"Safety"

is one of the prime considerations in filling prescriptions.

No matter how honest the druggist who fills the prescription may be—

If he is not careful to the utmost degree—if he does not scrupulously measure every ingredient to insure exact proportions—if he does not conscientiously and systematically check and recheck every detail of his work in filling the prescription, it may not have just the effect intended by the doctor who wrote it.

We take no chances. We start right by using only those drugs that are proven by careful test to be fresh and of perfect purity and full strength. We use only the highest grade and most accurate scales, graduates and other prescription instruments. We check every ingredient off the shelf, check it again when it is put into the prescription, and again when it is put back on the shelf. We don't guess at it.

We know when the prescription leaves our hands that it is filled right.

Canada Still Over-run With Germany's Spies

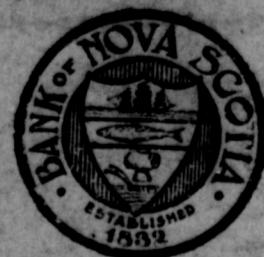

New York, Jan. 15—A warning to Canadians against the German spy system which exists in the Dominion was given by Walter Bennett, consul-general of Great Britain for New York, in an interview with a representative of The Toronto World today. He claims that information of much value to Germany is leaking out of Canada as a result of it.

"There are a tremendous number of German and Austrian spies in Canada who are still at large, and if the authorities in the Dominion think otherwise they are mistaken," he said. "I wish Canada would place all Germans and Austrians in custody, and the sooner she does so, the better it will be for the British cause."

Regarding public opinion in the United States, he expressed the belief that practically without exception the sentiment of native-born Americans was with the allies. What sentiment existed against the cause of the allies was to be found almost solely to come from German-Americans of German birth or Teuton descent. He contended that investigation would show that the American-born citizen of the United States who were men of standing were almost unanimously against Prussian militarism and the world power designs of the German kaiser.

"Every American who is worth while is for the Allies," he said. "Those who are not are not worth this,"—and he snapped his fingers to show what his estimate was. Then, as if to emphasize that public opinion in the United States was opposed to Germany he remarked with considerable earnestness, "and why should it not be?"

Ever since the outbreak of the war the office of the British consul has been daily thronged with Britons, who come forward to return to fight under the colors. Even though this is the fifth month since the war's commencement the stream of those coming from all parts of the United States ready to fight for the flag shows no signs of abatement. Among the many who reported at the consulate today was a large party of reservists from Chicago and another from Philadelphia. Three Jamaicans also put in an appearance at the consulate.

M. Bonerout, consul-general of France for New York, interviewed by The Toronto World representative today, said that the German influence in the United States should not be underestimated. While the United States as a nation was neutral, the large German population of the country could not be overlooked.

"It is estimated that there are between twenty and thirty million persons of German birth or descent in the United States," he said. "This would mean practically a third of the population. It is not to be wondered at if the German influence here is strong."

Although not wishing openly to charge that it was this German influence which was behind the suddenly brought forward shipping protest made by the United States to Great Britain, he inferred that such influence might have had much to do with it.

Speaking of Germans resident in Canada, he expressed the opinion that the wives of these Germans should be watched as closely by the authorities as the men themselves. The existence of the German Jews was also not to be forgotten.
