 1739, and reached Great Slave Lake a week after. The great river flowing through this lake is named after him descending which he reached the Arctic Ocean and returned after an absence of one hundred and two days.
 In 1792 he attempted to reach the Pacific. This journey proved to be far more difficult and perilous than the preceding. After nine months journey MacKenzie crossed the Rocky Mountains, the first white man to do so, and reached the Pacific Coast near Menzies in 1793.
 On his return to Chippewyan, he devoted himself to trade and amassed considerable fortune. During a visit to England he was knighted by George III and after his return sat in the Legislative Assembly as member for Huntington county in Lower Canada. On finally quitting the west he settled on an estate in Rosshire. He was taken ill at Dunkeld while on a journey to Edinburgh and died there in 1820. What a career the first white man in Canada to reach both oceans overland.

HABIT

that habits whether intellectual or physical are generally incomplete and in such cases some element of consciousness is of course necessary. In proportion as habits are less perfectly established more conscious activity is required.

The great value of habit is that reactions become mechanical and the person is saved the necessity of reasoning the matter out each time any particular situation occurs. In order to make a success of life it is absolutely essential that a great number of good and useful habits be formed. But it is also true that it is unfortunate for a person to come under the complete domination of habit. The person whose life moves in a circle of habit is said to be in a "rut" and has little chance for progress since he loses the possibility of reaction on a higher level and hence the possibility of further education. Some people indeed have nearly every activity reduced to a habit, and while such a life is easy in the respect that it calls for little effort, yet it is merely a machine-like existence, cannot be improved, and hence is undesirable.

BRITAIN— CALLS TO CANADA—

THE FACTORY

THE FARM

She must have Food—

for her Armies in the Field—for her Workers in the Factory—in the Munition plant—in the Shipyard—in the Mine.

THERE'S DANGER IN SIGHT—BUT YOU CAN HELP

DO YOU KNOW—

that the rapidly rising price of food stuffs means that the World's reserve supply is getting small?

DO YOU KNOW—

that a world-wide famine can only be averted by increasing this supply?

DO YOU KNOW—

that a "food famine" would be a worse disaster to the Empire and her Allies than reverses in the Field?

YOU CAN—

help thwart Germany's desperate submarine thrust on the high seas.

YOU CAN—

do this by helping to make every bit of land in Canada produce—the very last pound of food stuffs of which it is capable.

AND REMEMBER—

that no man can say that he has fully done his part—who having land—be it garden patch, or farm, or ranch—fails to make it produce food to its utmost capacity.
