Mr. Wells and Mr, Killam.

There will be a sharp fight in Westmorland between Mr. W. W. Wells and Mr. A. E. Killam, for the vacant local seat. They are in the field respectively as the candidates of the Opposition and Government. Nomination is fixed for Oct. 6th, and polling will likely be one week later.

Judging by the past record of Westmorland, it appears safe to predict victory for Mr. Wells, as Dominion issues have been raised in the constituency, which has also twice expressed its confidence in the local party with which Mr. Wells has been identi-

That outside questions should enter with the contest as we have said before, is highly undesirable, but the Liberal party and their St. John organs were the aggressors, and the Conservatives cannot be blamed if they hour, 10 p. m. have taken up the challenge.

Mr. Wells was nominated at a Conservative convention at Shediac, and the members thereof pledged him their support, so its probable that this will summon to his side all the forces of that party which has been so strongly in the ascendant since Mr. Wood's victory in June, 1882.

Personally, Mr. Wells has many qualities that will recommend him to the electors Westmorland over Mr. Killam. He is young man of great energy and force of very short intervals, and a night train will character, he has won his way unaided to a leading place in his profession, and these considerations will count powerfully in his favor in an election contest particularly when 25 cts. opposed to so weak a politician as Mr. Killam.

Where the Blame Lies.

The rupture between the Government and the Board of Agricultura has borne fruit in the withholding of agricultural exhibits, and New Brunswick, we are told, will not have done and New Brunswick, we are told, will not have done and New Brunswick, we are told, will not have done the case. Our farmers should have done what they case. Our farmers should have done what they case. Our farmers should have done what they case the case. Our farmers should have done what they case the case. Our farmers should have done what they cannot a nonymous "Foreigner in Florence," succeed in making tration of the day Henry Study died at Ransom, Ill., and left a fortune of $65,000. He was a cripple from birth. At the close of the war he donned the uniform of a soldier, made up a pathetic story of having been compelled to close their doors. The condition of the people, thus suddenly deprived of the pleasures of ligitation is not soon at our as a bad as one might imagine. They are settling all their difficulties quickly and cheaply arbitration, and if the strike of the law and there is danger that these heathen may continue to take room business at old rates, and the result is that all litigation has ceased, and the courts have been compelled to close their doors.
