Thin-Blooded People

Often Become Nervously Ill Before They Realize It

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism or nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness can be corrected more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, slight exertion produces breathlessness and headaches and backaches frequently follow. In the treatment of troubles due to thin blood no other medicine has had such a great success as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They go right to the root of the trouble, make rich, red blood, thus restoring the weakened system to health and strength. Mr. R. F. Ashford, Peterboro, Ont., says: "Four years ago my condition became so serious that it seemed to me I possessed every pain and ache and every morbid feeling possible. For months I had been overworked, and bereavement added the last straw necessary to break down my constitution. I had a severe ever-present headache and pains in the back of the head, and at the same time I was seldom free from severe neuralgic pains. I was rarely hungry, and when I was it seemed to create a morbidness which made my other ills harder to bear. Of course I consulted a doctor, and he told me a rest and a change of air, just the thing I was unable in the circumstances to take. I had a particularly bad spell on the day my daughter returned from college, and she insisted that I should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was decidedly skeptical, but she got some and to please her I took them. The result—After the first box I was compelled to admit that I really did feel better. After the second box I ungrudgingly admitted that they were doing me good, and after the sixth box I felt free from every ache and pain and in gratitude began to praise the pills to others. I am feeling as well as I did twenty years ago, and I owe it to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 5 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The War News

(St. John Globe).
France reports more hard fighting around Verdun, particularly at Hill 304, the height Germany wants so badly because of opportunity it will offer for big gun operations. Although the battle continues with apparently as great intensity as during recent weeks, there is little apprehension of German victory, because to-day the fighting conditions at Verdun are practically the same as along the whole Western front. France is as well supplied with men and as the paraphernalia of war as Germany, and fighting on the defensive has little cause to fear success to-day in the region where for nearly a hundred days the German hosts have been held at bay in the bloodiest battle in the world's history. Interest is shifting from Verdun and the Western front to the Asiatic campaign, where a great battle is being fought between the Russians and Turks. Along the front of sixty or seventy miles the two armies have been engaged for several days in a contest which may settle the issue in that region. Germany's brilliant military genius, von Mackensen, is said to be directing the Turks in their effort to check the advance of the Grand Duke Nicholas. The size of the armies engaged is not known, but Germany is believed to have given the Turks artillery and other modern military engines in the hope that with their aid the Moslems will be able to hold the territory whose conquest would mean the end of all Germany's plans for Eastern trade and an Eastern empire. To-day's advance of further Russian progress in the vicinity of Mosul, a Turkish city of sixty-one thousand people near the site of ancient Nineveh, is reassuring, for Mosul is on the Tigris, just to the south of Bitlis and is a strategic point and give the Russians possession of one of Turkey's great supply depots for the army of Mesopotamia and Bagdad. British assistance in the Russian campaign is rendered difficult by the fearful floods, but the time of these is rapidly passing, and the activities of General Lake's division must keep a very considerable Turkish force busy. To withdraw would mean abandoning Bagdad, which neither Turkey nor Germany would care to see fall into the hands of the British.

Japan's Shipping

Like Great Britain, Japan is making tremendous efforts to increase her shipping, that she may share to the full in the tremendous ocean traffic the war has created and peace is expected to continue, at least to the nations of the Entente. At the present time there is under construction in Japanese yards a total of ninety-nine vessels with an aggregate of 439,470 tons. Shipbuilding yards are being enlarged and at Yokohama a syndicate is building a great dockyard capable of constructing eleven ships at one time. With this and other enlargements, the Japanese will within the next two years double the capacity of her shipbuilding industry. The island nation of the Pacific, whether the Allies develop a naval combine or not, will exercise a greatly increased influence in the Pacific because of Germany's loss of her colonial empire, and particularly the Chinese concession with its tremendous trading possibilities.

What war means to German shipping is disclosed in the annual report of the Hansa Steamship Company of Bremen, the third largest shipping concern in the German Empire. The 1915 profits were $1,000,000, about $8,000,000, while those of the year before the war were upwards of $2,200,000. The Hansa company fared better than some other German shipping companies last year, and even its small earnings are expected to be altogether wiped out this season. St. John Globe.

Teutons Lose Submarine Cases

London, May 15.—A despatch from Milan to the New York News says that the two chief losses of Austro-Hungarian submarines in the Southern Mediterranean have been definitely destroyed, as a sequel to the Italian occupation of Marza, Moraza and Porto Bardia, between Cyrenica and Egypt. The despatch continues: "The Italian warships navigated the coastal waters without mishap, though they were thickly sown with mines. When contingents were being embarked one column marched on Borgo Salimau and seized enormous stocks of tinned and other preserves, which were ready for the submarines."
"The Italian warships searched the seashore and found supplies of benzine, and other materials and naval stores were discovered in caverns and ruined cities."
"During the dredging operations the broken propeller of a submarine was found entangled in a steel net."
