TYPHOID EPIDEMIC HURTS OTTAWA

MILLET'S RIOT IN COLORS.

The Artist Enraged the Critics, but Forced Recognition.

In his early years as an artist the late Frank D. Millet had a hard struggle to gain recognition. He sent pictures to exhibitions, to be sure, and good pictures they were, but no one paid any particular attention to them or said anything about them.

One day Millet conceived an idea. He painted a picture of a lady in black sitting on a bright red sofa, standing against a vivid yellow background. The effect was just a trifle startling. Friends who saw it in the process of production expostulated with him and asked him what he was going to do with it. They were astounded when he announced that he was going to send it to the exhibition. They told him the critics would "wipe the floor" with him. "They can't do that without mentioning me," said Millet quietly, "and they've never even done that, as yet."

To the exhibition the picture went. It killed everything within twenty feet on either side of it. You couldn't help looking at it. It simply knocked you down and held you there.

The critics got into a towering passion over it. They wrote whole columns about it. They exhausted the English language in abusing it. They ridiculed the committee that permitted it to be hung. They had squibs and gibes about it, but every time they spoke of it they mentioned Frank Millet. He suddenly became the best known artist in town. Somebody, because of the stir it had made, bought the picture at a good price and removed it to the seclusion of his own home.

When the next exhibition came off Millet had another picture ready, one of a very different sort and very good, but no better than others which he had exhibited before. The critics had much to say about it and "noted with pleasure the marked improvement" that Mr. Millet had made, "an evidence," as they modestly put it, "of the value of criticism, even though severe, to a young artist." And the majority of them never realized that Millet had simply compelled their attention by a clever trick.

TUNIS DIVORCE COURT.

An Oriental Scene That Smacks of "The Arabian Nights."

The next time you happen to be in Tunis don't fail to pay a visit to the divorce court. It is the most Haroun-al-Raschidic institution this side of Samarkand. A great hall of justice, vaulted and floored with marble and strewn with eastern carpets, forms the setting, while husbands in turbans and lawyers in tarbooshes, white veiled women and green robed, gray bearded judges complete a scene which might have been taken straight from "The Arabian Nights."

The women, closely veiled and hooded and herded like so many cattle within an iron grill, take no part in the proceedings which so intimately affect their futures, their interests being left in the hands of a voluble and gesticulative avocat. In each of the four sides of the great hall is an alcove, and in each alcove, seated cross legged on a many cushioned divan, is a green robed, gold turbaned cadl. To him the husband states his case, the wife, through her avocat, putting in her defense—if she has any.

The judge considers the facts in silence, gravely stroking his long gray beard the while, and then delivers his decision—in nine cases out of ten, so I was told, in favor of the husband. Should either party be dissatisfied with the finding he or she can take an appeal by the simple process of walking across the hall and laying their case before one of the other judges, whose decision is final.

A case, even if appealed, is generally disposed of well under an hour and at a total cost of $1.20.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Too Hasty.

A traveling theatrical company was starting to parade in a small New England town when a big gander from a farmyard near at hand waddled to the middle of the street and began to hiss.

One of the double-in-brass actors turned toward the fowl and angrily exclaimed:

"Don't be so quick to jump at conclusions. Wait till you see the show."—Lippincott's.

Didn't Like the Reference.

Tramp—You know the sayin', mum, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." Mrs. Subbubs—Very true. And since you speak in proverbs I'll refer you to another old saw. Tramp—Which one is dat, mum? Mrs. S.—The one back in the woodshed.—Boston Transcript.

A Tight Fit.

"How do you like the rooms in your new flat?" asked Bill Brown. "Pretty fair," answered Jim Jones. "What do you mean by pretty fair?" "Well, they're a little tight across the shoulders, but otherwise seem to be a good fit."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Irony of Fate.

"Did your husband have luck on his shooting trip?"

"The very worst. He accidentally shot the friend who was going to take us on an automobile tour and missed the man to whom he owed a lot of money."—Baltimore American.

Security.

"Did you lend that forgetful friend of yours the book he asked for?" "Yes, but I took care to borrow his umbrella the same day."—Washington Star.

London Colder Than Some Places In The Arctic Circle

London, Aug. 8—A striking fact about the extraordinary weather conditions which are ruining the harvests in England is that places in the Arctic circle enjoyed a warmer temperature yesterday than London. The minimum in this city was 54 degrees, and at Bodo in Northern Norway it was 62 degrees.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Grand Falls Plant To Cost Many Millions; Work To Be Started Soon

The development and utilization of the water power at Grand Falls, which, chiefly on account of various speculative ventures, have for a long time been practically in a state of suspense, will now be proceeded with as speedily as possible, this being assured by the merger of the Grand Falls Power Company and the Grand Falls Water Power and Boom Company, which The Telegraph has taken place in the last few days. The new company will be known as the Grand Falls Company, Limited and will have a capital of several millions.

American multi-millionaires are the chief financial interests in the new concern, while some of the biggest Canadian capitalists are also interested in this great project.

The big deal is not a wild speculation, it is announced, with uncertain intent but is a sound business proposition, with a definite object, viz: the development of power and manufacture of pulp and paper. The privileges of this great water power, being thus redeemed from speculation, the Province of New Brunswick will be materially benefitted in the development of one of the biggest industries, which will have a plant the cost of which is estimated at between five and seven million dollars. Not only in itself will it mean so much to Grand Falls and the province, but if there is any distribution of power other industries closely allied will spring up.

The president of the amalgamated company is Sir William Van Horne, and names of the other officers, whose positions at present are only tentative, are for the time being withheld from publication.

It will be remembered by an act of the local legislature passed in 1911, the Grand Falls Power Company and the Grand Falls Water Power and Boom Company were to be absorbed by the Grand Falls Company, Limited, and this is the amalgamation which has just been effected. The shareholders in the Grand Falls Power Company have dropped out, their places being taken by capitalists in the United States.

The new company is to proceed immediately to revise the plans for the power development, and prepare plans for the construction of its pulp and paper mill, which, obviously, will be situated at Grand Falls. In fact, two of the most eminent hydraulic engineers in the United States, are already engaged in this work and as soon as they have decided upon the scheme of development and plans, the work of construction will immediately begin. The engineers mentioned are of wide experience, having had charge of some of the biggest power development schemes, and pulp and paper mill construction in the country.

The American capitalists who have bought out the Grand Falls Power Company, are men of large means, some worth as much as fifty millions, while the leading Canadian capitalists will include such men as Sir William Van Horne and Mr. Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada.

The new shareholders have bought the property solely for the development of power and manufacture of pulp and paper. While the erection of a plant of such magnitude will take some time, the company is determined to rush the work of construction and utilize the full power developed as soon as possible.

CUTTING WHEAT IN PROVINCE OF MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Aug. 7.—The first wheat of the 1912 harvest in Manitoba was cut near Souris yesterday. It was Marquis wheat sown early and ripened in advance of the general crop of the district. Harvesting will hardly be general for several days. A cold drizzling rain prevailed all day Monday, practically from Fort William to the Rockies, but yesterday was fair and the outlook for more settled weather seems good.
