(Winnipeg Free Press.)

The marriage was solemnized at 4 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.
T. Le Page, 396 College street, St.
Boniface, of Miss Uarda M. Burt, cousin of Mrs. Le Page and younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Burt, of Woodstock, N. B., and Mr. Willie E. Ferguson, of Winnipeg, son of Mr.
and Mrs. D. Ferguson, of Biggar, Sask.

Rev. R. Whiting, pastor of Young Methodist church, officiated in the presence of only the immediate friends of both parties. Miss Edna Macnamara, of Winnipeg, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March while the couple were taking their places under a beautiful wedding arch in the drawing room. The decorations were composed of holly, mistletoe, cut roses and ferns. The bride wore a handsome New York gown of white shadow lace trimmed with satin and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. After congratulations had been extended, lunch was served in the prettily decorated dining room. Streamers of red ribbon draped the arch above the table and centrepieces were of American Beauty roses. At 5.30 Mr. and Mrs.
Ferguson drove to the Union depot, accompanied by friends, where, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, they left on the Grand Trunk Pacific for western cities for a short trip. The bride's travelling gown was a navy blue tailored serge with hat to correspond.

FEW ARE POSTED ON POISON IVY

This Botherome Weed Which Affects Only Human Beings Easy to Recognize in the Woods

It is safe to say that no poisonous plant in Canada is better known by name than poison ivy. One could consequently expect to find it also one of the most generally known at first hand, of all our plants, but it is astonishing how many people confess themselves unacquainted with it. Not only townsfolk, but many farmers, and not a few of those who profess to be interested in natural history studies, are unable to recognize it, says a report by the Dominion Botanist.

Poison ivy differs from the majority of poisonous plants in that it does not require to be eaten in order to produce its ill effects. Mere contact with it is sufficient, and indeed many people declare that they are affected even in its presence, though they do not touch it at all. The possibility of ivy poisoning without contact is not admitted though, by those who have studied the nature of the poison to which its effects are due. This poison has been found to be a non-volatile oil, to which the name "toxicodendrol" has been given. The poisonous substance is found in all parts of the plant, and a very little of it reaching the skin is sufficient to set up its painful irritation.

It is well known that not all persons are equally susceptible to injury by poison ivy. Some can handle the plant freely without any fear of unpleasant consequences. It would appear also, as if animals were immune, as birds are reported to feed upon the fruit, and cows have been known to eat it and show no evil effects.

Poison ivy grows most commonly along the borders of fields and woods, by roadsides, or in open woods; or less frequently it occurs in deep woods where it may become a tall climber supporting itself on the trunks of trees. In the open it is low and bushy, or often climbing or trailing. The leaves are all composed of three ovate, coarsely-toothed leaflets, and serve well as a means of identification.
There are no other plants of similar habit in Canada with leaves which would easily be confused with them.
The Virginian Creeper is often held in suspicion, quite needlessly though, as it has five, not three, leaflets, which spread from one point like the fingers of the hand. The poison ivy can also be known when in fruit, by its upright auxiliary panicles of whitish berries of about the size of peas.
Measures of eradication must be directed toward the uprooting of the plants, as otherwise any effort to kill them would have to be repeated and continued as long as the roots retain enough vitality to send up new vegetation. It may be advisable to pull off and remove the stems before starting to grub up the roots, so as to lessen the danger of poisoning while at work. The tops may be got rid of also by spraying with a solution of one-half pint commercial sulphuric acid in one gallon of water.
As sulphuric acid is corrosive, it will be advisable to apply with a sprinkling can or an old sprayer which can be sacrificed to the purpose.
