Rev. Wm. Penna, who is leaving Milltown next week to assume the pastorate of the Methodist church at Woodstock, preached with great acceptance in the St. Stephen Methodist church on Sunday evening. The reverend gentleman has lost none of the force and eloquence that were his some years ago when he was the beloved pastor of this church and preached to congregations that filled the house of worship every Sunday evening. Of all who have been pastors here and passed on to other fields, none did better work or has held more closely the esteem of the people than has Rev. Mr. Penna.

Former Woodstock Man Promoted

Mr. C. G. Walker, manager of the Metropolitan Bank here for the past three years and a half, has been notified to his transfer to the thriving agency at Bridgen and his removal will take place early in July. Mr. Walker during his sojourn in Milverton proved himself to be a live, energetic and public spirited citizen always ready to take the initiative in any movement that had for its object the advancement of the welfare of the village. He was also an admirer of good, clean, healthy sport which always had his patronage. In church and social circles he was no less prominent and in this he had an able and congenial associate in Mrs. Walker. Their departure from the village will be felt with poignant regret by all classes as they were held in universal esteem. Mr. Walker will be succeeded in the management of the agency here by Mr. H. Allemang of Millbank.

Mr. Walker is a son of Mr. John Walker of this town.

Howe's Great London Show

On THURSDAY JULY 17 the Howe Great London Show is to be here, and that it is to be here is something that all lovers of good, pure, wholesome amusement should feel thankful for. There is no better show on the road to-day, and no show ever came to this section better recommended than this one.

For the few there may be who are not acquainted with this gigantic show, it will not be out of place to state that it is the recognized leader of all three-ring shows in the country. At the same time it will not be presuming to say that the menagerie with the show is the best from a standpoint of value ever assembled. It contains more rare specimens of the animal kingdom than best of artists who have been most carefully selected, regardless of cost, any other similar organization. When this statement is made it is made without the least fear of contradiction, for the show has laid claim to only just what it has ever since its conception. The performance given is by the very best of artists who have been most carefully selected regardless of cost for their proficiency in the different lines assigned to them. It is not the show that offers one great feature and surrounds this feature with a number of cheap acts to make up a lengthy program. Every act with this show with any other would be a strongly advertised feature. The very best of riders, acrobats, gymnasts, aerialists, tumblers leapers, clowns, wire walkers and, in fact, all performers are with the Howe Great London Show. The same may be truthfully applied to the other departments. The trained animal exhibitions are better than any other show would care to offer in connection with the other attractions, as it is a show in itself. Everything is of the best and for the best. Undoubtedly when the show Comes here on THURSDAY JULY 17 it will receive the patronage it so well deserves. People should realize that it pays to visit such a show as this, and it is hoped they will do so as to insure its coming again.

A TRIP TO AYERS LAKE

On the morning of the last day of June a small group might have been seen standing on the platform at Cooke Hill waiting the arrival of the Fredericton train. Judging from appearance, one would think the party to be on an excursion of some kind, and such proved to be the case, for, after about an hours ride, they alighted at a little way-station, and shouldering their baggage, started on a two-mile tramp through the woods to Ayers Lake.

The walk was enjoyed very much especially by those of the party, who were not encumbered with much baggage, and all were amply repaid for any trouble which they had taken, for, on reaching the lake, they were entranced by the scene which met their eyes.

This lake, situated as it is, in the very heart of the forest and surrounded by hills clothed with varying tints and shades, is truly a beautiful spot.

On the North side, on a point of land jutting out into the lake, is situated 'Camp Claire,' a bungalow built by Mr. G. D. Brown, of Boston, Mass., which stands hospitably open and affords every convenience which could be desired for camping out.

To add to the pleasure and interest, as the party were rowing across the lake, three deer came down to the water to drink, and stood there gazing at the intruders, seeming not to have the least fear of being molested.

But even beautiful scenery will not supply all the demands of human nature, and it was noticeable, that those who were most enthusiastic over the scenery were not averse to partaking of the bounteous repast, which was soon prepared, upon arriving at camp.

The afternoon was spent most enjoyably in boating, bathing and fishing. The lake abounds with fish of different varieties, among which eels predominate. However the party succeeded in landing a number of the speckled beauties, which upon being cooked tasted like "more."

The crowing event of the day was the row around the lake in the evening. A gentle breeze stirred the water in tiny ripples and the trees along the shore were reflected in the lake in such a way as to present a picture, long to be remembered, and one which no camera could adequately portray. Some of the party who had travelled somewhat extensively said they had witnessed nothing to equal the scenery since visiting the lakes of B. C.

During the night a gentle rain began to fall, which by morning had increased to a steady down-pour.

Fortunately the ladies had with commendable forethought provided themselves with fancy-work, and a good book which was read aloud, and enjoyed by all.

By noon the rain had ceased, and after a hearty dinner, which was especially enjoyed by the boys, of the party, it was decided to begin the homeward journey. One reason given for this was that the appetites were increasing in proportion as the supply of food diminished.

A reluctant farewell to Camp Claire, after a visit all too brief, another row on the beautiful lake, which many wished might be prolonged, a long walk over the mossy carpet, under the shade of the over-hanging trees, a stop of an hour or so at Nine-mile Brook, while the fishermen again tried their luck, with little success, and four o'clock found a tired but satisfied party again at the R. R.

Finding that there was still four hours before the arrival of the home-ward bound train, they concluded to celebrate Dominion Day in true picnic style, while one, a veteran of camp life, built a fire and boiled the kettle, others gathered strawberries, which grew in abundance nearby, and all enjoyed a feast enlivened by interesting anecdotes and brilliant repartee.

All were glad however when "Old Gibson" came puffing and swaying along the track and climbing aboard were soon in sight of the home station.

As all of the party seemed to be of an optimistic temperament, the drawbacks, incident to such a trip, such as fighting black flies etc., elicited no complaints, therefore there are none to record.
