KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The many friends of Miss Lillian Jones will be charmed when they see her as "Jacks Wife" the part that made Mrs. Fiske famous in New York.

It has been decided that the Centreville Agricultural Exhibition will take place on the 29th and 30th of SEPTEMBER, and although a little later than the one last held here, if fine weather prevails, a most desirable time for holding. The Committee having charge of the arrangements are planning on this being the best show ever held here, and will spare no pains to make it interesting in every way.

Lundon-Smith.

The Quebec Telegraph, on Wednesday, July 21st, had the following notice of a wedding which is of much interest to the people in this neighborhood:

"The wedding was solemnized at the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity this morning, Ven Archdeacon Balfour officiating, of Miss Gladys Smith, daughter of Mr. James B. Smith, of 175 Chesterfield avenue, Westmount, and Dr. A. E. Lundon, of Canterbury, N. B. The bride, who was gowned in a navy blue costume, was given away by her father, while the groom was attended by his brother, Dr. C. T. Lundon. A luncheon was served at the Chateau Frontenac at noon. The groom, who is a 1914 graduate of McGill University, and has served ten years in the Canadian militia, is leaving for England, having accepted a commission in the British Army Medical Corps for service at the front.

Murray McL. Hay, who has been visiting Miss Calder at Deer Island for two weeks has returned home.

At a special meeting of the teachers at the Summer School of Science, Tuesday afternoon, Inspector F. B. Meagher in the chair, it was decided to join with the teachers at the Sussex school and elsewhere in the province to raise funds for the purchase of machine guns. Thomas Pickard was elected treasurer for this School, and subscription lists were opened, meeting with a cordial response.

Three War Bogeys Laid By "Spectator"

"For the last week or so there has been so great an outbreak of hysteria in certain quarters that it has become absolutely necessary for those who are concerned with the national safety to trim the boat of State by pointing how grossly overdone and how ill-founded has been so much of the present pessimism," says the London Spectator.

"Though in a sense we want to see the country alarmed, or, at any rate, made fully cognizant of the terrible gravity of the situation, we recognize that panic may prove quite as great a danger as false security. What has been specially harmful of late has been the tendency of our pessimists to manufacture a series of bogeys with which to scare the nation. To make people face the facts and the true facts, is one thing. To erect these straw-puffed engines of alarm is quite another, and one which is bound to prove exceedingly hurtful.

"The first bogey is that connected with the Russian retreat in Poland and Galicia. We are asked to believe that when the Russians have fallen back a little further, and the Germans advanced a little more, there will be a mighty rush back of a million Germans from the eastern frontier. They will then be hurled either upon Italy or upon the western line or both.

"That is a pure delusion—unless, of course, the Russian field armies were to be so utterly destroyed that it would take six months before Germany had anything to worry about in Poland from the military point of view. But all the signs are that the Russian field armies are not going to be destroyed. They are merely going to fall back.

"There is very little chance of any large numbers of Germans being able to disengage themselves from the Polish theatre of the war and rush back to Flanders. The transfer of a million men is a bogey which should not frighten grown men or serious people.

"Closely connected with the rush back of the million men is the Calais bogey. We are told that the Germans are going to break through on the western front and seize Calais. Our answer is that they tried to do this very thing in October, when both we and the French were, far less strong than we are now, and they failed. In the last days of October our line in front of Calais was desperately thin and the Germans were at their maximum strength, not only as regards numbers, but still more as regards the quality of their troops. They then still had plenty of first line troops in perfect condition, and they hurled them unsuccessfully on our trenches. If they had then pierced our line, there was nothing behind to stop them. Now not only is their offensive weaker and our defensive very much stronger, but behind our first line both we and the French have powerful reserves, occupying strong positions, which could deal without difficulty with any German advance. The line will hold.

"The Germans would no more have the mastery over Britain if they held Calais than had Napoleon when he held every inch of the coast from Brest to the Texel, Calais is not half such a danger spot for us as is Antwerp, and the occupation of Antwerp has not ruined us.

"We shall be told, of course, that we are forgetting modern artillery. Huge German guns mounted at Calais will be able to drop shells on Dover, or upon ships passing up and down the Channel, and so forth.

"People who argue like this forget that if we come under fire in this way, the Germans will also come under our fire, and that the fire of big guns from monitors or battleships is far more formidable than the fire from fixed shore
