ZAM-BUK
FOR ALL SUMMER SORES

FIVE KILLED AND

MANY INJURED.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Two hundred tons of fuel-oil on board the steel tank steamer Mohawk, owned by the Standard Oil Company, exploded while the vessel was at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, killing five and injuring six others.

Fifty men, including the crew and twenty machinists, were making repairs preparatory to the Mohawk's departure for Tuxpan, Mexico. A helper dropped a washer into the hold below the fire-room. Seeking to recover it, he carried a lighted candle, which caused combustion among generated gases in the hold. The stern went completely under water but it is believed the rest of the hull is intact and that the steamer can be readily gotten into dry dock for repairs.

Fraser's Said to be After Gibson Lumber Lands

There are persistent rumors going the rounds that Fraser's Limited, formerly Donald Fraser & Sons, are negotiating for the purchase of the Gibson lumber lands on the Nashwaak purchased some time ago by the Edward Partington Company.

The present owners have not taken up any very active operations such as expected when they purchased the property and a number of local lumbermen said that they had heard the reports that the Frasers were likely to buy the property. For some time it has been said that the Fraser interests were likely to break into the pulp business and perhaps this will give them that opportunity.

The Gibson property is one of the most extensive lumber propositions in New Brunswick and at the time of the recent sale the Messrs. Fraser spent some thousands of dollars in having a complete inspection and estimate made of the lands. The Partington Company's last winter's lumber cut on the Nashwaak was not brought out this spring.

NEW EVENING PAPER

IN MONTREAL SHORTLY.

MONTREAL, June 28.—Announcement was made Friday night that a new afternoon newspaper is to appear in Montreal within a few weeks bearing the title of The Daily Telegraph. No names are associated in the announcement as to the ownership, but it is given out that owing to a change of control in one of the existing afternoon papers a new need has suddenly been created for a journal in the interest of the Liberal party, and it is to fill this want that the new paper will be issued.

The Telegraph, it is stated, will be a member of the Liberal party and will have among its contributors noted Liberal statesmen.

Mrs. Dunne, who is the mother of thirteen children, asserted she would exercise her right to vote at every opportunity.

"I am delighted that the woman suffrage bill has become a law," said Mrs. Dunne, "and particularly am I gratified that it was my husband's signature which permitted it to become a law. I expect to take advantage of any opportunity to exercise the right of suffrage which has been conferred upon me."

GALVESTON COTTON

CARNIVAL TO-DAY.

GALVESTON, Texas, June 28.—Thousands of persons paid tribute to King Cotton here to-day. The annual Cotton Carnival was opened under the most favorable conditions and with exhibits more numerous and varied than in any previous year. Displays illustrating every phase of the cotton industry could be seen on the exposition grounds with the exception of the loading for export. This portion of the display was conducted at the wharves, where the visitors were shown how cotton is stored aboard the ships for transportation to New York and Europe.

Would Give House Wife

Cheaper Cotton Thread

Washington, June 28.—Work in the senate delayed the Democrats of that body yesterday in their party conference deliberations on the tariff bill. When the caucus resumed its sessions last night it took up the fight over features of the agricultural products schedule. A demand has been made that all articles be put upon a penalty basis so that the president could have a tariff weapon to use against countries discriminating against the United States.

The senate Democratic caucus determined to put cotton sewing thread on the free list. This was carried by one vote. A fifteen per cent. duty was carried in the bill as it passed the house.

Senator Simons, chairman of the committee said that he hoped to have the bill through the caucus by Monday night. It will then go to the full finance committee and probably be reported on Wednesday or Thursday.

I Can.

It may not be my lot to win
The crowd's applause, the world's regard;
But I can turn my back to sir,
And keep my worthiness unmarred.

I may not have the gifts to gain
High favor or to win renown;
But I can manfully refrain
From ever pulling others down.

I may not win the splendid race
That calls for strength and speed and nerve;
But I can keep from being base,
However humbly I must serve.

The Howe Great London Show

When the late P. T. Barnum remarked that the American people liked to be humbugged he evidently had in mind the people of the day in which he was famous, but it is the surest thing in this world that it could not be applied to the people of the present day. Of course, when the dean of showmen made this remark he referred to amusements. The Howe Great London Show, which is to be here, is a direct contradiction to the opinion of Mr. Barnum, and on JULY 17, th when this show is to be seen here, the thousands who will flock to it will have the opportunity of seeing how differently the management of this show thinks. The word humbug was eliminated from its vocabulary when the first thought of the shows organization sprung into existence and has remained eliminated ever since.

The management has carefully avoided the least thing that would have a tendency to deviate from truthfulness and honesty. The show has been organized along lines which have given it a universal reputation for merit and fair dealing that has placed it in a class by itself. In selecting features and acts care at all times has been taken to offer only such as could not offend, but would have a tendency to elevate while entertaining. Only such acts as are entirely new find a place on the extended program, and in securing them money is never considered. It is the same in the colossal menagerie. While there are a certain number of animals which have been seen before by some, there are many rare ones that have never found their way into any zoological collection before. To sum up, there is no show on the road today where the performance given is of equal merit and where the menagerie has been so carefully selected as that with the Howe Great London Show, which will be here JULY 17.

WOMAN LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER.

Mrs. Joynton, the only woman lighthouse-keeper in England, has just retired. She has spent twenty years of her life in the lighthouse at Hable, on the banks of the Mersey, having been for the last four years, ever since the death of her husband, its official keeper.

Mrs. Joynton has spent many anxious times during the four years in which so many lives depended upon her vigilance and care. Let alone the duty of keeping the guiding lights burning the whole of the night, on many occasions she has had to ring the fog-bell for nearly seven hours at a stretch. Once she experienced a fortnight's fog without a break, and during this time she kept watch with unrelaxing vigilance.

The authorities have done their utmost to persuade the brave lighthouse keeper to retain her position, but she is going to give it up for the sake of her children. She leaves her

PECULIAR INSCRIPTIONS

On the bank of a small river in Ireland is a stone bearing the following inscription:—

"When this stone is out of sight it is not safe to ford the river."

But this stone is surpassed by the famous post erected some years ago by the surveyors of an English road. It reads:—

"This is the brid'e-path to Faversham; if you can't read this, you had better keep to the main road."
