The Crisis in Afghanistan.

Later intelligence concerning the disaster to General Burrows' force somewhat relieved the gloom, and lessened the consternation caused by the news that it had been annihilated. The first report was brought in by a party of Indian horsemen, and transmitted to the Governor-General and by His Excellency to Lord Hartington, and was exaggerated. Gen. Burrows escaped, and was able to bring a large remnant of his force into Candahar. There is no doubt but that his force was much cut up and badly routed, but he inflicted some damage on his assailants that Ayob Khan was unable to follow up his victory by a vigorous pursuit.

The Viceroy of India telegraphs the following report from Gen. St. John:—"Under Candahar, July 29.—Gen. Burrows marched from Kushi Nakud on the morning of the 27th, having heard that Ayob Khan's advanced guard occupied the main road three miles from the latter place. The enemy's cavalry advanced from the direction of Hyderabad. The artillery and cavalry engaged them about 9 o'clock in the morning. There were 2,000 irregular infantry on the left and other irregulars and cavalry in reserve, and five or six batteries, including one of breech-loaders. Total force 12,000. Until one o'clock in the afternoon the action was confined to artillery which was so well sustained and directed by the enemy that our superior armament failed to compensate for the inferior guns. After the firing began our breech-loaders told, but the vigorous advance of the cavalry against our left and of the Ghazis along our front caused the native infantry to fall back in confusion, abandoning two guns. Our formation being lost, the British retreated slowly in spite of the efforts of General Burrows to rally them, and were cut off from the cavalry and artillery. This was at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the camp followers and baggage vans were streaming towards Candahar. After a severe fight in the enclosed ground General Burrows succeeded in extricating the infantry and brought them into the retreat. No efforts could turn the fugitives from the main road, which is without water at this season of the year, and thus the majority of casualties occurred from men dying from thirst and exhaustion."

The enemy's pursuit continued to within ten miles from Candahar, but was not vigorous. The cavalry and artillery, with a few infantry, reached the city by 4 o'clock on the 30th. The British, at 7 o'clock next morning, many not having taken water since the previous morning. Nearly all our ammunition was lost, and 1,100 rifles and two nine-pounder guns. Our loss is estimated in killed and missing as follows: 60th Regt. 400; Grenadiers, 350; Jacob's Rifles, 350; Artillery, 50; Sepoys, 24; Cavalry, 90. The Duranis have been expelled from Candahar. Provisions and ammunition are plentiful. That the disaster must be avenged, and the military supremacy of England vindicated in Afghanistan is the general consent of the nation—the cry of Parliament people and press. Strong brigades of infantry with cavalry and artillery are being rapidly pushed forward by the Viceroy, and a part of the reinforcements from England—which will consist of the 38th Regt., 1st Batt. of the 4th Dragoon Guards—sailed on Tuesday, and the rest will follow with all dispatch. But in the meantime before these reinforcements arrive, another disaster may befall the British arms in South Afghanistan, and the city and citadel of Candahar may fall before the assault of Ayob Khan, ex-General Phayre and General Sandiman, who are marching with a small force from Chaman, ninety miles from the city, and which they cannot, it is said, reach until the 25th of August, can come to the relief of General Burrows and General Primrose. The disaster to General Burrows created a great panic in Candahar, and caused the wealthy to hide their treasures and fly. Against an attack in force by Ayob Khan the city will not be able to stand out, but the citadel, two miles north of it, which occupies an almost impregnable position, and well provisioned, would "hold a siege to scorn." The citadel, it is said, is provisioned to last for six months, and that the probability is that the British will be able to hold out before reinforcements can arrive. But the situation is very critical. British soldiers have before this held out long in worse positions, and it is certain that Gen. Burrows and his force will be reduced to the direst extremities ere they give in.

Later dispatches state that Sir Garnet Wolsey, the man for the hour of need, will proceed immediately to India with a special commission to settle the affairs of Afghanistan, and give currency to rumors that he will succeed Sir Frederick Haines as Commander-in-Chief in India. They also state that serious doubts are entertained of the fidelity of Abdur Rahman Khan to the British, and that altogether the situation is most critical.

After two weary years of hard fighting, marked by two signal disasters, affairs in Afghanistan are far from being settled. The time is still distant when the British will be able to retire behind the scientific frontier and leave their protege Abdur Rahman Khan in sole possession of the throne of Cabul, and South Afghanistan pacified. It was easier to get into the country, difficult as it was, to fight and gain battles and make treaties than it will be to get out of it with honor and the assurance that all the blood and treasure that have been expended have not been wasted.

Dr. Tanner will complete on Saturday at noon his forty days fast. There is little doubt that he has from good faith carried out his resolution to abstain from food, but nothing has passed his lips but cold and mineral waters. The eyes of the Continent have been turned towards the "fasting"—and while losing flesh he has gained what he much desires—notoriety. Fasting will hardly be thinkable as a popular—it is the last thing that fast men will undertake by way of sport.

"Plaintdealer" dealt with Plainly.

The "Plaintdealer," a weekly journal published in New Glasgow, in a recent issue, ventured on the authority of some bumper or other, to print the following paragraph:—"In Fredericton, N. B., there existed a manufactory of agricultural implements, we think an Ontario manufacturing concern, who had a branch office in the Fredericton shop, and started a Co-op. The agent of the Ontario company told a citizen of this town that Ontario was to do all the manufacturing for the Maritime Provinces. If that is the case, all that will remain for the people of the Province to do is, if they remain at home, to act in the capacity of buyers of wood, and drawers of water for the Upper Province."

It is evident from the wording of the first sentence of this precious paragraph, that the "Plaintdealer" has been stuffed, and knows nothing whatever whereof he writes. The paragraph is a tissue "o' lees frae end to end." The Fredericton manufacturer of agricultural implements is still in existence, and likely to exist. McFarlane, Thompson & Anderson is not a firm easily to be snuffed out. It is not true that an Ontario manufacturing concern planted an agency opposite to the Fredericton shop, though it is true that the Co-operative Bros. of Ontario, have an agency in Fredericton, but their "concern" has not started out the local "shop." So far from the Fredericton factory being started out, we have been told by one of the members of the firm, that business has been very good this season, that they have sold out the large stock of agricultural implements they had on hand, and have more orders than they can fill this year. The Ontario agency has also done a very good business. We understand that the local manufacturers have been benefited by the competition; the idea of their being starved out is absurdly false. It could only be entertained by one like the "Plaintdealer," who knows nothing and cares less about his business, and is only anxious for his poor and bad ends, to make a point against the Ontario manufacturers, for the purpose of creating a feeling against them, and discontent generally with the state of affairs under confederation. We have made inquiry at the office of the Fredericton agent for the Ontario, "concern," and have been told that no agent from his office had been in New Glasgow for over a year, and that it is not possible that the statement that Ontario was to do all the manufacturing for the Maritime Provinces could have been made by any one connected with his establishment. The Ontario manufacturers, he declares, conduct their business in a fair, legitimate and honorable way, and, as far as he knows, their agents do not indulge in any boasts of the kind which "Plaintdealer" discards them.

Our zealous contemporary, the St. John Sun, is exercised over "Plaintdealer's" paragraph, and asks us categorically:—"Is it true that an agricultural implement factory at Fredericton has been closed?"

2. Is it true that the agents of the Ontario Company canvass for business in the Maritime Provinces after the fashion described in the "Plaintdealer?"

To both these questions we answer, roundly, No! In conclusion, we must correct the statement made by the Sun, that the Ontario manufacturing company referred to in that paragraph, have an interest in the MARITIME FARMER. They have not, and never had. It is true that the gentleman who acts as the agent in Fredericton, as a private individual, is a member of "The Maritime Farmer Association"; but it is not true that the company he represents has an interest in the paper; or, that the paper is in any way pledged to their interests. We hope that this explicit statement will satisfy the editor of the Sun, and that we will hear no more about it from him.

Death of Ex-Prince Imperial.

Even if the world had been disposed to forget the tragic death of the gallant Prince Imperial, it has not been allowed to put him out of remembrance. The prolonged and successful agitation against the movement supported by Dean Stanley, to place a memorial tomb in the National Walkway, Westminster Abbey, among England's bravest, wisest and best sons, and the pilgrimage of the bereaved mother to the spot where her son met death in ambuscade have kept his name and memory before the public. And at last the time has been given a true account of the circumstances under which he met his fate, as General Evelyn Wood, who accompanied the Empress Eugenie to Zululand, has sent to the papers an account of his death, collected from the independent testimony of eighteen Zulus, who participated in the attack on the Prince's party. A telegraphic synopsis of it states that:—"The attacking party numbered forty, twelve of whom followed the Prince, and eight were immediately slain in his hand. The Zulus having nearly surrounded the Prince's party, fled, and rushed on them as they were mounting. The Prince, not having succeeded in mounting, ran alongside the horse until he had been shot. The Prince followed his horse into the donga until, being closely pressed by his pursuers, he turned upon them, in the words of the Zulus, 'like a lion at bay.' Being struck by an assegai in the left shoulder, he rushed at his nearest opponent, who fled. Another Zulu then fired at the Prince when only ten yards from him. The Prince fired his pistol and shot his rapidly increasing force until menced from his right and rear, and struck by another assegai, he regained the level on which he had first stood in the donga, where he was speedily surrounded. He seized an assegai which had been thrown at him, and, in struggling with his terrified horse, his sword had fallen from his scabbard, and thus defended himself against seven or eight Zulus, who state that they did not break away until he had sunk exhausted on his lips. The above facts were elicited from Zulus, who were examined separately, on the scene of the attack, and this is the most correct description of the affair yet published."

Gen. Hancock's Letter.

Gen. Hancock has issued his long delayed letter of acceptance; it is brief, and as far as can be judged from a short abstract, it is a document which hostile criticism will thrust its shafts in vain, as it presents no vulnerable points. But of course, Republican critics will do their best or worst to show that it lamentably falls short in all points. Gen. Hancock is very earnest in the support in the constitution, its amendments, and all laws in pursuance thereof, and that he "praises the union, our fathers made, which stands today a model form of free popular government." He asserts the vital principle in our system that neither fraud nor force must be allowed to subvert the rights of the people, says the basis of a substantial, practical civil service reform must first be established by the people in filling the elective offices, and continues: "The time has come to enjoy the substantial benefits of reconciliation. Let us encourage the harmony and generous rivalry among our own industries, which will revive our languishing commerce, extend our maritime, extend our foreign relations, assist our merchants, manufacturers and producers to develop our vast natural resources and increase the prosperity and happiness of our people. Let us have the Divine favor, labor with what ability I possess, to discharge my duties with faithfulness, according to my convictions, and shall take care to provide, and the laws be faithfully and equally executed in all parts of the country alike."

Illness of Mr. Gladstone.

Great excitement has been caused in political circles in Great Britain, and great concern in the nation by the sudden and serious illness of Mr. Gladstone. He caught cold after leaving the House of Commons on Friday night, and was seized with conjestion of the left lung. He was very feverish on Sunday, and continued in the same critical state until Monday afternoon. His condition in the evening was reported to be more comfortable. No apprehensions of immediate danger have been entertained. But any serious illness befalling the Premier, who has passed three score and ten, and whose strength is taxed by the manifold cares and harassments of his great position, cannot but cause great anxiety. His life is felt to be of immense importance to the nation. His death, happen when it may, would cause a profound sensation for, taking him all in all, he is, in England, "the foremost man upon the file of time." At this juncture, when affairs both at home and abroad are in an unsatisfactory condition, his final departure from his sphere of duty would very probably produce a crisis. His death would be an immense loss to the Liberal party, which requires a controlling mind to prevent it from splitting asunder in antagonistic sections. His government might not survive him a year. It is often said, that no man, however great, is missed in this world; but it is hard to believe that that harsh saying would be true in the case of Mr. Gladstone. He has bitter enemies, whose hate might be gratified if he was taken away from disturbing old abuses and unsettling the old order of things; but he has honest devoted followers and admirers, who would deplore his death as a private and public calamity, and who would look to the ranks of Liberal statesmen for his successor.

A Spanish Outrage.

It will not be the fault of the Spaniards if they do not get into trouble with the United States. They appear to think that the Yankees have a hankering after the Island of Cuba, and the commanders of the gunboats are too ready to open fire upon their vessels when they appear within sight of its coasts, and bring them too and search them before assuring themselves that the vessels are really within the legal distance. An outrage was committed lately, which has evoked from Secretary Everett a declaration that, if upon thorough investigation it shall appear to the satisfaction of the administration, that the Spanish Government has really insulted the dignity of the United States flag, a demand for reparation will be made. An examination has been held, and it is stated that:—"The affidavit of Capt. Rand, of the U. S. S. Albatross, who was the vessel fired upon at sea by Spanish war vessels, says he is positive that at the time the vessel was fired upon she was more than six miles from the Cuban coast. 'The vessel's course, from land and bearings, as reported by the gunboat left us her course was towards the Quince P, Newcomb, which vessel was several miles further out from the shore than was the Merritt. She was fired upon, and the gunboats from the shore when fired upon by the gunboat mentioned. Both affidavits are submitted before a United States Commissioner."

Recall of Sir Bartle Frere.

Sir Bartle Frere has been recalled from the Cape, and relieved of his Governorship. The Marquis of Hartington in making the announcement, stated that the Government had decided to recall Sir Bartle on account of the rejection of the confederation policy by the Cape Parliament. He intimated that the Government did not wholly agree with Governor of Cape Colony, in his statement attributing the failure of confederation to the annexation of the Transvaal, and the condition of affairs in Zululand, but in any case, it was deemed wise to try the experiment of a new administration.

Obituary.—An obliging correspondent from Blissville Settlement sends us the following memorial notice of Mr. Jos. F. Britain, an aged and much respected inhabitant of that place, who died suddenly on the 8th ult.:

"The deceased Mr. J. T. Britain was a man who was highly thought of in the neighborhood in which he lived, and his sudden death was a deep gloom over the community. He had partaken of a hearty tea in seeming good health, and within half an hour afterwards while attending to his duties was suddenly stricken down. He had been for many years a consistent member of the Free Baptist Church, and at the time of his death was Assistant Superintendent of the Sabbath School, in which office he was truly a working man. He was a man of great piety, and was holding the students to a more close study of their Bibles, and pointing out to them the necessity of being constantly prepared to meet their God. On last Sabbath his cheerful voice was missed, and the sorrow depicted on each countenance showed the love that was felt for their departed friend."

Removal of an Ovarian Tumor. WRIGHTSON & POWERS.—Dr. Dow, of this place, performed a surgical operation on Mrs. Jones Dunham, of Campbell Settlement, Southampton, for the removal of a very large Ovarian Tumor, which weighed 80 pounds. The patient was doing well when last heard from.

"Blind Tom," who now wears the name of "Professor W. F. Raymond," appears as the composer of a "March Timpani."

The Reminder, &c.

We have received a little book, published by the Borean Class, St. Mary's, N. B., entitled "The Reminder, &c." It is a collection of events about to culminate in the establishment of the Everlasting Kingdom of God. It is "A Wayfarer." The Reminder is very well recommended, and will prove acceptable to all hearts. It is a book that always has a devoted readers who have taken intense interest in the exposition of the prophetic writings, and who have looked for the fulfillment of prophecy in their day. The belief in the near ending of the world, "the restitution of all things," the second coming of Christ was very strong in the earliest Christian ages, but it has long since faded, and the people have been without bringing the dread consummation. In this age of deep biblical criticism, of rationalistic thinking of growing disbelief in the supernatural, the study of the Hebrew Prophecy, in the hope of gaining enlightenment and knowledge of great events that will happen to the world is looked upon by many learned scholars as unprofitable. The people are they interested in the authority of the Book of the Prophet Daniel, on which Wayfarer takes his "sure and certain stand, and deny it a right to a place in the study of the Bible. It cannot, however, be said, that the sign that "the time of the end" is at hand, in X.C. 11, v. of that book: "Many shall run to and fro, and shall be filled with sorrow, and shall be delivered up to the power of the Lord of Hosts, and shall be brought to Babylon, as in the days of old. And there shall be a great distress, such as has not been since the beginning of the world, until that time. And the Lord will visit Babylon, as he visited the land of the Chaldees, and will make the land of the Chaldees a desolation, and will bring down the tower of the Chaldees, and will bring down the wall of the Chaldees, and will bring down the city of the Chaldees, and will bring down the people of the Chaldees, and will bring down the king of the Chaldees, and will bring down the kingdom of the
