Uncle Sam's Big Money Pile

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—In these days, especially in the discussion of the government's war finances, a billion dollars is a term heard almost as frequently as a million dollars was spoken of a short time ago. Yet it is not probable that one person in many thousands has any adequate idea of what a billion dollars amounts to. Recently, however, a privileged few have had an opportunity to take a peek into Uncle Sam's war chest and have been enabled to see a billion or more in gold.

A corridor in the basement of the Treasury building, through which little iron wheeled trucks used to roll, has been shut off by massive steel gates, and the gold is stacked up for all the world like bricks awaiting the mason's hand. In one pile is 1,200 tons of pure gold, much of it representing British and French coins sent to Washington in payment for war supplies, and melted down in the assay office. Each brick is worth approximately $8,000, and the pile is valued at more than three-quarters of a billion dollars.

London, Jan. 11.—Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik premier, although he has possibly gone on a holiday to Finland, also possibly may go to Stockholm to confer with German and Austrian Socialists, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily News says:

In a speech before his departure from Petrograd, Premier Lenine said:

"I fear we shall have to stop the demobilization and prepare for war. If Germany and her allies do not accept our conditions of peace we will redeclare a revolutionary war on them."

The correspondent emphasizes the importance of an agreement between the Bolsheviks and Ukrainian negotiators, as the position of the Reds has lessened Trotsky's chances of obtaining a satisfactory peace. He says that if the Germans could buy off the Ukraine, the significance within Germany of Trotsky's stand would be cut in half. The correspondent adds that nothing is more foolish than to suppose that because the Ukraine opposes the Bolsheviks it therefore favors the Allies and prosecution of the war.

France Defines Her Attitude

Paris, Jan. 12.—That France does not purpose to have anything to do with the peace negotiations at Brest-Litovsk between the Bolsheviks and the Teutonic allies, and that she will have no peace dealings with the enemy until they shall make them direct, was stated in the Chamber of Deputies last evening by Minister of Foreign Affairs Pichon. The statement of M. Pichon was made after Marcel Cochin and Albert Thomas, Socialists, had demanded that the government issue passports to Socialists desiring to proceed to Petrograd and that the Entente Powers make a joint declaration of their war aims.

M. Pichon was sustained by a vote of 387 to 145.

London, Jan. 12.—The Mayor of Stockholm, according to a letter despatch from Petrograd, has arrived in Petrograd for the purpose, the newspapers there say, of establishing contact between the Bolshevik government and the Swedish Socialists. From London To Constantinople by Air

Great Achievement of British Aviator.

(Manchester Guardian).

There was a gathering in London today to celebrate the extraordinary feat of a British battle plane in flying from London to Constantinople and startling the Turks and their German friends there. The flight was last July, but the official news has only come out recently in any detail, and the achievement has blazed a trail in the air for still more wonderful achievements in times of peace. The biplane—a Handley Page machine with Rolls Royce engines—set out from London, and made a flight from the G. Vinden Horn by way of Paris, Lyons, Marseille, Soezia, Pisa, Rome, Naples, Otranto, thence over the Albanian Alps to Saloniki and Constantinople. The machine was thirty hours in the air from London to Constantinople. There were three objectives at Constantinople, and they bombed them all in schedule time and got back all serene, although a piece of shrapnel disabled one of the two engines. The Turks were feeling quite secure, and had all their lights lit, and it was quite easy to pick out the much battered Goeben and give it a hard bombing, after which the biplane started up.
