Acquitted Of Murder

Charles Smith and Stephen Derrah Found Not Guilty of the Murder of Fred. Greene on May 7th.

The Circuit Court met here on Tuesday morning and continued its sessions until 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon, at which hour the jury, through its foreman Sterling Peabody brought in a verdict of not guilty in favor of Charles Smith and Stephen Derrah, charged with the murder of Fred Green on May 7th last.

Chief Justice Landry presided, J. C. Hartley, K. C., and Attorney General Baxter appeared for the Crown, and Jones & Jones defended the criminal case for murder. S. D. Simmons of Fredericton, was court stenographer.

TUESDAY MORNING.
The following were the grand jurors:—

J. A Lindsay, Foreman, J. R. Brown, Frank L. Atherton, Wallace Miller, Oriand Graves, Fred Cowan, Wm. Rolston, J. J. Hale, Herbert Boyer, Addington Thomas, Thos. Strong, Thos. Watt, Ezra Briggs, Harry McLean, Jas. Gibson, John Flemming, Howard Kearney, Geo. Lee, John J. Rogers.

The case of the King vs. Charles Smith and Stephen Derrah, charged with the murder of Fred Green at Florenceville on the night of May 7 last, was taken up. The judge charged the grand jury at length, reviewing the facts, as contained in the depositions, and intimating that in his opinion there were grounds upon which the jury might find a true bill against each of these men.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.
The grand jury through the foreman, J. A Lindsay, brought in a true bill against the prisoners late in the afternoon.

In addressing the jury His Honor complimented them upon the election of Mr. Lindsay as foreman, His Honor had known Mr. Lindsay's father, Hon Wm. Lindsay when they were both members of the Legislature, and he held the members of the family in high regard.

The Chief Justice referred briefly but earnestly to the subject most strongly in the minds of all, the war. While what he had to say to them was purely his own opinion, and while he spoke as representing no one but himself, he felt that on an occasion like this, it was his duty to tell them that according to his view, the most effective and the fairest means both to the volunteers who had gone to the front and to the young men yet unenlisted, after recruiting was conscription. Also he believed that public opinion was rapidly coming around to this view. He, himself, was a man of peace and had not favored conscription in the past, but after giving the subject the most careful attention and thought of which he was capable, he had changed his mind, and was confident that in a great world struggle like this, when it was no use to go at it in a half-hearted way, every resource in men and other means capable of being drawn out, should be at the service of the state. For himself, he said it in no boasting spirit, he had two sons at the front. If a third was needed he would rather that the authorities said, we have come for him, than that they should ask him to use his persuasion to get him to go.

The grand jury made a presentment to the judge, in reference to the pay of jurors as follows:—

Grand Jury Room, Woodstock, N. B., Oct. 19 1915.

The Honorable P. A. Landry, Chief Justice of the King's Bench of the Province of N. B.

May it please your Honor: The grand jury of the Court of King's Bench for the County of Carleton take the present occasion to bring to your notice, and through your honor, to the notice of the proper authorities, the present insufficient remuneration to the jurors of the court, as well as to the other courts of the province. The time was when one dollar might nearly pay the expenses of the man summoned to sit upon the jury, but that time has long gone by. We would respectfully submit for your consideration that every man who attends the courts as a jury man does so at a
