Britain's Navy Ready For any Emergency

Glasgow, Feb. 9.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, to-day attended a luncheon arranged by the Clyde Navigation Trust, and in the course of a speech painted a roseate picture of the preparedness of the British navy to meet all eventualities. Mr. Churchill spoke lengthily, on the subject of German-British sea rivalry, taking the view that while naval power was necessary to the existence of Great Britain, it was a luxury for Germany. Touching on the subject of the prospective naval increases in the two countries the First Lord said that there was no need for excitement or panic. Great Britain had the situation well in hand; there was no chance whatever of her being overtaken in naval strength. Whatever happened abroad there would be no whining in the British Isles, no signals of distress would be hoisted, and there would be no cries for help; all the money, all the ships and all the men that were necessary could be supplied by Great Britain.

Mr. Churchill said that he would welcome a retardation of naval construction but if there was to be an increase of naval strength on the continent it would only result in foreign powers being further outdistanced by the measures which the British government was ready to take, which would enable Great Britain to pursue her path through the world, not seeking a quarrel and fearing none.

Mr. Geo. Kitchen,

After an illness of only a few hours from some kind of internal trouble, Mr. George Kitchen, formerly a well known contractor, passed away at his residence in Kingsclear at an early hour Saturday morning.

He was in his usual health Friday, carried on his usual work about his home and was taken sick about 9 o'clock being aroused from sleep by severe pains. He lapsed into a state of unconsciousness about an hour and a half later and passed away about 4 a. m. without regaining consciousness.

The later Mr. Kitchen, who would have been 81 years old this month, was born in Prince William York, County, being a son of the late William Kitchen. He first engaged in contracting work about 45 years ago, first undertaking a contract to get out ties at Magaguadavic, for the Western Extension Railway. Later he carried out contracts for the C. P. R. at Tweed, Ont., and afterwards in the Kicking Horse Pass of the Rocky Mountains, where he had two contracts. He later returned to New Brunswick and constructed the sub-structures for a number of Provincial Government bridges, including those at Woodstock, Marysville, Memramcook, Petitcodiac, Cocaigne.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Kelly, he is survived by three brothers, William of Prince William, and J. Cook and Wesley, of this city; three sisters, Mrs. John Leisure, of this city, Mrs. R. J. Nicholson, of Butler, Pa., and Mrs. John Nicholson, of Boston; four sons, Willard, Coles, Hamilton G. and Ald. A. B. Kitchen, all of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. R. G. Lee, of this city. Mr. Willard Kitchen left this week for a trip through Western Canada and was at Saskatoon a day or two ago.

Another Cold Wave Here

Toronto, Feb. 10.—A cold wave is centred this morning over the Georgian Bay district and the lower lake region, attended by very low temperature in Ontario and Quebec, while pressure has decreased very much in the Western provinces accompanied by milder conditions. Lakes and Georgian Bay, fine and very cold to-day, then moderating with light local snow. At Guelph, Ont., the thermometer registered 29 below last night, the coldest point reached for 30 years.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—When ears were frozen while their unfortunate owners walked across the street. Montrealers began to believe this morning that the record cold wave of the season had arrived. Hasty glances at the rapidly falling thermometer verified early predictions, the mercury, opening at 20 below in the early morning, sank with startling rapidity to 25 below, shortly before noon. The hospitals are treating an epidemic of frost-bitten and frozen ears, noses, toes and fingers.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Toronto shivered in its furs and blankets this morning, while the mercury in the official thermometer at the observatory shrunk in an effort to establish a new record. It succeeded in receding to 19 degrees below zero, which is the lowest it has been officially in the past seventeen years. Unofficial thermometers which seem to those who had to be out in the early morning hours as more truthfully indicating the temperature than the one on duty at the meteorological office recorded it at anywhere from 24 to 34 below zero.
