Warden McAuley recently received an enquiry from a resident of the West asking for information as to the possibilities of Kings as a sheep raising proposition. The writer states that his last year's crop is still unsold but that as soon as he can dispose of it and arrange for a transfer of his property he intends coming East to live. He is a former resident of Great Britain but has tired of life on the prairie and wishes to get to a more settled community. He was attracted to New Brunswick by advertising matter and an article on sheep raising written by Warden McAuley. The stranger will be looked after on his arrival East and will be given a chance to see the county.—Kings County Record.
