

No Nihilists Now In Russia

The Dako DeMorny had a striking article in a recent copy of Jobn Bull on Russia. He describes the fixed, unalterable determination of a united people to conquer in this war. A vast social revolution is working out amongst its millions in the midst of this greatest of wars. Before the war Russia was ruled by the Germans. German influence surrounded the Czar and percolated through every branch of the government. All the bailiffs of the estates were Germans. The directors, managers and sub-managers of all industries were German.

"The Russian peasant to day regards the German as his natural oppressor, the man who has ground him down. Do you realize that on the declaration of the war, with the consequent exit of Germans, the Russians were like some immense public school without its masters? This is the first attempt the Russians have made to run their Empire with their own brains.

There are no Nihilists in Russia now. The people are united and fully purposed once for all to free the country from all foreign domination.

"But I wish to impress on your readers, above all else, that this great offensive is only in its infant stage. Russia cannot yet employ twenty-five per cent of her effective, because she cannot equip and arm them. In spite of her losses, throughout two years of war, there are still eighteen millions of men either with the colors or waiting to be called up. She started her great offensive with four million two hundred thousand men, having rifles and equipment available for this number. The remaining fourteen millions are waiting for their turn to come. I do not mean to say that they could all be employed at once. The absence of roads and railways and the difficulty of feeding them prohibit it. But do not forget this fact: Within the heart of this limitless Empire fourteen millions of splendid Russian peasants are calling to the munition makers of England and France to quicken their efforts to redouble their output, so that they may hasten to end Armageddon. No losses will ever stop that hour of the Great Revenge on which the Russian people have set their hearts. As we keep Russia supplied with arms and munitions, so shall we hasten that consummation when Europe will be freed for ever from the intolerable dominion of the Prussian militarism."

All such N.C.O.'s and men thus allowed to sleep out will be required to report in barracks at Reveille.

REVEILLE. Reveille will, until buglers are trained and placed on duty, be known as 5.30 a. m.

RECREATION. The Commanding Officer having in mind the great mental and physical benefits derived from the frequent participation in healthy recreation enjoins upon all ranks the necessity for giving their spare hours to football, baseball, gymnastics, etc.

MARRIAGE. Under the terms of the Order-in-Council, approved by His Royal Highness the Governor-General of Canada, on the 28th day of January 1915, only those men who obtained from their Commanding Officer permission to marry at the time of enlistment, and marriage takes place within twenty days after such enlistment, will be eligible to receive Separation Allowance. This Order-in-Council has, however been later revised, giving power to Commanding Officers to recommend such persons, who marry after the time limit of twenty days, (provided he was engaged to be married prior to enlistment, and that the woman is a desirable person to receive the benefit of the Allowance), for the Special Certificate required for the Allowance in question. It is notified, however, for the information and guidance of all concerned, that the terms of the Order-in-Council will be followed as rigidly as possible, and applications for permission to marry must be confined to the time of enlistment, or between that and the date of marriage, not being over twenty days from the date of being taken on the strength.

MEDICAL ATTENTION. All ranks will give special attention to the cleanliness of their bodies and great importance is attached to the care of the feet. Inspections will be held, from time to time, under arrangements to be made by the Battalion Medical Officer. The greatest care will be exercised by Company Officers, to prevent men who are enlisted from exposing themselves to the infection of epidemics.

DESERTION. The attention of N.C.O.'s and men is drawn to the seriousness of the offence of desertion, the penalty for which now imposed by the Civil Power, under a recent Order in Council, approved by H.R.H. the Governor General, will be a sentence of imprisonment [with or without hard labor] for a term not exceeding two years in the Common Jail. This applies also to men in a state of desertion. A copy of this Order will be permanently placed on all Company Notice Boards.

It is the Commanding Officer's intention that all ranks will abstain strictly from any attempt to violate this Order.

SCALE OF FINES FOR DRUNKENNESS. The scale of fines for drunkenness, as laid down in K.R.O. [Canada] 1910, and reprinted on M.E.B. 299, will be posted upon all Company Notice Boards. The attention of all N.C.O.'s and men is enjoined to this Notice.

Should the kingdom of Jerusalem be revived, the new monarch will find a capital which has been modernized in many ways. Two years ago the municipality of Jerusalem granted concessions for the electric lighting of the city and for the construction of four electric tramways, including one from Jaffa gate to Bethlehem and another along the Damascus road to the head of the Valley of Jehoshaphat. Steps have also been taken to construct water works, although when the Baroness Burdet Coutts offered to spend £25,000 on this much needed improvement, provided the municipality voted the money for their upkeep, her offer was declined.

Hammer Right On Through Winter

London, Oct. 13.—The objects of the British advance in France were outlined to the Associated Press today by Maj. Gen. F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the War Office. The General emphasized as one of the principal purposes, already gained, that "the British push into the German lines has extended the fighting front by a length of 20,000 yards, so that if stationary trench fighting were resumed the Germans would have that much increased frontage to defend."

"As we go on our difficulties get less and less," he remarked, pointing out that the country thus far gained was hilly and strongly defended and that the British had now reached the lower rolling lands. Whereas the positions captured were intricate systems of defence, he said, the British now confront a single line of trenches.

"They (the Germans), are hard at work making another line here," he went on, indicating a line drawn on the map behind the present battle front. "When we get there they will be working on yet another line back here. Our work is to get ahead faster than their digging."

"We have never proceeded farther or faster than we could with safety. Proof of that is that we have never been pushed back. We do not expect to maintain our recent rate of progress uniformly. From time to time we strike harder ground. Our rate of progress may slow down when we get farther on. We are prepared for that."

The General discussed continuance of the British advance with confidence, as though it were an assured fact. He made it plain that the British plan is to keep on hammering.

"Can you keep on during the winter?" the General was asked.

He replied in the affirmative, with the qualifying statement: "Of course, the shorter the days the less shooting you can do. The worse the weather the harder is observation for artillery. It is unnecessary to refer to how important a factor is the artillery. In the Franco-Prussian war the battle of Bapaume was fought in the winter."

Neutrals Should Use Hun Vessels

London, Oct. 14.—Neutral nations are offered the suggestion that they use German ships interned in their ports to compensate them for submarine losses, by the shipping correspondent of the London Times, in discussing the world shortage in tonnage. The correspondent says:

"In view of the continued wanton destruction of neutral shipping, boat owners are wondering how much longer neutral countries are going to allow German vessels to lay idle in their ports."

After stating that there are ninety German ships in Chilean harbors, the correspondent continues:

"Chile, like all neutrals, is suffering from lack of tonnage. Therefore, in the view of British ship owners, Chile, if she will not use these ships to export her products to Europe, should be asked to lease them to a power which can employ them, and who will indemnify her for any loss in port and harbor charge."
