Admit Germany Will Be Defeated

(New York World.) London, June 19.—An American, lately returned from Switzerland, contributes to the Morning Post an article embodying the views upon the war situation of an "educated and prominent business man of Berlin" whom he met in that country. After describing the magnificent internal organization of Germany and the favorable position of the population regarding food and other commodities, the article proceeds:

"Without being the least disheartened, the educated and thinking classes are fully aware that Germany will be defeated. At the same time they are convinced that they have fought themselves into a splendid position that nothing like it will ever overtake them. They are confident, for instance, that Russia will be beaten in an almost standstill within one year.

On the other hand, they do not think that they will make further headway on the western front though continued violent efforts will be made for Caen, which they admit should have been their first objective, as they fully realize now that England is their most dangerous enemy in the immediate future.

The march on Paris was their second great blunder, their first, whispered by a somewhat bated breath, having been the violation of Belgium, for which last Belgium von Helldorf will be made scapegoat where the war is over.

In spite of this it is anticipated that in furtherance of her military measures, Germany in all probability will have to treat Holland before long, as she has treated Belgium in the past. They do not believe, however, that the western allies will be able to make a successful offensive against them.

In other words they are convinced that the definite position of statements be established, all of which will go to strengthen the hands of the German statesmen, when the peace paraders come.

"The man in the street has not yet decided what the terms of peace are going to be, but one clause it will not contain is the cessation of Heligoland, for the retention of which the last proverbial cat and dog will first die.

"That attempts of an invasion of England will be made in the near future is the assured opinion of the public mind of Germany. The much advertised fleet of Zepelins for the London raid as matter of fact will be in readiness for its event to support the German fleet when it makes a dash for English shores, covering its transports, which are ready, by battleship, submarine and air menace in great force.

"One result of its action with Admiral Jellicoe's squadrons will depend on rushing forward of its military transports to landing stages selected. Remember that they firmly believe that their fleet is strong enough to give them at least one chance in three of successfully encountering England on her own highway of the seas. At worst a defeat or even the destruction of their naval battle force, in their opinion, will have a negligible effect, for their land strength will be still undisturbed.

"Their transports, in event of the action going against them, immediately will fall back on the impregnable harbors of Kiel and Heligoland, though an attempt to land even a small invading force may be nothing but a gambler's throw, certain to meet with annihilation. It is believed it will shatter the inviolability of England from outer attack, and thus add enormously to German prestige. Briefly she stands to gain something and to lose a little.

"It is said that Germany has munitions of war, heavy and light, to last until September without placing any marked restriction on the quantities used, but after that time, it is feared that their supplies of camphor and saltpetre, absolutely essential for the manufacture of high explosives, will be practically exhausted, and in the face of the allies' blockade, ability to replenish is very doubtful. Therefore from then on their strength in artillery will shrink.

"If this be a fact, and there is no reason to doubt the German belief in his own statement, it becomes doubly incumbent on Germany to strike her very hardest in every direction before that time arrives."

Sentence on General Dewet

Bloemfontein, Union of South Africa, London, June 22—A sentence of six years' imprisonment and a fine of two thousand pounds was imposed to-day on General Christian Dewet, one of the leaders of the Boer African rebellion against the British Government, who was found guilty yesterday of treason on eight counts.

General Dewet was commander-in-chief of the Free State forces during the Boer war. In 1914 he headed a rebellion in the Orange Free State and Western Transvaal against Great Britain. He was promptly captured, however, and the trial which resulted in the sentence of to-day was begun June 10.

The St. John River now is clear of lumber from Grand Falls to the Sugar Island boom, a few miles above Fredericton. The Lower Corporation drive was completed yesterday when the last logs were brought into the boom. The crews will tow back to Woodstock today. They will lie up at Woodstock for some days to wait for the Upper Corporation drive to send some logs over Grand Falls.

There are still 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 feet of lumber above Grand Falls which must be brought down. Driving conditions there are reported to be hard but the water is not yet down to summer level.—Fredericton Mail.

BELGIAN ORPHAN FUND

Mr. Daniel Mullin, Belgian Consul for New Brunswick, has received from M. Ed. Pollet, Consul General for Belgium, London, who is the Chairman of the Belgian Orphan Fund, a letter in which he is requested to give the Fund the largest publicity, and stating further that all subscriptions in his district can be sent to the Belgian Consul for New Brunswick. Mr. Mullin is also requested to form local committees under his patronage. A similar letter has been addressed to the other Belgian Consuls in Canada.

The Belgian Orphan Fund is under the high patronage of the King and Queen of the Belgians. Mr. Mullin recognizes the splendid response which has been made all over New Brunswick for the relief of the Belgians, and on behalf of the Belgian people cordially thanks the subscribers to that fund. He now appeals for aid for the little orphan children whose fathers have died so bravely in defense of their homes and firesides, and trusts that the generous spirit which has already been manifested for Belgian relief will prompt a ready response for this worthy cause.

All subscribers to this Fund can send their remittances to Mr. Daniel Mullin, Belgian Consul for New Brunswick, who has opened a subscription list in his office in the Pugsley Building, St. John, N. B., and at drugstores in different parts of the City: North End, South End, East End and West End, also in Fairville. It is proposed by the Belgian Consul to open a special account in the Union Bank of Canada for the Belgian Orphan Fund, where all moneys received will be deposited until remitted, from time to time, to the Belgian Consul General in London. All subscriptions will be acknowledged promptly through the public press.

The Dispatch has received a subscription list for the Belgian Orphan Fund from Mr. Mullin, and will receive subscriptions for the Fund, acknowledge same through "The Dispatch" and remit to Mr. Mullin.

EDUCATION IN JAPAN

Children Are Given Good General Training, With Some Specializing

The annual report of the minister of state for education in Japan is in many respects an inspiration and an example to all who are engaged in educational work. It is not a mere record of good work done, although in this respect it is remarkable when we remember the short time that Japan has been in contact with western civilization; it is full of suggestive ideas, and those in supreme command insist on the necessity for all the work being of an educational nature, which would develop the powers of the students. On the one hand, special means are taken for the nurture of efficient teachers, so that the teaching staff of every school should be made complete and perfect, while, on the other, honor and encouragement are given to all persons of merit who are connected with education. At the same time profound attention is paid to the moral education of pupils and students; while the general education is given as a foundation, special attention is paid to every department of technical edu-
