of a large and constantly increasing practise. He was moved by a deep sense of the duty and responsibility which attaches to the work of a practising lawyer, and we can all readily testify to the energy and zeal he displayed in looking after the interests of his clients.

W. B. Howard D.P.A.C.P.R., ST. JOHN, N.B.

Particularly, would we emphasize the ever fair treatment he was ready to accord to those who, for the time being, advocated the other side in contentious matters.

In his passing from the scene, we feel that the bar in this place has lost one who, guided by feelings the most honorable, shed honor on the profession, representing that which is most to be commended in those who follow the arduous practise of the law.

The memory of him, as one of our brothers, will long be green amongst us, and we feel sure that the example he set, both in his dealings with his clients and with his fellow barristers, will be remembered and emulated for time to come.

FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral of the late D. McLeod Vince took place Thursday afternoon from his residence, after a short service consisting of Scripture reading by Rev. A. C. Berrie and prayer by Rev. Dr. McLeod. Kennedy, of Houlton, a former pastor of the church, and Rev. R. W. Weddall, representing the local clergymen, took part in the service. The Barristers of Woodstock and officers of the local militia attended the funeral. The remains were taken to Upper Woodstock for interment. The pall bearers were Donald Munro, M. P. P., J. T. G. Carr, A. B. Connell, C. R. Watson, Sheriff Tompkins and Dr. W. D. Rankin.

He was prominent in military circles, having commanded the Brighton Engineers for many years and afterwards served on the brigade staff. He was regarded by those competent to judge as one of the best informed militia officers in Canada.—Fredericton Mail.

A Pastor Who is A Power in Politics.

One of the number of striking characters which the recent presidential elections brought into public notice was Rev. B. C. Buber, pastor of the Baptist Church of Danforth, Maine. Mr. Buber has long been an ardent admirer of ex-President Roosevelt and when the latter began the agitation which resulted in the organizing the Progressive Party Mr. Buber sprang into the thick of the campaign with a zest and energy which was bound to accomplish results, and make him the subject of not a little comment favorable and otherwise.

It was, indeed, in no small degree due to Mr. Buber's exertions that the Progressive party gained its strong foothold in Maine. In July last he attended the party's first convention in that state which was held in the city of Portland, and was then elected a member of the state committee.

Following this Mr. Buber began a tour of the state lecturing on the principles of the progressive and, of course, exposing the weaknesses of the present administration. Frequently he lectured as often as four times in a day and in one instance seven times.

As a speaker Mr. Buber is fun and forceful, but, as in the case of every orator worthy the name, it is less the voice, the manner of utterance, or even the words spoken, than it is the conviction, the earnestness, the fearlessness, the optimism and the dauntless determination which actuate the man off the platform as well as on, and which made him a power in the contest in question.

But speech making was only one phase of Mr. Buber's work. He wrote almost daily for the press of the state, both in poem and prose, and his skill with the pen is of a quality not apt to be thought lightly of by an opponent.

It might be supposed that for a pastor to take such a part in political matters would result in so serious a division in his congregation as should speedily render his pastorate at an end. This, however, it seems not to have done for since there has arisen in his congregation scarcely a word of opposition to his course. Indeed the work of his church is going on as smoothly as ever.

Mr. Buber is the author of "The Devil Let Loose in Maine" which deals with the temperance problem. It was published serially during the prohibition fight of two years ago and, it is said, was in large measure responsible for the success of the temperance cause.

Asked why he enters politics Mr. Buber replies that the welfare of the country demands that the church shall do its part in delivering the nation from the prevalent evils of corruption and graft in politics.
