You will see that Mr. Mitchell declined to prejudice himself to the Chatham people, or in fact either way. The opinion of all persons was, however, that the line should be built on the northern side of the river. If the country is to be opened up and the railway is for the benefit of the people, it must be built on the morth side. Let any of you travel through the two sections of country, and if a thorough inspection is made, there is not the slightest doubt as to which course you would say the doubt as the definition of the complainant, who was promised the complainant, who was doubt as to which course you would say the line ought to take. The very industries there are now on the northern side cry aloud that the line should come there. The fact is, the line should be built on a line with Mr. the line should be built on a line with Mr. the Intercolonial to a point on the Miramichi by which he became liable to dismissal as an Mrs. De Witt was here fidenit the allowance of the whole line, and a Dominion subtutional precedent refused, or rather neglected to act in obedience to His Honor's command, by which he became liable to dismissal as an Mrs. De Witt was here fidenit the sold at 96, thereby can be sold at 96, Buck's survey, then it will be of assistance to River. There are men in Canada prepared to do it, and I will pledge myself to get them at a very short notice. My purpose in producing the correspondence that I have was to show that the new company have been holding the old company up to public ridicule and also that this House might judge as to what work the old company had done to forward the completion of this line. This new company instead of taking up the contention between us in a fair way, have done everything opposition have endeavoured to make capital to degrade us, and have not given us credit for and it is this. What They worked for seven long years and when the time came that their exertions were likely to bear fruit, a new company steps in the old company. Nothing is too bad for them. Mr. Burchill has talked of appealing to public opinion, and that if that was done, there would be a large number of persons in favor of the southern route of the line. To give you my honest opinion, I do not believe that if that course was pursued there would be a large majority either way. My friends are not calling out for the alteration of the struction of a highway bridge over the river, have the old homesteads been left to decay, the barns have become dilapidated, the fences are falling down and the lumber interest is waning. But I say that if this line is built on the northern side of the river these evils will be removed. Those who have left busy hum of work. It is monstrous to say that the people of my county are in favor of the southern route. A thousand tongues are
