A STORY OF ALL-HALLOW-EVE.

I wonder how many of the children who roast chestnuts or duck for apples on Allhallow-eve have any idea how venerable are the games they play, or how, all the world over, young people are amusing themselves in pretty much the same fashion? In England, girls are strewing the ashes that are expected, though vainly, I fear, to spell the names of whoever loves them best. In Scotland, they are slyly sowing the hemp that their future has bands must come and gather. In Germany, they are making merry efforts to learn their fate with the help of the looking-glass that hangs by their bed. And many of these sports have been played for centuries, and were old even at the time of my story.

More I was a boat rowed by strong arms that shot forward to the plate of the contract of the propers of raid were words of comfort to her little sister. So, it was the respectable Gilbert Darth!"

A murmur of astonishment ran through the audience. So, it was the respectable Gilbert Darth, whose words from the witness stand (and they were true too.) fixing the identity of the money, had told much longer. Chilled to the heart, their stiffened arms were gradually relaxing. The morning was beginning to break, and its dull gray light showed her nothing but the angry wave on every side. Familiar landmarks were all gone, and the child's sowing the hemp that their future has bands must come and gather. In Germany, they are making merry efforts to learn their fate with the help of the look ing-glass that hangs by their bed. And many of these sports have been played for centuries, and were old even at the time of my story.

Milions of packages of the Diamond Dyes have been sold without a single complaint. Everywhere they are the favorite Rupert Margery, and little Nance, left to each other's company, were preparing without a shadow of fear to amuse themselves in their own fashion. Two big lumps of lead were ready to be melted, and then poured into water, there to assume hundreds of quaint little shapes; the chestnuts, carefully matched and named, were hopping gayly about on the fire-place; and half a dozen rosy cheeked apples floated tauntingly in a tub of water waiting for a courageous diver.

the question she scarcely dared to ask.

"Where is Rupert?" she cried, "He sent you, I know; but where is he now?"

The men, two laborers from the manor farm, looked at each other with troubled eyes, but made no answer. Margery's pitiful glance wandered from one down-cast face to the other, as she strove to understand what this silence meant.

"He must have sent you to us," she said, slowly, and as if talking to herself; welse how would you have thought to the question she scarcely dared to ask.

"Where is Rupert?" she cried, "He sent you, I know; but where is he now?"

Jones declares that his wife is the most thrifty woman he ever knew. "Why, sir," he recently exclaimed, "she has made ten patchwork quilts during the last two years—made them herself, sir, out of the samples she collected in her shoping tours during that time."

"It's no use, Nance," said her sister; "you will never get one, if you keep on "It's no use, no continued in the stop of the water stream in the stop of frightened fools we would have remembered you before."

He stopped, and Margery looked at him with dazed and startled eyes. As gently as he could he told her how, two hours before, the drowned body of a little fair-haired boy had been swept by the torrent past the windows of the manor farm. Every effort had been made to bring back some sperk of life, but it was too late. The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zeclously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this. On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says. "It works like a charm and saves much pain. W will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhea, irregular and painful genstration, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Oceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to tne Change of Life." f permeates every portion of the system, and gives nev life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system. It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect nealth by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass. For Kicney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show. "Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Billio mos and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purfer works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity. All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sola ambition is to do good to others.
