

Local News.

Business is slack in the Police Court.
York Municipal elections next Tuesday.
There is a dearth of amusements in the city now.
When will the New Post Office be ready for occupation?
Mrs. Campbell is repairing the exterior of her residence on Queen Street.
Mitchell the Annapolis murderer has been sentenced to be hanged on the 20th December.
Mr. Geo. W. Allen, who was injured in going to the Stanley Fair, is able to be out again.
The Queen Hotel Livery Stable horses, and many others in town are down with the epizootic.
The city cricketers are anxious to meet the University team again before the close of the season.
Mr. Geo. A. Burkhart left on Monday to visit the sick bed of his brother at Worcester, Ohio.
Mr. Thomas Hoban has resigned his position as Superintendent of the New Brunswick Railway.
The mornings and evenings are becoming quite cold, and overcoats and gloves are indispensable.
The Sunday School Convention of the Maritime Provinces meets at Moncton on Saturday next.
There is little prospect of the Skating Rink being opened this winter. Cannot somebody take hold of it?
Our riflemen are to have their annual competition on Friday, at the Temple Pitcher. Firing to commence at 2 P. M.
Mr. Ketchum is daily expecting orders to leave for Brazil. We exceedingly regret the loss of so estimable a citizen.
Thomas F. Raymond, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, St. John, has been fined $60 for selling liquor on Sunday.
We are glad to welcome home Mr. John Black and his accomplished lady. They returned from their bridal trip on Friday.
It is rumored that E. R. Burpee, Esq., intends purchasing Mr. Ketchum's residence and grounds which are offered for sale.
The slaughter of partridge continues. A gentleman from this city sold twenty-three of this week, on the old Nashua road.
Court Square is much improved since the removal of those old sheds and the erection of a substantial fence around Mr. Campbell's grounds.
The usual harvest services were conducted in the Cathedral, and at Christ Church last Sabbath. The music in the Cathedral in the evening was especially grand.
Mr. J. W. McCready, A. B., is to become principal of the Gibson Schools at the beginning of the winter term. The new building will then be ready for occupation.
Michaelmas term of the Supreme Court opened on Tuesday last, and the usual large number of Barristers from different parts of the Province are here in attendance.
The prospects for the "Florenceville" to receive her trip to Woodstock this autumn are not very bright. The river will require to be considerably higher than at present, to enable her to do so.
There have been promotions in the People's Bank staff recently. Mr. Spurdens assuming the position of Cashier, Mr. Babbitt getting Mr. Spurdens's place, and Mr. Chas. Lee, formerly in Mr. Randolph's office, stepping into Mr. Babbitt's vacancy. We congratulate our young friends on their deserved promotion.
The Ladies of the Free Baptist Church held a Tea and Fancy Sale in the Temperance Hall, last night. There was quite a large attendance and the receipts which go toward clearing off the debt on the Church, were satisfactory. Some unruly boys created disorder, but were promptly looked after by the committee and reprimanded.
We have received Mr. Daniel Lucy's advertisement too late for this issue, but it will appear next week. We understand, however, that he has recently visited the leading manufacturers in Montreal and Quebec, where he made extensive purchases of articles in his line of trade at remarkably low figures. We can confidently recommend Mr. Lucy's establishment to our readers.
Mr. John Gibson, eldest son of Alex. Gibson, Esq., of Marysville, died quite suddenly at his residence last Thursday afternoon, of congestion of the lungs. His remains were interred on Saturday, in presence of a very large number of persons, many attending from this city. Rev. Mr. Brewer was the officiating clergyman, and the deepest sympathies to the family of the deceased.
Could not Archibald Forbes, the renowned war correspondent of the London Daily News, be induced to deliver one of his celebrated lectures here during his tour of the Maritime Provinces? We observe that he speaks in all leading towns of Nova Scotia, at Moncton and at St. John, during the present month. We would suggest that Mr. M. S. Hall who has been often taken a hand in similar enterprises, might arrange the matter.
There will be a slight change in the staff of teachers of the Let School.
Nor. Miss Loring, who has successfully conducted the Wisely School for three terms, will retire. Miss Ross and Miss Seely, whose six months leave of absence have expired, will resume their positions in the Brock School. Miss Meagher, who has filled Miss Ross's place during the term nearly closed, will probably take charge of the Wisely School.
A number of ladies connected with the Methodist Church at the Mouth of the Tay, met at the residence of Wm. McLean, Esq., on Thursday, the 7th inst., for the purpose of organizing a Sewing Circle, the object being to raise funds to repair and improve the above named church. The greatest unanimity prevailed at the meeting, and the work of organization and other matters of detail were proceeded with speedily and harmoniously.
Mrs. Wm. McLean was elected President, Mrs. Wm. Sterling, Vice-President, Miss E. Miller, 2nd Vice-President, and Mrs. J. S. Young, Treasurer.
St. Dunstan's T. A. Society at a meeting on Tuesday evening, elected the following officers for the current quarter:—
Patrick Farrell, President;
John Magge, 1st Vice-President;
A. G. Martin, 2nd Vice-President;
John McMillan, Secy.;
Peter Farrell, Fin. Secy.;
T. H. McGrath, Treasurer;
John E. Perkins, Librarian;
Geo. R. Perks, Serjeant-at-Arms.
The Society is in a most healthful condition financially and otherwise, and its officers and members are punctual and zealous in the discharge of their duties.
We regret to chronicle the death, under painful circumstances, of Mrs. C. A. McCausland which occurred on Sunday afternoon. Her funeral took place from her late residence, King Street, on Tuesday, and was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Evans, pastor of the Methodist Church, and the following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: Ald. Wilson, W. Vanwart, J. M. Wiley, W. T. Whitehead, Dr. Torrance, and A. Vanwart.
We have to tender our deepest sympathies to Mr. McCausland and other relatives and friends in their sad and sudden bereavement.
Mr. John Black is busy this week conducting the examination for admission as law students and attorneys in the room over Messrs. Fraser, Wetmore & Winslow's office, St. John Street. For attorneys there are the following gentlemen: David Tapley, Esq., Police Magistrate of Portland, N. B.; W. C. H. Grimmer, St. Andrews; James Kay, John J. Forest and Hiram Betts, St. John. For admission as students: Allen W. Bray, J. H. Dickson, Esq., Moncton; Dunn Scott, H. A. Powell's office, Sackville; Robert W. Thompson, W. W. Wiley's office, Dorchester; H. H. Ayer, C. A. Steeves' office, Moncton; C. W. Clifton, Tabor, Rainford & Black's office, Fredericton; Geo. W. Fowler, A. S. White's office, Sussex; Geo. J. Blain, L. J. Tremblay's office, Chatham; and Chas. Cleland, Geo. S. Grimmer's office, St. Stephen.

The authorities in charge of the Officers' Square should have had the tumble-down Band stand removed at once.

The Supreme Court will deliver judgment in the celebrated Tower case to-morrow. It is said the bench will be divided in the matter.

Messrs. McFarlane, Thompson & Anderson sold nearly all the agricultural implements exhibited by them at St. John. The firm are quite proud of their success at the Exhibition. Lieut. Hunter, N. B. E., has been dismissed from the service for using violence to private Goddard while on parade. By this order the active militia of New Brunswick loses one of its best marksmen.

James Mitchell, Esq., of the legal firm of Stevens & Mitchell, St. Stephen, was in town this week attending the Supreme Court. We are glad to learn that Mr. Mitchell is enjoying a large and increasing practice. His old friends were pleased to see him.

S. Dayton & Sons have begun the season's potato trade, having made the first shipment of two car loads last week to New York. They offer 55 cents per bbl. for all that can be procured. Last season the same firm handled nearly 5,000 bbls.

The October term of Sunbury Co. Court opened on Wednesday, and closed the same day. Only one case was tried, that of Brannen vs. Estabrooks, an action on a promissory note. Verdict for full amount claimed, G. B. Seely, Esq., for plaintiff, J. A. Vanwart, Esq., for defendant.

The Fredericton Leather Company announce they are now manufacturing the best quality of sole leather in addition to their many other varieties. They advertise that they will purchase bark and hides, paying cash for the same. Our country friends should note the fact.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs returned from St. John last night, after several weeks absence from home. The Exhibition campaign it was thought would tell heavily on Mr. Jacobs constitution, but we are glad to say that he has felt the strain in the least, and returns in excellent health and spirits.

Among the Barristers in town this week attending the Supreme Court are: Dr. Tuck, Dr. Barker, T. C. Allen, G. B. Seely, R. B. Smith, G. S. Grimmer, W. Pugsley, J. W. Wells, D. S. Kerr, H. R. Emerson, James Mitchell, A. A. Stockton, John Kerr, James D. Phinney, C. A. Stockton, S. R. Thompson and Hon. D. L. Harrington.

FREDERICTON RAILWAY.—On and after Monday next, 18th October, the morning train for the West will leave Fredericton at 9 o'clock instead of 9:15 A. M., and at 7:00 A. M. and 2:30 P. M., leave Fredericton for St. John.

J. C. Riester & Co. have made arrangements with the contractors, for doing the finishing work of the Parliament Buildings. The main building to be finished in ash, cherry, and walnut, that of the library and all in pine. This will give constant employment this winter to the large staff of hands in this establishment. We may also here mention that they are making a number of Seed Separators and Cleaners for Johnston & Co.

The Gibson Leather Company had a successful trip to Woodstock this autumn. Friday night. Owing to the absence of several parties to the Exhibition and the death of Mr. John Gibson the attendance of guests was not so large as expected, but the affair went off very pleasantly. Our reporter being absent from town was unable to attend, but we assure the company that our best wishes are for its success—a success largely realized. With the most favorable facilities for transportation, an excellent situation, energetic officers and workmen and a fostering trade, there is no reason why the Gibson Leather Company should not achieve even a much higher position in manufacturing than it now enjoys.

A Nova Scotian's Experience in Colorado.

A resident of Yarmouth, having joined the exodus to Colorado, thus relates his experience in a letter to the Yarmouth Herald:—
At nine o'clock Monday morning we passed into the State of Colorado, and now we are in the great Kansas Valley, the (so-called) garden of the world, where we are told that stock could live and thrive without care, and crops grow without labor, making a man rich by merely passing through it; where the deer and the antelope roved and were hunted, and buffalo were killed without number. But imagine our disappointment. At dark we are in a fine country, but are looking for something in the morning that will edify all that we have seen yet. Alas! when daylight comes we look out and see nothing but a vast sandy desert. We begin to think we are not awake, but find. So we rub our eyes again and find we are awake, and as far as we can look, not a green spot or tree to be seen, with here and there a small, half-starved herd of cattle or sheep, which were afraid to lie down for fear they could get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming. The stock is all dying, and the grounds so dry that the crops cannot come up. On Sunday we got to Pueblo, a city of 10,000 people, and the Rocky Mountains covered with snow. At 2 P. M. we arrive at Pueblo, to be somewhat disappointed with its appearance. It is a small town, very dirty, the streets so dusty that they get up again! Some say that the way these animals get rest is for two or three to huddle together and lean against each other. Here we see emigrant wagons all along the plain going to the golden City. We are told that the Colorado is a fine State—two sign posts with the name Blackwell on them—one ten by twelve horse and two dugouts here make the city. Through the whole of Colorado we pass nothing but a dry, sandy plain except a few corn fields and a spot that he can irrigate, which is a very expensive way of farming.