She thought of her gallant young cousin, of other men who had addressed her, but she felt that for none of these had she that admiration, that intelligent that you ever said to me.' sympathy, which she had for Maxwell, and to which she turned as the best substitute for true affection.

Maxwell's conversation always interested her; his acquirements, his mind, were pent of whom I thought then -was Max. far beyond those of the other men whom she knew. With him there might be no love, but there would at least be an intellectual life, which Janet's developing may remember that the next day, when mind was beginning to value and apprecithe news came of your father's death, I

But then, did she esteem and like as well as admire him? And here Janet hesitated She could hardly tell why, but she did not like him. He inspired her with a mistrust of his heart, which a woman seldom feels when that heart is devoted to her. Something about him, she knew not what rang hollow to her touch. In his most brilliant conversation there was a strain of mockery in his highest so. thoughts a touch of falseness. She recalled these perceptions—they were nothing more-with alarm. She thought how inscrutable were his jet black eyes, in which no expression save that of power ever shone. She remembered the opinion which Hugh had expressed of him at the Sweet Springs, and involuntarily the beseeching glance with which he had parted from her. The true blue eyes, that seemed to ask for love, came before her. But with the recollection came an-had in a very lonely, wild part of the Vegetine has restored thousands to health who been Agnes' lover, and falser far than the country. man whom he had accused. "A quattr' occbi." Janet sprang up as Hugh Carlton enter ed, white to the lips, but the instinct to repress all sign of emotion comes as rapidly to some women as the emotion itself, and she walked down the long room to meet him, with no more visible excite. ment than the presence of any unexpect ed visitor might have caused, saying,

'How do you do, Mr. Carlton? We did | you were gentle with her! not expect you for some days. Have the others come?' And she forced the hand but, oh shame! and shame by a woman, which she held out to him to be steady and firm. But it was no steady hand that asked, and she died happy. D., Baltimor Yours respectfully, Messrs, Scott & Bowne-Gentlemen-Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest prepaation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affectiors of the Lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

Very truly,

J. SIMONAUD, M. D. New Orleans, La Very truly,

Messis, Scott & Bowne-Gentlemen-In September 1877, my health began to fail and my phyician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain but my general health did not im rove, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In health did not im-rove, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning, and my weight increased from 118 to 10 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION of shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer Scort's EMULSION of CoD Liver Oil. &c. I have a friend who has not spoke you, and I answer Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle, and he bought two more then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Very truly yours,

H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass. LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878. Messrs. Scott & Bowne: About the 15th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gain-
