Many an Englishmen will date in Victoria, or is the Attorney General not eat a squirrel, but will gloat over a meal anxiously waiting for something to turn up of barnacles and periwinkles, the latter being that will render a Government nominee more a species of sea snail the adheres to the rooks. The New Hollander relishes a feast of decertain of election there than one could be cayed sharks, yet looks with horror on bread at present. Possibly there has been nobody and butter. The Japanese have a prejudice about the Parliament Buildings for the last against milk and beef, but enjoy stewed or roast rat. The Turks shudder at the thought of eating oysters.
