Westmorland Election. The opposition quartette has failed in i attack upon Fort Westmorland, and has been disastrously repulsed. The four with Mr. We have enlarged our premises by Killam at their head, came very confidently who may have been hesitating in which scale of the balance to throw their weight. The county will look upon the contest as decisive, as a trial of strength between the two parties.

And as it was prevoked by the opposition, their discomfiture is all the sorer. We never thought the event would be otherwise .-SHOE Nothing had happened in the interval from June to stake the confidence of the county in Hon. Messrs. Hannington and Landry, and their two colleagues, and it was absurd to suppose that the majority of the electors would go back on their action in summer and destroy whatever influence or prestige was more to your interest to buy the having two of their members the heads of the government gave them. After the elections in June, the organs of the Opposition persistently claimed a majority for Mr. Blair in the new House, and they calculated the weakness of the Government to a nicety. They proclaimed that the feeling of the Province was against the old, but newly vamped, government-the Hanington, Landry, Colter, Adams amalgamation-yet when it came to the test, as at King's and Kent, it was found that they had somehow Men's Boots and Shoes, they have been throughout. The Mayor's Election.

The city was treated to a mild sensation on Monday. Up to nine o'clock, those wh emembered that it was Mayor's election day, rested in the assurance that there would be no contest,-that is, all but a few. The nomination of Mr. Gregory by Mr. Richards then was all but a general surprise. Mr Fisher was aggrieved that an opponent was shot across his path at the last moment. It was no doubt annoying, just when he was take our word for it, but come and without any bother, that Mr. Gregory should have appeared there to oppose him. But there was no occasion for him to show any chagrin. It is the privilege of any qualified citizen to nominate any other qualified citizen for Mayor, and there is no law requiring that a candidate for the office should an nounce his intention weeks or days before hand. He also objected to Mr. Gregory coming out, as he had served many years and a chance ought to be given to others. We agree with him in thinking that the Civic Chair ought not to be monopolized by one or two, but when there are no other candidates pressing forward, when among our business men there are none ambitious for the dignity what resource is there? If a contest had not been suddenly sprung upon him Mr. F. might have made a better than a neck and neck run, but probably he is wrong in pposing that of the 300 electors who bstained from voting, the great majority would have cast their ballots for him On the whole he ought to be thankful that he slipped in by the casting vote of the returning officer. The position in which Marshall Woodward, who acted in that capacity. found himself was novel, and he no doubt felt the responsibility. As things turned out the citizens might as well have devolved on him the duty of electing the Mayor first as A terrible murder was committed ten or twelve miles from Ottawa, at a place called Little Rideau, near Hawkesbury, early on the second morning of the year. The victims were four members of a respectable family named Cooke, consisting of the father a man of about sixty-five years of age, and a farmer, his wife and four sons and three daughters. The murderer was a hired lad named Frederick Mann, a young Englishman who had lately come out, and had only been in the employment of the family for three months. It is said that the motive for the horrible crime was a feeling of revenge towards the Cookes, because he was not allowed to attend a party in company with the younger members of the family.
