JOHNNY BELL

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

A R Foster, of the C P R police, arrived Wednesday with a man who gave the name of John McLean, arrested on the train at Hartland for stealing a ride. He was brought before Police Magistrate Holyoke and given thirty days in jail.

The officer after making the arrest recognized McLean as the man who was suspected three years ago of forging a time check for $100. The check was cashed by a man named McElhenney, of Sprakle, this county, and was presented to Johnson Bros for payment. This firm pronounced the check a forgery. McElhenney had left the country and had not been heard of until Wednesday, when the arrest was made. At the expiration of his sentence he will be arraigned on the forgery charge.

Illustration Farms.

During 1912 and 1913 some work of investigation was and is being carried on in various parts of the province by the committee on lands of the commission of conservation in order to obtain information regarding the areas in various farm crops, the management of each farm in regard to crop rotation, seed selection, care uses and production of manures, the keeping down of weeds and the fuel power and water supply on the farm. The information thus obtained is considered to be fairly representative of the Agricultural conditions of our country. It is now proposed to join the farmers in conducting a local improvement association and illustration farm in the localities surveyed last year. The illustration farm is to be owned and managed by an individual farmer in the locality. The farmer will be visited from time to time by a traveling instructor who will confer and discuss improved methods with the farmer advising him in every way possible that will lead to better crops, and a cleaner and more fertile farm.

The farmers who are learning much from their successful neighbors. That is how they learn. If such contacts could be brought about that more of them will learn and all of them will learn more, a fine advance will be made towards the solution of many of their difficulties. The farmers will be invited to meet together for the purpose of getting useful information from each other and from the experts of the commission for the improvement of their farm management and practice. There has been among farmers too much separatism and lack of cordial co-operation. These cannot be corrected by bulletins or by speeches. The way is to get the farmers to come together and do something for themselves and others, something definite, something they can see and understand something they can use for their own benefit, when each becomes a co-operating partner in the local improvement association for the good of the locality all will grow strong in assisted effort.

It is hoped that the farmers here will co-operate with the experts of the commission to promote the general advancement of rural industries in the neighbourhood, and to encourage the use of such means and methods as will improve the quality and quantity of the various products of the farm while maintaining or increasing the fertility of the soil, more particularly through the use of an illustration farm in the neighbourhood.

The farmers will profit if they join to discuss ways and means whereby farming may be made more satisfactory by improving the surroundings and conveniences of the dwellings by stimulating interest in the performance of farm operations in the most workmanlike and enjoyable way and by fostering a love for the study of nature. Let us all consider and adopt means for the improvement of the social life of the community by having the people meet frequently to discuss questions that concern the whole community and by encouraging co-operation and united action in directing and realizing the local forces and agencies for these purposes.

The farm of Mr. Scott McDonnell, has been selected as being suitable upon which to carry on illustration work of a definite character.

Port-Hood Greetings.

Asquith Mobbed

By Suffragettes

Elgin, Scotland, Aug. 28.—The British Prime Minister was the object of an attack this afternoon in which his chivalry restrained him from and equately defending himself. While he was golfing with his daughter on the Lossiemouth links, two stalwart suffragettes, who had quietly come up to the green, sprang at him suddenly. They knock off his hat, grabbed him by the clothing and dragged him some distance over the ground.

The Prime Minister bore his rough treatment complacently and restrained from using force to make them desist while they imparted to him their opinion that he was a scoundrel and a past master in the arts of ananias.

A Carleton County Boy

Officer Fells Armed Burglar
With His Baton

Constable Traps House-Breaker
and Makes Clever Capture
Despite Threats to Shoot

Policeman Henry P. Gallivan's answer to the command of an armed burglar to "throw up your hands or I'll shoot," was a crashing blow over the head from his baton and when the intruder awoke from his sleep, he was in the patrol wagon en route to the police station.

The man, who gave the name of Tom Grant, a well-known figure in police circles, was attempting to get away with a heavy load of booty from the house of Mr. Steve Maddison, superintendent of the city water works department, at 1856 Barclay street, where the officer detected him coming from the rear door. When the burglar saw the officer approaching he produced a revolver and, leveling it at his captor, gave him the usual burglar's warning. Fear, however, was absent in the mind of the constable, and, flashing his light in the face of Grant, who was blinded for the moment, he was able to zig-zag his way to his adversary and deliver the blow which put him out of harm's way.

It was shortly after 11 o'clock when Policeman Gallivan noticed a dim light in the house of Mr. Maddison on Barclay street, which is on his beat. The light appeared at intervals, and at once aroused the suspicions of Gallivan. Convinced that a burglar was operating, he accosted the first pedestrian on the street and the two laid a plan to trap the intruder.

The pedestrian was commissioned to ring the front door bell after the officer had been given a minute to reach the back of the house. When the burglar heard the tinkling of the bell he decided that the time had come for him to vacate. He fell into the policeman's trap.

Taking advantage of the stunned condition of his adversary the officer clapped the handcuffs about the wrists of the house-breaker and rang for the patrol wagon and the pair were whisked to the station. The alleged burglar was still in a dazed condition when led before the desk sergeant at the station but the officer jogged his memory and he was requested to supply the sergeant with some personal information. He proved to be Tom Grant and was but 19 years of age. When searched he had a complete kit of burglar's tools in his possession as well as many articles of value belonging to the Madison family. He was then led to a cell to think up an explanation for Magistrate South this morning.

It was later learned that Mr. Madison and his family had been absent from their home last evening. Upon their return they found everything in disorder from attic to cellar. Every drawer had been pulled open and the contents strewn about the floor. Several articles of value were missing which later were found in the pockets of the burglar.

Although nothing has been advanced as proof as yet the police think that Grant may have been the same individual who shot at Mr. McDaniels a few nights ago, when a burglar was discovered in his residence.

The trial of the burglary charge against Grant was postponed for eight days when the prisoner was brought in to court this morning.

Policeman Praised.

Questioned by the police the prisoner refused to disclose any facts concerning his past history except that he came from New York. Detective Anderson has taken his finger prints and photograph and the records are being thoroughly searched in an effort to disclose his real identity. Although he is but a youth of 19 years it is thought that he is a criminal of notoriety. He entered a plea of "not guilty" when arraigned this morning and has employed counsel to fight his case.

Chief Mulhern, who paid his first visit to the police headquarters since his recent sickness, and Deputy Chief McLellan, expressed themselves as delighted with the work of H. P. Gallivan. "This man," said the chief, "is worthy of great praise for his prompt action and fearlessness. He has only been on the force for about six months. I have no doubt but that this is the man who entered the house of Mr. McDaniels a few nights ago. I consider that H. P. Gallivan has made a great catch."

Smith & Merrithew $250,000 Contract About Completed.

This week will probably see the contract for the construction of ten miles of the St. John Valley Railway through York County which has been held by Smith & Merrithew completed.

The contractors have been cutting down their crew lately, and last week had dispensed with the services of more than one hundred of their foreign laborers. They have had as many as three hundred men employed, but their work is now practically completed except for some cleaning up and some other work which will keep a steam shovel and crew busy about all this week.

The Smith & Merrithew contract was situated almost entirely in the parish of Kingsclear and included some of the heaviest work on the entire route. Their contract called for the construction of the roadbed so as to be ready for the steel rails, and included the masonry, and it is said that about $250,000 is the amount involved.

Messrs. Smith & Merrithew are now preparing to start work on the barns and dairy buildings of the Dominion Experimental farm here. Teams and automobiles can now make the trip over the entire line of the roadbed they have constructed for the St. John Valley Railway, the work being some of the best on the whole road.

Wolves Seen In Rockwood Park Close To St. John

St. John, Aug. 29.—Wolves were seen near St. John this morning for the first time since the days of the early settlers in this district. John Johnston, of Gilbert's Lane, was enjoying an early morning stroll in Rockwood Park, about a mile back from the nearest settled section, when he saw four large black wolves and a cub. They did not show any intention of attacking him, but he did not wait to make any closer investigation of their intentions. While wolves are known to exist in the densely wooded regions in the north of the province, it is many years since they have been reported in the south.
