

SPARKLING WATER, cool and sweet, refreshes the farmer who builds a Concrete Well or Tank

THE FARMER, above all others, appreciates good water. He drinks more water than the city man. The city-dweller is dependent upon the public water-supply for the purity of his water, while the farmer can have his own private source of water, and thus be sure that it is pure and healthful.

MAN hasn't found a better drink than cool water, properly collected and stored. But in order to keep water fresh and pure, a tank or well casing that will keep out every possible impurity must be used.

CONCRETE IS THE IDEAL MATERIAL FOR TANKS AND WELL-CASINGS.

It is absolutely water-tight, protecting your water from seepage of all kinds. It cannot rot or crumble. It is easily cleaned inside. Time and water, instead of causing it to decay, actually make it stronger.

There are scores of other uses for concrete on your farm—on every farm. If you would like to know of them, write for our book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete." The book is absolutely free.

OUR Farmers' Information Department will help you to decide how to build anything, from a porch-step to a silo. The service is free—you don't even have to promise to build. When in doubt ask the Information Department.

Chief Crawford
Advised Hyomei For Catarrh

J. Wilfred Brown, of Water St., Campbellton, N. B., says: "Hyomei cured me of a severe case of catarrh and asthma after four years of suffering. I was constantly having and spitting and the catarrhal droppings that came from the head into my throat affected my stomach and I could not enjoy my meals. Chief Crawford having the same trouble advised me to try Hyomei. I did so and soon I was without a sign of the health-racking disease that had troubled me for so long. I now recommend Hyomei to all catarrh sufferers."

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed to cure asthma, bronchitis, croup, coughs and colds. A complete outfit consists of a hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei and a glass dropper for filling the inhaler. Your druggists will supply you the outfit for $1.00 (extra bottles 50c) or postpaid from The R. F. Booth Co., Ltd., Port-Erie, Ont. Money back if it fails. Sold and guaranteed by E. W. Mair.

gists a copy of the vigorous resolution of denunciation they adopted at their mass meeting last night following their parade along Pennsylvania avenue.

A resolution for the investigation of the Washington police force was offered in the Senate to-day by Senator Jones and referred at once to a committee.

Senator Nelson declared the scene attending the suffrage parade constituted a "most disgraceful affair, and a disgrace to the police force."

Charges that the police of Washington did not properly protect yesterday's suffragist parade were made in the House early to-day by Representative Hobson, of Alabama, who later declared that he proposed to ask for an investigation of the police department during the extra session of Congress.

Mr. Hobson told the House that the Congressional section of the parade, led by Representative Rucker, of Colorado, comprised a score of senators and representatives, who, starting at arm's length and four abreast, finally were crowded into single file by the crowding of the spectators, and that the police "soffed with the ruffians."

"I have been called over the telephone," said Mr. Hobson, "and told by a lady that her daughter was on one of the floats in the parade and that a ruffian climbed on the float and insulted her daughter."

"Her daughter ought to have been at home," interjected a representative of Illinois.

President Taft to-day vetoed the sundry civil appropriation bill carrying $113,000,000, because of its provision which prohibited the Department of Justice from using its antitrust appropriation in prosecution of labor union and farm organization.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Congress upon reassembling for its last day was confronted with only two outstanding annual supply bills, general deficiencies and Indian appropriation. All the other appropriation measures, whose delay had aroused the leaders in both houses, had been agreed upon in conference and put through both Houses. The deficiency bill was hung up in conference. The Indian bill was marking time in the Senate when the two Houses, still in the fiction of the legislative day of Saturday recessed from shortly after 4 this morning until 9.20 a. m. following a continuous all day session.

President Wilson's cabinet is complete and it remains only to formally send the nominations to the Senate, either to-day if the ceremonies permit, or else to-morrow. Unless actually nominated, the list is unofficial, but the list is definitely accepted to be as follows:

Secretary of State—William J. Bryan of Nebraska.
Secretary of Treasury—William G. McAdoo, of New York.

Inauguration Of President Wilson

Washington, March 4.—Three hours before the ceremonies at the capitol were scheduled to begin, the entire east front was packed with a crowd which seemed to be patient, good-natured and content to wait. Scenes about the Shoreham Hotel and the White House became more active as the morning wore on.

Shortly after nine o'clock, Wm. Jennings Bryan had a brief conference with Mr. Wilson after which the President-elect came out of his room to meet the newspaper correspondents. He was wearing a frock coat and a rose colored tie. He said he had been informed by congressional leaders that the business of the extra session would be ready by April 1st, but added that the date was subject to change.

At 9.45 Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall, the incoming President and Vice-President, respectively, accompanied by the congressional committee, left their hotel and began the short drive to the White House. The Culver and Essex troops cantered along as their escort. The student of Princetown and Virginia universities in a long line on either side of the street, fell in behind the procession and followed up to the White House.

The ride to the White House was finished between cheering lines of the students. The party whirled up the drive to find President Taft waiting to welcome the incoming President and Vice-President on the front portico. The Princeton band played the jungle song and the student body sang Old Nassau. The official party quickly passed into the White House to await the beginning of the drive to the capitol, which was scheduled to begin promptly a half hour later.

President Taft, having in mind the incoming President's desire for simplicity escorted him to the east room of the White House, instead of the blue room which is the formal reception place of the dignitaries. Here Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson chatted and Mr. Taft's well known smile was much in evidence.

The stay was brief. At 10.17 o'clock the ride to the capitol began. In the first carriage were President Taft and Mr. Wilson. President Taft occupied the right hand seat. With them were Senators Crane and Bacon. In the second carriage were Mr. Marshall sat at Senator Overman's right, Representative Rucker also rode there. In the third carriage came Representatives McKinley and Carrett.

The party moved briskly out of the White House grounds and down Pennsylvania avenue, the mounted escorts clattering along beside and behind. The streets were packed, and to roars of cheers President Taft and Mr. Wilson gave their acknowledgments.

Postmaster General Hitchcock and Secretaries Macveagh, Fisher, and Wilson were the only members of the cabinet to accompany the party to the Capitol. Secretary Hilles rode in the last carriage with three of the President's aides.

In marked contrast to the riotous scenes of yesterday, when the crowds along Pennsylvania avenue virtually mobbed the women in the suffragette pageant, the carriage way to-day was entirely clear, and the presidential party rode along, with spectators no nearer than the curbs.

At the President-elect's request, the number of secret service men assigned to guard the carriage in the procession to the Capitol was reduced to two.

Mr. Marshall's carriage followed closely, and immediately behind marched the White House correspondents and the newspaper men who have been with Mr. Wilson in the campaign.

The party proceeded down Pennsylvania avenue slowly until it neared the Capitol, and the four black horses drawing the presidential carriage broke into a trot, and the troopers escorting it spurred their horses into a canter. Thus the cavalcade galloped up Capitol Hill. While the crowd along the route was demonstrative, it was respectful and orderly.

The carriage and their escorts whirled up to the main entrance of the Capitol to the greetings of the massed multitude in the stands and the less fortunate who were perched upon every point of vantage or packed into all available spaces.

President Taft and Mr. Wilson were at once escorted to the President's room where Mr. Taft at once took up the work of signing bills. Mr. Marshall went to the Vice-President's room, accompanied by members of the committee, and was met by President Tom Gallinger. The two parties remained in these rooms until Congress had done up the last bit of its work and was ready for the beginning of the scenes of inauguration of the Vice-President in the Senate chamber.

Mrs. Wilson and her daughters meanwhile entered the spaces reserved for them in the Senate galleries and were the centre of all eyes. Mrs. Wilson wore a tan cloth dress with a brown ribbed silk coat and a small hat to match. Miss Margaret Wilson wore blue silk poplin; Miss Jessie Wilson lavender broadcloth, and Miss Eleanor Wilson bright blue cloth dress.

Neither Mrs. Taft nor any member of the President's family occupied the space reserved for them in the Senate galleries or on the stand at the east front. Mrs. Taft and her daughter went to the home of Miss Mabel Boardman to await the coming of Mr. Taft after the inauguration ceremonies, when they will depart for Augusta.

President Taft signed the bill creating a department of labor with a cabinet portfolio. President Wilson's nomination for this position will be William Bilson, a retiring representative from Pennsylvania.

At 11.30 o'clock committees from the House and Senate waited upon President Taft in the marble room and gave formal notification that Congress was ready to adjourn.

Before Woodrow Wilson has been President many hours he will have placed in his hands by the incensed suffra-
