A GOOD HAIL

By George Hart

It was noon of a brilliant, still day on the south coast of Louisiana. My partner heard a rapid crunching of feet out on the dazzling shore of white shells marking Barataria Bay. Then a shout, eager, tremulous, in German then two burned and ragged boys of eighteen came round the mangrove and rushed to Allen, with cries of joy.

They were almost unable to speak from thirst, and their feet were bleeding; but after Allen had offered them the contents of our canvas water-bags, they crawled into the strip of shade and explained. Oscar did the talking and Paul kept his blue eyes steadily on the red sail of a lugger that hung lifeless over the sunlit water miles down the shrimp platforms. They were afraid of that lugger, Paul explained. Only yesterday they had escaped from the old Etienne and his Filipino-Chinese company.

"No more shrimping!" said Oscar. "We were just landed from New Orleans from a Bremen ship. We deserted to get out to Paul's sister in Kansas. Ach, if we could only get there. Gretchen and Hans, her man, says what money we could make. And we landed in New Orleans and on the quay a man asked us if we didn't want to fish for shrimp down in Barataria—he, too, tell what money a man could make."

"Shanghai'd," said Allen laughing. "I've been told of this before."

"Slaves," cried Oscar; "that's what we were."

"I know the game," said Allen. "Every man in the company has a share—the lugger is counted a share, and the seine a share, and the captain's wife a share for the cooking, a share for the steamer men, and against the catch is charged all the stake expenses. And old Etienne juggles the account to suit himself."

"And all the time," quavered Paul, "beans and bread—ach. Oscar and I, we jumped that camp last night."

"You don't say," retorted Allen, "that you spent the night in the swamp?"

Oscar nodded. We might have known by a single glance at them. If they had known the hopelessness of getting away unaided they would never have plunged into that morass.

Back of our camp, near the scrub-oaks with their Spanish moss and the mangrove bushes, one of Etienne's seines was stretched to dry. The crew had landed only the day before and hung the two thousand feet of grey net on the flimsy frame, its leads and floats sagging it to the shells.

At sunset Etienne's crew pulled the lugger with their oars far to the east. The castaways breathed easier.

Allen and I slept soundly in our tent; our friends slept under the big net. I was awakened by an exclamation and a fumbling at the flap. Oscar was there warning me in a scared voice.

"Someone's fooling round our camp," he whispered. "Paul's still asleep, but I heard noises in the shells and went out. I crept along the net rack, and down by the little scrub oaks somebody was prowling about. I heard him in the trees."

"Panther!" Allen and I yelled together. And our amazement at this moment was swallowed up in what followed, for the big cat, describing an arc in the air, came down on all fours squarely in old Etienne's mass of seine.

He crashed through the flimsy frame upon the shells, instinctively closing his claws in the meshes. And the whole long frame collapsed just as we heard a bowl from up the line. While we stood staring the panther, charged up the line of net, sprung again and alighting not twenty feet away from where Paul was fighting about in his bar.

When the place was reached the cat was on its back, kicking and tearing great holes in the net, only to find successive layers. Then it would jump and twist, growling. Paul, too, was roled in yards of the seine, for the struggles of the panther drew it tight about the boy. Tear at it as we might, we could not get him out, and he, wildly yelling, could not understand what was the matter and another leap of the panther landed him not two yards from—

"Hold on," shouted Allen; let me get the gun! He dashed away for the camp. But meanwhile the fighting panther had dragged the seine to the edge of the water, and then another leap and twist sent him in. Paul was hurled down also in the shallows, and Oscar and I dashed in to seize the seine, for we thought surely that he would be drowned. But salt water had a surprising effect on the panther. The minute he was beyond his depth he ceased tearing at the net and struggled round in circle under it.

"Get the head line and twist them!" I shouted. "Twist them hard and we'll tighten him in."

Paul had got his panic-stricken head out of the net at last. He could hardly comprehend our cries; but he seized the lead edges of the seine, and when Allen came up we were dragging a half-drowned but very big panther ashore.

When sunrise came we eat about the brute, near our campfire, all of us bruised, cut by shells and palmetoes, but with the prisoner safe. I never saw two such excited boys as the German fellows. And when Allen and I told them we would throw the panther into the launch and hurry him off to the city, where he surely could be sold for enough to pay them for the three months they had been marooned, they were the happiest castaways imaginable.

"Old Etienne's seine did make a haul for us after all, er, Oscar?" cried the younger one.

"Oh, we get by Kansas now," shouted his friend. "Und Gretchen's farm, where her man'll pay us big in the harvest."

The next week, indeed, we saw them off bound for the promised land. A speculative commission men in New Orleans had give them $150 for the last catch in Etienne's shrimp net.

6 Year Old Girl Is Cured of Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Alex. Moore, of James St., Oxford N. S., says. Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christian, age six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and the least exertion would tire her. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. Finally we learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and procured a box. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions have become normal, and she plays around the house with no apparent fatigue. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

Booth's Kidney Pills carry a guarantee that if you derive no benefit your money will be refunded. Booth's Kidney Pills are a specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by all druggists, 50c. box, or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by E. W. Mair.

St Mary's Indian Shot Big Otter

Solomon Brooks, the Indian policeman at the St. Mary's Reserve, killed an otter today, which when stretched, measured over five feet from tip to tip. The Indians claim this is the largest otter killed in this section for some years. The skin is very valuable, and Brooks says it is worth about $50.

The animal put up a game fight for life, but its doom was sealed when it ran onto the large ice field and became an open target.

Hyomei The Breatheable Remedy for Catarrh

The rational way to combat Catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz: by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point but failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-ome).

Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by E. W. Mair.

Eastern S.S. Co. Buys Dominion Atlantic Boats

Boston, April 17—The Eastern Steamship Corporation has purchased the steamship line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company, which is operated between this port and Yarmouth (N.S.), according to announcement made tonight.

The acquisition of the Yarmouth line gives the Eastern Steamship Corporation control of practically every line of importance east of her except the Plant Line which maintains service between Boston and Halifax and Charlottetown.

banish The Bar And Abolish Treating

May Submit Proposals to the Electors of Ontario

TORONTO, April 17.—The Evening Telegram to-night states that there is declared to be a possibility of the provincial government submitting the opposition's "banish the bar" proposal and the government's proposal to abolish treating, to the electors in the form of a referendum. There is a feeling among many of the supporters of the government that they have already gone as far in the suppression of the liquor traffic as public opinion will warrant, and they believe that a referendum on the two suggestions is the best possible way of determining the feeling of the electors regarding them.

Zam-Buk In The Home

Read How Useful It Proved in These Widely Different Cases.

Zam-Buk's strongest point in its effectiveness in all kinds of skin diseases and injuries. Just note how excellent these persons proved it in widely different directions.

SORE HEEL.—Mrs. C. A. Campbell, of Powassan, Ont., writes: "One of my heels was very badly blistered by a pair of new shoes, and the poisonous dye from my stocking got into it, and made a bad sore. For a week I could not put on a shoe, and suffered great pain. I applied Zam-Buk, and in a few days it drew the poison out and healed the wound."

BAD CUT.—Mrs. J. Virgint, of Onondaga, Ont., writes: "Zam-Buk healed a bad cut which I sustained. I was hurrying across my yard one day when I slipped and fell heavily, my knee striking a sharp stone. At the moment I did not realize how badly I was hurt, but I found I had a bad cut about two inches long, very jagged and very deep. We bathed the cut and applied Zam-Buk. This stopped the smarting very quickly, and in a few days it had healed the wound completely. For cuts and bruises Zam-Buk is a splendid remedy."

ECZEMA CURED.—Mrs. Antonie Arsenault of Maxiamville, P. E. I., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to any person suffering from eczema. I had this disease and was under doctors' treatment for two years, without any good result. I then tried Zam-Buk and in the end it cured me."

Zam-Buk is just as good for piles, blood-poison, festering sores, pimples, eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

"Man," declared the old-fashioned preacher, "is a worm." "And," said a man who had been married three times, and who was occupying a small space in a rear pew, "woman is the early bird."

"Papa," said the little son of the marine editor, "you know all about ships, don't you?"

"I know something of them, my son. Why do you ask?"

"I only want to know if sea dogs generally go in barks."

Ardent Sportsman—"I think that bird'll come down, John, don't you?"

John—"Aye, I reckon he will — when he's hungry."
