TRUE IN MISFORTUNE

Human nature is vilely selfish, and rather enjoys the failure of other people. "Don't expect help or sympathy from others," advised a notorious millionaire. "You won't get it if you do. Keep your failures to yourself. If you tell them to other people, don't expect them to enjoy them, that's all. It's human nature, and cannot be altered." It is wonderful how many people accept that miserable view. It does not do them good. I believe it is as false a view as anyone can hold, and one which helps enormously to the failure of those who hold it. The man or woman who believes that human beings are no better than that, won't make the best of them, or of himself or herself either. "Don't expect too much, but don't expect too little of men or women," advised Lord Palmerston. "People are always running to one extreme or the other in too much or too little confidence in them. I have seen a good deal of gratitude and much ingratitude. I think I may assure you of this, that desert inevitably gathers to it some who remain true to it in every misfortune."—The Penny Magazine.

Tobacco Smoke

Extensive tests by an Ohio physician have proved to his satisfaction that both tobacco juice and smoke are excellent germicides, killing a large proportion of all disease germs with which they come in contact.

MODERN DESPATCHING

Telephones Displacing the Telegraph For the Actual Handling of Trains

The new system of despatching trains by telephone inaugurated by the Grand Trunk Railway between Montreal and Toronto has been in use long enough for a thorough and satisfactory test. It is intended eventually to despatch by telephone over the entire system.

The method followed is slightly different from the ordinary telephone line in that it is always under the direct control of the chief train despatcher so that the wire cannot be used by operators at way stations except through his office. It is a marked improvement on the old telegraph system which was subject to interruption while being used for transmitting train orders. The telephone is exclusively used for handling orders for the movement of trains, ordinary railroad business being still conducted by means of telegraph.

The old rules are still made use of. All orders are repeated back to the despatcher by the operator for reference to the original copy before the signal "O.K." is given. The numbers of trains and engines, the stations, names of conductors and engineers and other important parts of orders are spelled out in full both in transmission and reception.

At a meeting of the National Food Fund held at the Mansion House in London, Captain Charles Bathurst, M.P., predicted a further increase in food prices in the United Kingdom and deplored the serious waste of food going on in military camps as well as in civilian homes. The Lord Mayor, who followed, said that he was quite disposed to believe that the food wasted in English households represented £20,000,000 a year. Viscount Gladstone declared that the waste was truly enormous, while Mr. McKenna sent a message saying that everyone could help to win the war by economizing the food consumption. The more food, the lower the prices.

HOW TO RAISE BOYS.

A Negro mummy had a family of boys so well behaved that one day her mistress asked:

"Sally, how did you raise your boys so well?"

"Ah'll tell yo' missus, answered Sally. 'Ah raise dem boys with a barrel stave, an Ah raise 'em frequent.'"

Not Behind in Airships

London, July 16.—The annual accounts of the British dockyards expenditure for last year reveal for the first time to the public that airship "No 16" was in the course of construction in 1914. It had been the impression that at that time Great Britain had confined its air craft activities almost exclusively to aeroplanes had been built was known only to the initiated. Since the period covered by these figures other airships have been added to the British aviation service.

The same accounts give the total cost of the combatant ships in the British navy in commission at the end of the last fiscal year at upwards of $870,000,000.

THE YOUNGER SON.

(Punch.)

The younger son, he's earned his bread in ways both hard and easy, From Parramatta, to the Pole, from Yukon to Zambesi;

For young blood is roving blood, and a far road's best,

And when you're tired of roving there'll be time enough to rest!

And it's "Hello" and "How d'ye do?" "Who'd ha thought of meeting you!"

Taught you were in Turkestan or China or Peru!—

It's a long trail in peace time where the roving Britons stray,

But in war-time, in war-time, it's just across the way!

He's left the branches to be rusted by who in thunder chooses;

He's left the pots to wash themselves in Canada's caboose;

He's left the mine and logging camp, the peavy, pick and plough,

For young blood is fighting blood, and England needs him now.

And it's "Hello" and "How d'ye do?" "How's the world been using you?"

What's the news of Calgary, Quebec and Cariboo?"

It's a long trail in peace time where the roving Britons stray,

But in war-time, in war-time, it's just across the way!

He's travelled far by many a trail he's rambled here and yonder,

No road too rough for him to tread, no land too wide to wander,

For young blood is roving blood, and the spring of life is best,

And when all the fighting's done, lad, there's time enough to rest.

And it's good-bye, tried and true, here's a long farewell to you

(Rolling stone from Mexico, Shanghai or Timbuctoo!)

Young blood is roving blood, but the last sleep is best,

When the fighting all is done, lad, and it's time to rest.
