

Double pipes that All Enjoy

A small wooden rack, or one of celluloid, such as are sold for holding tooth brushes, a few clay pipes and four yards of bright red baby ribbon, serve to fix up a gay little gift holding promise of fun for the young people. And bubble blowing is not beneath the dignity of their elders; everyone indulges in this pastime.

Two other pipes may be suspended from this rack by shorter lengths of ribbon and the man who prefers to blow smoke to bubbles will like a rack which holds a fresh pipe or one he may offer his friend.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

Pretty Things for the Housewife

Dresser Set of Embroidered Linen

Heavy white linen (or cotton in certain weaves) embroidered with light colored floss make simple and elegant dresser sets that will delight the heart of the neat housewife. These sets consist of dresser scarf and pincushion cover usually, but glove and handkerchief cases may be made to match and added to them.

The scarf is a length of the linen having scalloped edges buttonhole stitched with light colored floss. A scroll and flower pattern is embroidered at each end, and at the center of the scarf, on one side.

A small oblong pincushion is covered with two pieces of linen, one smaller than the other, as shown in the picture. These are buttonhole stitched in scallops about the edges and eyelets are worked in them. A scroll and flower pattern is embroidered in the smaller piece. They are joined by narrow satin ribbon threaded through the eyelets and tied in little bows.

Luncheon Set of Silk Muslin

Something new in luncheon sets is made of stiff white silk muslin, very small gilt cord and white and green water color paints. It consists of a centerpiece and twelve doilies to match and is made in a conventionalized chrysanthemum design. The doilies are small replicas of the centerpiece.

A large circle is cut from the muslin for the centerpiece and a few French knots, of dark yellow embroidery silk, are worked in the center to represent the stamens. Three rows of petals are outlined on the centerpiece with white paint and the tiny gilt cord is sewed with yellow silk thread along the outline of each petal. The petals are crowded a little at one side to allow three light green leaves to be painted in. A little white paint is brushed in at the point of each petal and the muslin about the edge trimmed away from them.

The doilies are made in the same way but on a smaller scale.

MAKE A GHOST

Your Own if You Use Your own Name —Try it

Want to see what your "ghost" looks like? That's easy!

Take a sheet of writing paper and fold it. Then write your name in ink along the crease. Use plenty of ink. Fold the paper again quickly, while the ink is wet, and rub thoroughly.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, OTTAWA, OCTOBER 7th, 1916.

The ink spreads. You can make two different ghosts by writing your name on one paper just above the crease on another right over the crease, half above and half below it. And no two ghosts will be exactly alike. Every time you write you'll get a different one. Get your friends to try it, too, and exchange ghosts with them. The queer shapes different names make are very amusing.

DOUBLES OF CELEBRITIES

Many People Taken For Famous People by Their Likeness Thereto

The announcement that General French's double is to be found in the person of a tradesman of Armentieres is a reminder that few famous men have escaped having a double. There was the Parisian who was an exact double of the late King Edward, and dressed and played the part to perfection as he walked the streets and was saluted everywhere as His Majesty.

Such is the striking resemblance between Mr. J. F. Farnham, of Albany, New York, and Dr. Woodrow Wilson, that the former is known to his friends as "Woodrow." Curiously enough, Dr. Wilson's predecessor, ex-President Taft, had a "speaking likeness" in the person of a New Jersey judge.

Such was the strange likeness between Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, the famous artist, and George Du Maurier, the author of "Trilby," that the latter was sent into fits of laughter by a lady who addressed him at a dinner as "Sir Lawrence," and went on to assure him that she could not understand people saying he and Du Maurier were much alike. "For," went on she, "it is simply ridiculous; you're not a bit so."

The extraordinary facial resemblance between King George and the Czar of Russia has often been commented upon, while the Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister for Trade and Commerce in Canada, has two doubles in England. Mr. Tom Burt, the veteran member for Morpeth, and Dr. Clifford, the well known Baptist minister. Lord Morley might have been a twin brother of Sir Charles Marriott, the famous surgeon, who died some time ago. Sir George Alexander has a double in Mr. J. Thorold, well known in the London and military world, while Mr. Frederick Benton is the "living image" of Mr. James Welch, and has often played his part.

A BATH-TUB HINT

Toy Balloon Put to Work—As it Goes up Water Goes Down

Regulating one's bath with a toy balloon has a rather queer sound when put into words, but if put into practice it would prevent the overflowing of the bath tub. There are any number of times when it is not possible to stand by while the bath tub is being filled to watch and turn off the water before it overflows the tub. And there are many times when one stands by when one could be doing something else. Therefore enter the toy balloon as the bather's little helper. Attach the balloon with a string to the plug in the bottom of the bath, the string being just as long as the depth of water desired. Then when the water reaches the required depth the toy balloon floats on top and by its buoyancy lifts out the plug and lets the water escape.

FISH SCALES

In Days Gone by Were Most Valuable Part of Fish

Among unconsidered trifles may be included the scales of fish. Of value and utility to the owner during its sojourn in the vasty deep, the scales are ignored after capture as good for the manure heap. But it was not ever thus. In days gone by fish scales possessed a real value, notably those of roach, bleak, dace, and whitebait. Older writers tell us how the scales of these fishes were collected and used in the manufacture of necklaces, ear-rings, and such-like ornaments. London fishermen used to catch the fish, take off the scales, and throw the body back into the river.

A pigment was obtained by treating the scales in a certain fashion, whitebait being the most popular fish used for the purpose. So great, formerly, was the demand at times that the price of a quart of fish-scales varied from one to five guineas. This treatment of fish-scales for making small personal adornments is attributed to the French. A Parisian artist one winter, it is said, used thirty hamperfuls of bleak scales in the course of manufacture. To-day, however, the industry is practically extinct.

THE AGONY COLUMN

The agony column of "The Times" continues to delight one's lighter moments, as well as to touch the heart with its hints of pathos and sorrow.

In the same issue several women appeal for details of the last moments of their husbands and sons killed in action; a fat man implores that someone should grasp this unique opportunity to obtain his services for cinema comedy pictures; a colonial subaltern hopes that a kind person will help him with $75, out of his difficulties; another subaltern, a Canadian ranker, wants $125 urgently, and a lady wants to adopt the child of an officer who has fallen in action.

A few days ago, a girl whose fiance had been killed, offered to marry and devote herself to a disabled officer, with a view to making him happy. What a pity one cannot follow up these appeals. Did a disabled officer reply to this? Would the girl marry a man she had never seen, and would devotion so impersonal satisfy him and stand the strain of everyday life? Did some really kind sympathetic man write to her to point out the drawbacks to what she was so rashly and wildly promising because she felt her heart was broken?
