

JAPANESE SUPERSTITION

The Japanese have many curious superstitions about animals, the chief among which is their belief in the supernatural power of foxes.

Advice About Ducks

The breeding ducks should have a stream of clear water to bathe in. It is not essential, but it gives better fertility.

The Ideal Home

In building that new home build it for the future and for convenience. Don't compromise for immediate conditions.

To sell a thing to a man who really doesn't want it is not smart. It is only making an enemy of him.

Mustard plasters will not blister if mixed with the white of an egg and hot water.

Fixing Cycle Tires

An English cycling expert says: I have often mentioned the wonderful ignorance the average cyclist shows in regard to puncture repairing.

Garrulous Member

A good story is told of a certain M.P. well known for his verbosity, who rose to address the Imperial House.

"A friend of mine was returning home late one night," he said, "when opposite St. Paul's he saw an intoxicated man trying to ascertain the time on the big clock there."

Building Extraordinary

A remarkable engineering feat was accomplished recently at a factory in Pennsylvania, when a steel roof weighing 600 tons was lifted from one of the walls to a height of 40 feet above the perpendicular sides of the mill, 35 feet high.

BLAME BERRY PICKERS

For Forest Fires in Settled Parts of Canada

Many causes are responsible for Canada's heavy forest fire losses. Some of the erstwhile greatest offenders have come to realize the destruction which their negligence was causing.

It should surely be necessary only to draw the attention of berry-pickers to the destruction which their carelessness or indifference is causing.

Wanted, Because Wounded

Someone advertised in a New York paper the other day for a book-keeper and salesman who "must have one leg shorter than the other."

The comment is diverting,—but it only diverted us from the advertisement for a moment.

What the advertiser wanted a cripple for, we have not had the courtesy to ask. Possibly, to sell patent elevating boots to other cripples.

What strikes us, however, is that we should like to see more advertisements of the same kind from employers who have no such self-interested reason.

For instance:—"Book-keeper wanted, with experience or Convalescent Hospital training. Must not have more than one leg, and may have less."

"A pushing salesman wanted, with one arm, if he left the other in Flanders."

"Gardener's job open to an ex-soldier needing out-door life."

"Munitions making. Highest pay. Injured soldiers preferred, if able for the work."

New Patriotic Song

A new Patriotic Song entitled "Canada, Our Canada" words by Henry Chadwick and music by Henry Delia field has just been published. Mr. Wm. G. Billings, of Boston was in town recently and stated the song had been received with enthusiasm in the Dominion of Canada.

At a recent concert of the Canadian Club in Boston the song was sung by Miss Bertha Barns, Mezzo Contralto, and the audience stood and sang with her.

This song was dedicated to the "Woman's Auxiliary to the Canadian Club, Boston

A voluntary subscription of 20 per cent of the money received from the sale of the song is offered by the publishers to any fund that would benefit the families of the Canadian Soldier

"Canada, Our Canada"

England, we have caught the message Flashed to us from o'er the sea, Of the Titan struggle telling. That hath hid the skies from thee; Telling how thine ancient spirit Springs anew into the light, There to stand with every nation That will tread thy path of right, Shall we aid our King and Mother, While their bugles cry of war? Yea! thy regiments make answer— Canada, Our Canada!

Chorus— Now, Hurrah, the old Dominion Soldiers brave Hurrah, Hurrah! England's daughter stands for England— Canada, Our Canada!

Rise, ye western sons of England! Put all selfishness behind. Place thy treasure on the altar; Heed the ties of blood that bind. While the thunder of the battle Loudly rolls 'mid lightning gleams, Lift our hearts to God above us! Peace will bless with softer beams. Shall we share this heavy harness? Shall we feel the brand of war? Yea! thy sons have bared their shoulders Canada, Our Canada!

Chorus— Now, Hurrah, the old Dominion Soldiers brave, Hurrah, Hurrah! England's daughter stands for England— Canada, Our Canada!

Pray the darker skies may brighten, And the fields now torn by strife May be tilled by sturdy freemen Singing loud the joy of life; Singing praise to future ages When all men shall sheathe the sword And all battle-lust be banished By the power of the Word! Shall we haste that glorious dawning When all nations cease to war? Yea! thy sons and daughters answer, Canada, Our Canada!

Chorus— Now, Hurrah, the old Dominion! Soldiers brave, Hurrah, Hurrah! England's daughter stands for England— Canada, Our Canada!
