The Culture Of Roses

The roses usually cultivated in Canada may be divided into four groups so far as hardness is concerned:

"Hardest Group.—Rosa rugosa and Hybrids, Austrian briars, Provence or Cabbage roses, Damask roses, and Moss roses.

"Roses of the Second Degree of Hardness.—Hybrid Perpetuals or Hybrid Remontant Climbingroses of the Multiflora group, and Dwarf Polyantha roses.

"Roses of the Third Degree of Hardness.—Hybrid Tea and Austrian hybrids (Pernetiana) roses.

"The Hardness of the individual varieties varies considerably within the groups.

"Roses of this group need little or no protection in most parts of Canada. The others must be protected except in very favoured localities."

Thus write Messrs. W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, and F. E. Buck, B S A, assistant, in Bulletin No. 85, of the Division of Horticulture, entitled "Hardy Roses, Their Culture in Canada," which can be had free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and which should have an extensive circulation. It would be difficult to imagine an official publication that is calculated to appeal more strongly to the flower lover. The information that is given is complete and thorough. "Site and Soil", "Plants and Planting", "Cultivation", "Winter Protection", "Insects and Fungous Enemies" are all described. In fact, the Bulletin is as nearly as possible within its limit of 39 pages, an encyclopedia on roses that can be cultivated in this country. Many different varieties are dealt with, tests and experiments are told about, and particulars given that can hardly fail to prove valuable to gardeners, whether amateur or professional. Every section of the country is covered and detailed lists given, with description and illustration, of good hybrid tea roses for the garden, new hybrid tea roses and good perpetual roses. Cultivators of the loveliest flower in creation after reading this Bulletin, no matter what their past experience may have been, it is safe to say, will be encouraged to try again and to persevere. Some of the pointers may be thus condensed:

A soil should be chosen which is naturally cool but not cold.

Strong two-year-old budded plants are the best to plant.

An abundance of moisture is needed, but not swamps.

Soils need to be kept rich by the application of manure.

Pruning is a necessity, but requires study and experience to be successfully performed.

To obtain the first flowers one must relentlessly cut back the bushes each spring to within six to twelve inches of the ground.

It is better to prune early in the spring than in autumn.

Roses in Canada should be protected from severe wintry weather by being earthed up and covered with evergreen boughs or canvas.

Good foliage is essential to the production of good roses; hence every safeguard should be taken against insects and disease.

Roses grown in the open are usually propagated by budding; raising them from cuttings not always being satisfactory.

The time for budding varies in Canada, but from the latter part of July until September the stocks should be in condition in some part of the country.
