Fly Wheel Burst Doing Much Damage

Truro, May 2—A serious accident which came very near having fatal results, occurred this morning in the Chambers Electric Power Plant. A large fly-wheel of an engine burst and huge pieces of iron was sent flying in all directions. One went through the power-house wall and came very near striking Stanley Chambers, president of the company. Another piece of 172 pounds was sent through the walls of the building and landed in front of St. Andrew's Church, 275 feet away. Another huge junk was blown through two brick walls.

Sermon From Shakespeare

Copr. 1909 by Bradley-Garretson, Co Ltd. I'll never

Be such a gosling to obey instinct; but stand, As if a man were author of himself, And knew no other kin.

—Coriolanus, Act V., Sc. 3.

The highest civilisation is to be found in nations where the ties of kinship are strongest. In the drama "Coriolanus," Shakespeare has created a work of art in which the interest centers round patriotism and the family. The hero Coriolanus thought he could sacrifice both country and kin for his revenge. To do this he had to work a revolution in his nature. In the hour of his selfish triumph, the nobility of his character defeated his baser self and he perished miserably. His fate was not undeserved, but he was more admirable in his death than when he stood a conqueror before the gates of Rome with fire and sword ready to destroy his native city.

There is no finer instinct than that of family love. The sacrifices it impels men to make, the suffering it enables men to endure uncomplainingly, glorifies existence. In the journey through life a man must often pause and question: Why am I here? Whether am I going? The mystery of life would weigh with unbearable heaviness on the heart were it not for the family. It is the family tie, kinship, that teaches men to be unselfish. The sacrifices that parents instinctively make for their children, children for their parents, brothers for sisters and sisters for brothers are the light of the world. The family is, as it were, a training school for society. Where family life is beautiful and noble the state is the same. Indeed, the nation is but a larger family.

Humanity is spoken of as the human family. This is as yet merely a way of speaking for scientific purposes. It is not customary for members of the same family to take up swords and guns against each other. Until the nations cease flying at each other's throats, the word family as applied to humanity as a whole is farcical. Turks and Greeks are about as much of the same family as are tigers and wild boars.

Family love is an instinct. Coriolanus felt the instinctive stirring in his heart when at the approach of his mother, wife and child as suppliants, he cried out, "I'll never be such a gosling to obey instinct." This instinctive tendency to show affection to creatures related by ties of blood is universal. In the lowest and highest created things, in the reptile and man it manifests itself. A nature devoid of the instinct to cherish and protect its kindred is a monstrosity. Coriolanus thought himself able to crush out the instinctive feeling that prompted him to protect rather than destroy his kindred. In the supreme moment of his egotism and selfishness the instinct of a mother for the good name of her son was to rouse his nobler self. She recognized that if he did succeed in his attempt against Rome as he doubtless would if he persevered in his attack on the city from the noblest of Romans he would be remembered as the basest. "If thou conquer Rome," she cried, "the benefit

Which thou shalt thereby reap is such a name,

Whose repetition will be dogg'd with curses;

Whose chronicles thus writ,—'The man was noble,

But with his last attempt he wip'd it out;

Destroy'd his country; and his name remains

To th' ensuing age abhorr'd.'

Anyone who turns against country and kin is held in universal detestation.

In every man there is, or has been, an inward voice prompting to right action. It is the Creator speaking to the creature. In no way does this voice more emphatically manifest itself than in prompting human beings to heed the claims of kinship. To stand as though a man were author of himself, is the supreme of selfishness. A human devil like Richard III. was alone capable of sustaining such a role. Let a man attempt to live absolutely to himself and he is likely to become an oddity or worse. The hermit is usually more or less insane; prisoners who are condemned to solitary confinement and have not the soothing influence of companions frequently become gibbering idiots; lighthouse keepers on lonely bleak islands have been so oppressed with loneliness that they have become mad; and on the monotonous prairies of the great West, where men and women are left much to themselves, insanity is vastly more prevalent than in the populous East, where kindred spirits meet daily.

To determine to live a self-centered, self-contained life is a dangerous thing for anyone. Parent, wife and child are needed in a man's life for his best development. A kinless man is to be pitied; a flowerless plain is not a more unpleasant object. Such a man may find happiness, but it will never be by standing as though a man were author of himself. He can only find it by recognizing humanity at large as his kindred, and by giving a son's dutiful love to the old and feeble, by having a brotherly helping hand for any fellow-creature in distress.

Steamer in Gulf of Smyrna Goes Down With Hundreds

Smyrna, April 30.—The steamer 'Texas,' belonging to the Archipelago American Steamship Company, struck a mine at the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna last evening. One hundred and forty persons were drowned.

'TEXAS' FLEW THE TURKISH FLAG.

Smyrna April 30.—The 'Texas' was flying the Turkish flag, and was engaged in carrying mails from Constantinople to the Levant. It was first stated that the 'Texas' was an American vessel, the theory arising from the fact that she is part of the fleet of a local concern trading under the name of the Archipelago American Steamship Company.

The Gulf of Smyrna is one of the finest harbours in the Mediterranean, and Smyrna itself is the principal seaport of Asiatic Turkey. The entrance to the Gulf was extensively mined some time ago by the Turkish authorities in order to protect the port against an attack by the Italian fleet.

The 'Texas' was a vessel of 261 tons net register, built at Newcastle, England, in 1888. She was at first called the 'Olympia,' and rechristened the 'Marguerite,' and finally received the name of the 'Texas.'

Constantinople, April 30—Ninety passengers out of the 156 on board the 'Texas' when she was blown up by a mine at the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna last night, were rescued, according to reports received here. Several of the rescued passengers were suffering from injuries. No mention is made of the crew in the report.

It is alleged that the disaster was due to the 'Texas' deviating from the course indicated by the pilot boat preceding her through the mine field.

At the time of the anti-Greek boycott the fleet to which the 'Texas' belonged, and which consists of eight vessels bearing the names of American states, was authorized to fly the United States flag by the United States consul-general here because the company was largely controlled by American interests.

Three Prisoners Brought to City From McAdam

May 1st—Three men, Frank Harris, Chester Cain and Robert Laking, all of McAdam Junction, were brought to this city this morning by Mr. Albion R. Foster, special C. P. R. policeman, and were placed in the lock-up, and this afternoon they are to be examined at the police court by Colonel Marsh on the charge of assault.

The trio had been employed by the C. P. R. at McAdam for some time but were discharged for certain reasons and not liking the mode of procedure took it upon themselves to seek vengeance on several of the employees of the railway at that place.

About a week ago they took at a young man named Arthur O'Dell; who is employed in the office there, and beat him severely, the young man being confined to his bed for some days afterwards. A fireman named Deprick, who happened to be near at the time of the assault and went to O'Dell's assistance, but he too received a severe pummeling.

Conscious afterwards of their rash acts, the three left McAdam soon after the incident, and stayed away until last night, and when they returned they were promptly nabbed by Policeman Foster.

London Season Opened by King

LONDON, April 28.—King George opened the season yesterday by appearing for the first time on horseback on Rotten Row. The season promises to be crowded with gaiety, owing to the industrial crises and the court mourning having postponed many earlier events. There will be two courts, one on May 14, and another on May 20, and leaves on May 21 and June 13, in addition to one or two state balls. Their Majesties will be the guests during the season of the Duke of Roxburgh, the Duke of Devonshire, the Marquis of Salisbury, the Earl of Derby, and Lord Farquhar, His Majesty's most important public engagements, besides the charity matinee at Hammerstein's Opera House, are the naval and military tournament and the International Horse Show, from June 17 to June 29. Other local "shows" which the King will witness will be the races for the Derby and the Oaks, and the Ascot meeting, and also the inauguration in July of the new docks at Woolwich. This will be the first royal water pageant in many years.

Beef and Potato Prices are Soaring

NEW YORK, May 1.—The wholesale and retail price of beef has reached the highest point in twenty years in this city, and dealers are unable to say today whether this record advance is to be continued or not. Prices have been climbing steadily for three weeks, and packers say that with corn at 81 cents a bushel the farmers are not feeding cattle.

Potatoes, too, are selling at record prices, and scarcity of production is the cause.

The Floods On The Mississippi

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Food and shelter for 160,000 people probably will have to be provided by the War department for another month, as a result of the renewed flooding of the Mississippi river territory. As rapidly as possible the destitute are being turned over to local relief committees, but reports from the army engineers indicate that the daily average to be served with "plantation rations" by the commissary department continues to be about 160,000, and the cost is $10,000 a day. Secretary Stimson estimates that additional appropriations of $500,000 for the commissary department and $150,000 for the quartermaster's department will be required to cover relief work expenses. To date the quartermasters have spent $275,179 for forage, tents and boats, while the commissaries have spent $236,000.

TORRAS, La., May 1.—Terrible conditions prevail in the Black River section. In many instances parents and their children have taken refuge on hastily constructed rafts, which they share with live stock.

A. S. Simmons, who arrived from a trip over Concordia, Catahoula and Tensas parishes, said that all of these parishes were under water with the exception of a few towns protected by levees.

"The inhabitants are homeless and destitute," he said. Five thousand white persons along the Black River are in a desperate fix. The government supplies received there are inadequate.

C. M. Hays' Estate Not Very Large

St. Louis, Mo., May 1—According to officials of the St. Louis Union Trust Company, the estate of the late Chas. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk system, who went down with the Titanic, will amount to less than one hundred thousand dollars, and as far as known, consists of nothing but real estate in the vicinity of Fifth and Olive streets in this city. In all probability a certified copy of the will, naming his widow as administratrix, will be filed in the probate court Wednesday.
