York Redeemed!

The good time has at last arrived when York has proved true to her own interests, and ranged herself in line with the party of progress and good government in Canada. The work of yesterday was a noble effort on the part of the electors of this constituency. The Liberal Conservative party and their candidate Mr. Temple, undertook an apparently herculean task when they boldly challenged a contest with a party that in June, 1882, led them by a majority of nine hundred and seventeen. But the result has more than justified their reasonable hopes, which at the most was that York might be redeemed, be the majority ever so small. The returns of resterday's contest which we publish elsewhere, tell their own tale. We have

A correspondent writing from Battleford, Northwest Territory, on this subject, says .-"A few days ago I was invited by the Rev. Thos. Mr. A. W. Wilkinson's Death.

Death at any age in man, is a sad blow to those who have been his friends and associates, but in the young, it is especially felt. The old must die, the young may, but both have that certainty before them.

One of the saddest deaths that it has been our lot to record, is that of Mr. Arthur W. made last week. It seems only a few weeks since Mr. Wilkinson, fresh in the bloom of youth, with the full flush of health and ambition, high hopes and brilliant aspirations left this his native city, to pursue his medical studies at McGill College, Montreal. Almost his last words to his friends here were ily prepare himself for the honorable profession that he had chosen. After becoming settled in his studies which he pursued with that vigor and intelligence that marked his career in our own schools and University, he wrote home of his success, and his friends river. watched his career with the assurance that there, as well as here, he would command the highest honors, as well as the respect and esteem of those with whom he was thrown, But his young life was to be cut off in the very spring time of its course, and hearts that fondly rejoiced over his promising manhood, are torn by the sadness of his death.

Mr. Wilkinson was ill only a few days. He caught typhoid fever from a college friend whom he nursed. The news of his illness was quickly succeeded by the sad details of his death, and fond parents, brothers ing almost incontrollable; with grief that well nigh sears the heart.

The deceased was a son of Mr. Edwd. Wilgiate School, and under Mr. Parkin's efficient training, soon developed a well balanced mind, attracting the attention of his tutors ability.
