"Safety"

is one of the prime considerations in filling prescriptions.

No matter how honest the druggist who fills the prescription may be—

If he is not careful to the utmost degree—if he does not scrupulously measure every ingredient to insure exact proportions—if he does not conscientiously and systematically check and recheck every detail of his work in filling the prescription, it may not have just the effect intended by the doctor who wrote it.

We take no chances. We start right by using only those drugs that are proven by careful test to be fresh and of perfect purity and full strength. We use only the highest grade and most accurate scales, graduated and other prescription instruments. We check every ingredient off the shelf, check it again when it is put into the prescription, and again when it is put back on the shelf. We don't guess at it.

We know when the prescription leaves our hands that it is filled right.

Frederick Palmer sends a lively story from British Headquarters in France of the doings of the Canadians in the trenches. The details of trench life as sketched by a master hand are worth reading. There is the frank confession that "the shells made us nervous at first, but we are used to them now." There is the greeting of the Colonel from Quebec to his "boys," a phrase "which one never hears from an English officer." There is a description of the returning patrol crawling back to their trench, Indian-fashion, and reporting that they got "within seven feet of the bunch in that old house and heard them whispering." Finally there is the observation of a veteran war correspondent that "the Canadians have shown characteristic ingenuity and initiative in arranging the trenches to suit themselves, and have made them wholly dry and comfortable." All of which shows that the men with the Maple Leaf badge are worthy representatives of Canada, and can be trusted to hold their own in camp and on the field.—Toronto Daily Globe.

Russia Drinking Tea

Instead of Vodka

Both German and Russian Troops Are Using It—Tea-Trade Fighters

Elimination of the vodka from Russia has evidently started that immense nation tea drinking. According to The New York Journal of Commerce, heavy buying by Russia of India and Ceylon teas has caused abnormal prices for these teas, the quotations being from 8 to 10 cents a pound higher than a year ago. From reports in the trade the Russians are buying all the India-Ceylons available, and there is a likelihood of prices going still higher.

Not only is the Russian army using tea in enormous quantities now, but the Kaiser long ago ordered it for his troops. Unusually large buying by these two nations, and their entrance into new markets as competitors have placed the tea market in a tight position. It has been previously pointed out in these columns that Britain is turning more to tea-drinking. United States drinks 90,000,000 pounds a year. To these factors the Canadian tea trade is sensitive, and advances in market values are not unlikely.—Toronto Globe.
