Maritime Farmer.

FREDERICTON, N. B., October 27, 1881.

The Senate. Mr. Blake and the Globe the organ of 'the party" are not abreast and do not work very well together on the Senate question. The organ is decidedly ahead of the leader, and would abolish the second chamber altogether. Mr. Blake goes for substituting for the present Senate, a chamber with a reduced number of members elected either indirectly or directly by the people. He would go for total apolishment, but fears that public opinion in the Maritime Provinces would be adverse to it. The Globe appears to think that abolishment of the Senate would be readily brought about were the Maritime Provinces united, but does not seem to have an idea how far off such an union really is. If the people of the Maritime Provinces really think as we must suppose they do, that equal representation in the Senate is a safeguard to their interests we are almost sure they will never come to think that total abolishment would be for their good, or that the substitution of a remodelled chamber for the present Senate, where the members would be fewer in number and elected on the "rep by pop" principle of course, would be a sufficient protection. It seems that both "the Globe and Mr. Blake are driven to agitate for the abolishing or remodelling of the Senate, not because either think either mode of treatment of the second chamber absolutely necessary, but from the exigency of party principles and demands They are reformers, and to make good their name, must be reforming and the Senate pre sents itself to them as as good a subject for reformation as they can readily take hold off Mr. Blake, last week, spoke at Williams burg, in the Riding of West Durham, and the principal subject of his discourse, was the Senate. After some remarks on the composition and position of the second chamber in the constitution he said-

It is pleasing to notice evidences of enterprise in the Province. There is with the press of the Province generally a desire to stir up the spirit of enterprise among the ALBIUK MUUDE some project that will give employment to the young men who will otherwise leave the country, keep money in the country which would otherwise go out of it to purchase articles which might here be manufactured, and which would redound to their benefit. But it is tedious, thankless work to write up enterprise, and seldom has the press the satisfaction of recording that, their efforts to start some work of usefulness, have been successful. We see, that the Bay Pilot is endeavoring to stir up the "capitalists" of St Andrews, to take advantage of the unequalled water power privilege which the Chamcook river offers, to establish a Woollen Mill, and is urging them to find means, by unlocking their hoards and breaking "the hasps from their coffers and allowing the money that has for years been excluded from the light of heaven, to circulate." It seeks to demon-
